WRITING EMPHASIS PROGRAM STARTS THIS WEEK

The first steps toward an effective writing emphasis throughout the University will be taken this week with a lecture and workshops leading the way toward a more intensive program in the spring.

Winifred Horner, holder of the Lillian Radford Chair of Rhetoric and Composition, will talk on "Writing Across the Curriculum: Getting Started" at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in Moudy Building Room 141N. A leader in the national writing across the curriculum movement, she recently helped to inaugurate such a program at Arizona State University.

Toby Fulwiler of the University of Vermont, a national expert on writing in the disciplines, will conduct a workshop for School of Business faculty members at 8:30 a.m. Friday and a general faculty workshop from 2 to 4 p.m. in Student Center Room 205-6. Reservations for the latter workshop must be made with Neil Daniel of English at Ext. 7240. Fulwiler has published two recent books on writing in the disciplines and has conducted writing workshops in 31 states.

Neil will be relieved of teaching duties for the spring semester to coordinate the introduction of the writing across the curriculum program. Although he sees some experimentation in the classroom during the spring as one of the goals of the program, the first courses to be taught as writing emphasis courses will not be offered before the fall of 1988.

Other goals for the spring, Neil said, will be to identify a core of teachers who are committed to writing as a mode of learning and are willing to share their discoveries with others; to accumulate a bank of resources--including printed matter, sample assignments, model strategies--on which faculty members can draw; and to recommend a mechanism, perhaps a faculty steering committee, to carry the work into the fall semester of 1988.

Already planned for spring are a two-day workshop in early January for business faculty, meetings with faculty members who already have indicated an interest in using writing in their courses, meetings with department chairs to identify other teachers with an interest in writing, workshops to share teaching strategies and a workshop on teaching writing to be conducted by a writing authority of national prominence.

In addition, said Neil, a collection of writing resources will be housed in the library in a space that will accommodate small seminars and teaching demonstrations. A regular publication, such as a monthly newsletter, will disseminate information on writing across the curriculum: teaching tips, types of assignments, methods of evaluation.

YEAR'S GIFTS NOW TOTAL $1,824,370

Gifts received by the University from the start of the fiscal year on June 1 totaled $1,824,370 through Sept. 30. The figure was announced by Vice Chancellor Paul Hartman to the development committee of the trustees. This amount includes:

- $451,582 to the Annual Fund for TCU;
- $558,672 in current restricted gifts;
- $126,484 for endowment;
- $14,247 for campus and faculty projects.

The October report also noted that the Alumni Trustee Challenge now includes 17 current and honorary trustees. Their accumulative pledge to the Annual Fund this year is $160,000. If alumni meet the terms of the challenge, these trustees have agreed to contribute another $394,000 for student financial aid.

The initial appeals for the challenge were sent out in September. The first results, which are encouraging, include:

- 56 alumni who never had contributed before have made gifts totaling $2,335 earning a 2-for-1 match of $4,670;
- 167 alumni who have contributed in some years but not last year have made gifts of $27,552 earning a 1-for-1 match;
- 44 alumni who gave last year increased their gifts this year by $5,232 earning equivalent amount of matching funds;
- three alumni have increased their gifts by $1,474 and, by so doing, moved from one gift club level to a higher one for a 2-for-1 match in funds.

CORPUS CHRISTI SITE FOR EVENT

A "Day for TCU" is the theme for tomorrow's fund-raising campaign in Corpus Christi. A goal of $12,500 has been set for the one-day blitz when requests will be made to alumni, parents and friends on behalf of the Annual Fund.

Heading the campaign is Richard Crews Jr., Class of '69 member who is with the legal firm of Brin and Brin. Vice chairman is Brent Chesney '85, who is with Loeb Organization Inc. Coordinating the effort will be development officer Kristi Johnston.

The campaign leadership committee includes Bob and Susan Phillips Corrigan, Classes of '68 and '69; Charles Forney '70; Joe Holt '62; Oliver Major '37; Mark and Mary Elmore Williams '51; and Joe and Fran Fulton, whose son Joseph is a senior finance major.

A one-day campaign was conducted Nov. 4 in McKinney under the leadership of Mac Hendricks '64. Volunteers, who were seeking a goal of $20,000, included Joan Coleman, Cindy Friesen, Clyde Geer, Rick Honea, Terry Irby, Ricky Lewis, Charles McKissick Jr., Charles McKissick Sr., Garland Polk, Scotty Scott, Pete Witherspoon, Virgil Miller and Travis Ussery.

GREEN PROF TO LECTURE ON GOD IN KANT

Hans Lenk, Green Honors Professor for the fall semester, will give a public lecture Nov. 23 on "A Sociomorphic Postulate for God in Kant," which deals with the third moral argument for the existence of God in Kant's Critique of Practical Reason. The talk will begin at 4 p.m. in Weatherly Hall with a reception following. Faculty and staff are cordially invited, said Spencer Wertz, philosophy chairman.

Lenk chairs the Institute of Philosophy at West Germany's Karlsruhe University and is known internationally for his work in sport philosophy and the ethics of science and technology.

CLARK SOCIETY WEEKEND BEGINS FRIDAY

A full schedule of activities is planned for the initial Clark Society Weekend, which will begin with 2 p.m. registration Friday in the lobby of Moudy Building North. The two-day program replaces the annual dinner event for members and guests of the organization of donors of $1,000 or more annually.

"How Fort Worth's Museums Help Art Come Alive at TCU" is the theme for the presentation to be given at 2:30 p.m. by art historian Mark Thistlethwaite and religion-studies chairman Ken Lawrence. To include illustrations, the program in Moudy 132N will be followed by a tour of the Kimbell and Amon Carter museums.

An alternate afternoon session will be a briefing on athletic programs, to be held in the Lettermen's Clubroom of Daniel-Meyer Coliseum, and tours of the facilities.

The Fort Worth Club will be the site for the society's reception and dinner. Presiding will be Maurice Price of Dallas, Class of '62 member who heads the organization of some 800 members.

Saturday's events include a pregame brunch, starting at 10 a.m. in the Student Center ballroom, and the Horned Frog-Aggie football game at noon.

LIBRARY SHOWS HANDMADE BOOKS, PAPER

The November display in Mary Coats Burnett Library lobby is an unusual collection of handmade books and paper curated by Susan Swaim Kurtz, daughter of chief catalog librarian Joan Swaim.

The books include Susan's own "Photo Ghosts," with text by Joan; "Folderol" by Lauren Randall, text by Alan L. Stacell; "Incantations for the River Spirit" by Louise Ungelich Hunt; "Mokume" by Corky Stuckenbruck; "The Shadow and the Light" by Dottie Allen; "The Nature of Color" by Mandy Dolittle, text by Rudolf Steiner; "My Will" by Teresa Strong; "Infinite Dream" by Terri Muse; and untitled works by Colleen Oakes and Kathleen Toews.

Other library displays this month include three in Special Collections--William Faulkner, TCU in the Past and Things from the Attic--along with the continuing Annals of Robert Cannon Horn in the Brite Divinity area.

ROTC BEATS A&M IN MILITARY COMPETITION

Nine Army ROTC cadets beat teams from 15 other Texas universities, including A&M, in the Ranger Challenge competition Nov. 7. "I'm extremely pleased that we beat A&M in a military skills competition," said Bruce Stacy, military science chairman. "Ranger Challenge is one of the toughest competitions around."

Among the events performed by each member of the nine-member teams were target shooting, grenade throwing, completing a grenade/obstacle course, assembling a machine gun and rifle, running 10 kilometers with full sack and rifle and constructing and crossing a one-rope bridge. TCU cadets built and crossed the rope bridge in 75 seconds. The next fastest effort, by Texas A&M, took more than two minutes, Bruce said.

The team now proceeds to regional competition in March. Winning team members include team captain Mark Boll, Brian Foley, John Hayhurst, Mike Petty and Gary Balk. Other team members are Dirk Plante, Ward Ferguson, Todd Hodnett and Joel Coleman.

FROGS HOLD NATIONAL RANKINGS

The Horned Frogs held prominent positions in several categories of NCAA national rankings following the game with Texas Tech. Results of the Frog-Longhorn game were too late to be included in this report.

To no one's surprise, Tony Jeffery's efforts have boosted him up the ladder to third spot in individual rushing and eighth in all-purpose yardage with his 160.8 average. He already is the Frogs' leading all-time rusher with 3,583 career yards and leading career scorer with 34 touchdowns. His scoring runs of 82, 81 and 80 yards make him TCU's all-time long-play artist as well as the first SWC back ever to have three or more touchdown carries for more than 80 yards. These are but a few of his records prior to the Austin game.

Falanda Newton was tied last week for third in pass interceptions with a .78 average. In Lubbock he returned an interception 41 yards. He now has 10 career interceptions, which have resulted in 237 yards of return. One more pass theft will put him in a tie for the TCU single-season mark of eight. He also has logged 85 tackles this season alone.

Coming into this season with a 44.3 career kicking average, punter Chris Becker is among the nation's kicking elite. After a 47-yard average performance against the Red Raiders in Lubbock, he ranked seventh on the NCAA punting lists with a season average of 44.6.

As a team, the Frogs were in fifth place in rushing offense at 303.7 yards per game prior to the Texas event.

PULITZER PRIZE WINNER TO LEAD SEMINAR

Pulitzer Prize-winning crime reporter Edna Buchanan of The Miami Herald will conduct a daylong seminar on campus Thursday. Funded by the TCU Research and Lecture Fund, the 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. program in the Student Center is designed for professional journalists as well as journalism students from across the state.

A part of the innovative crime reporting course offered this semester by the journalism department and thought to be the only one of its kind in the nation, the seminar is an outgrowth of the national symposium on the media and crime victims held here a year ago. "We view the upcoming session as a public service from the University for journalism educators, students and practitioners," said course designer and symposium co-founder Tommy Thomason.

Buchanan received the 1986 Pulitzer Prize for general reporting, and her reports on the mass murder of eight persons shotgunned in a Miami welding shop by a deranged schoolteacher won the 1982 Green Eye Shade Award for deadline reporting, given by the Society of Professional Journalists. Miami police credited her with helping solve a series of brutal downtown gang rapes in 1979.

Author of articles for national magazines ranging from Cosmopolitan and Rolling Stone to Family Circle, Buchanan has appeared on CBS Reports in Miami, The Trial That Sparked The Riots, was interviewed on handguns by Phil Donahue on a Today Show segment and by Geraldo Rivera for a 20/20 report on violent crime in Miami.

Buchanan's book entitled "Covering Miami, America's Hottest Beat" was published by Random House last month. She currently is completing a volume, "The Corpse Had a Familiar Face," for Random House.

In spite of years of exposure to the strong language of hookers, cocaine cowboys, police officers and newspaper reporters, her own conversation tends to sound like that of a rather demure secretary circa 1952, according to a feature in the Feb. 17, 1986, New Yorker. The story also noted that "...there are policemen in Miami who say it wouldn't be a murder without her."

Additional information about the seminar is available from Tommy at Ext. 7425.

WIND GROUPS WILL PLAY FRIDAY

Band director Robert Blanton will conduct a Nov. 20 performance by the TCU Chamber Winds, TCU Ensemble and TCU Flute Quartet at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

On the program will be Cave of the Winds by Russell Peck, Fanfare After 17th Century Dances by Donal Michalsky, Overture for Winds by Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, Divertimento in E Flat for Wind Octet by Gordon Jacob, Overture to Gazebo Dances for Band by John Corigliano, Gustav Holst's Hammersmith, Trauersinfonie by Richard Wagner and Toccata Marziale by R. Vaughn Williams.

FITNESS EVALUATIONS, SEMINAR OFFERED

The Employee Fitness Program is offering free physical fitness evaluations and is holding a seminar Thursday entitled "Everything You Wanted to Know About Exercise and Were Afraid to Ask." Scheduled for noon in Rickel Building Room 304, the mini-seminar will feature Gerry Landwer and three graduate students from the physical education department. Participants are invited to bring questions with them.

Fitness evaluations are designed to determine a person's fitness level using a battery of tests to evaluate areas such as muscular strength/endurance, body composition, flexibility and cardiorespiratory fitness. An evaluation takes 30-45 minutes; appointments are available during the noon hour Monday through Friday. Appointments can be made by calling Kim Kells in the physical education department at Ext. 6864.

SWIMMERS BATTLE A&M TO THE WIRE

In what swimming coach Richard Sybesma describes as "one of the best meets ever held on our campus," the Horned Frog teams duelled Texas A&M to the finish. The men's meet was decided on the 400 freestyle relay, which the Aggies won by 2.3 seconds. The final men's score was TCU 51 and A&M 60, and the Lady Frogs earned 38, while their A&M competition finished with 73 points.

"We were really excited to take a team of A&M's caliber down to the wire," Richard said. "It helped all our students to swim in a close meet like this to know what a team effort is all about...it will make us a better team and competitors in the long run. We'll dual A&M again in January, and it should be an equally exciting meet."

First-place finishers were Scott Tobin, 1000 freestyle 9:48.4 and 500 freestyle 4:45.76; Doug Ellis, 50 freestyle 21.4 and 100 freestyle 47.2; Steve Reed, 200 butterfly 1:54.1; and Jeff Taylor, 1- and 3-meter diving. Also in first spot were Deana Livergood, 1- and 3-meter diving, and the 400 freestyle relay composed of Katie Tredenick, Rachael Eason, Cindy McClure and Lori Meyers.

In the Oct. 30 Southwest Conference relays in Houston, the Purple men's team finished in fifth place with 138, and the women's team finished fifth with 144 points. Richard noted that, while "we swam pretty well at the relay, we are not a real strong team depth-wise."

At that meet the Lady Frogs beat SMU for the first time, and the 100 freestyle relay of Tredenick, Cathy Boyd, Barb Schinzing and McClure finished second, which was the highest for TCU in any relay.

20 AUTHORS WILL BE PRESENT FRIDAY

Browsers and shoppers alike will have opportunity to visit with 20 authors Nov. 20 at an autograph extravaganza. Co-sponsored by the University Store and TCU Press, the almost-annual event will be held in the Student Center ballroom from 1 to 3 p.m.

Highlighting the list of authors will be two first novelists from Dallas--TCU alumnus Jane Roberts Wood, author of "The Train to Estelline," and lawyer Paul Coggins, author of "The Lady Is the Tiger." Columnists Jerry Flemmons and Elston Brooks of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram will be present. Joining them will be historians A.C. Greene and John Edward Weems along with other writers, including TCU faculty members with scholarly titles and popular works.

A regular event for several years in the early 1980s, the Autograph Extravaganza is being resumed in response to requests, according to TCU Press Director Judy Alter.

"It's a good opportunity for the TCU community and the public to visit with working authors as well as to purchase autographed books," Alter said, "and the authors particularly enjoy visiting with each other and with book lovers."

ARMY CURRENT AFFAIRS PANEL TO HOLD FORUM

Senior military officers will engage students in a dialogue on national security issues Thursday when the Army War College's Current Affairs Panel visits campus.

The six-member panel will hold the open discussion at 12:30 p.m. in Lecture Hall 1 of the Sid Richardson Building. Rather than championing established policies, the panel invites candid, constructive and educational discussion in an idea-sharing spirit, said Col. Charles Harmon, panel moderator and a faculty member at the Army War College in Carlisle, PA. The other four panel members are students at the college who have expertise in areas including terrorism, nuclear strategy, space, the military and U.S. interests in various regions of the world.

The current affairs panel is an annual program begun in 1969 to encourage a dialogue between the War College and faculty and students in colleges and universities throughout the country. The panel will appear at 20 to 30 campuses during the school year. The panel's Fort Worth visit is sponsored by the department of military science.

JUST A REMINDER...

...to join in Frog Family Fast, send a check, payable to TCU World Hunger, to Libby Proffer at Box 32917 or to University Ministries, Box 32898, by Friday.

...National Review publisher William Rusher debates investigative columnist Dale VanAtta on "The Iran-Contra Affair: The Media and the Presidency" tonight (Tuesday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom. Admission is $1 with TCU ID.

LEW GILLIS BENEFIT IS NOV. 24

A versatile musician who composes, arranges, conducts and performs, former TCU band director Lew Gillis will be the beneficiary when a large aggregation of Fort Worth area musicians assembles in concert Nov. 24. Proceeds of the benefit performance, co-sponsored by TCU and the Fort Worth Symphony, will be used to help defray large medical expenses related to his recent serious illness.

Beginning at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium, the concert brings together the Fort Worth Symphony and Don Edwards, under the direction of John Giordano; the TCU Band, conducted by Bob Blanton and featuring KXAS-TV weatherman Harold Taft as guest soloist; the Harvey Anderson Orchestra, with its big band sounds and guest performer Curly Broyles; former Miss Texas Gloria Gilbert Barron; and Them Bones from Dallas. Tickets, priced at a minimum $10 donation, may be ordered from Lew Gillis Benefit Fund, Box 32887. Checks should be made payable to Lew Gillis Benefit Fund.

Lew is well known as an arranger for the Fort Worth Symphony, Texas Refinery Corporation and Six Flags over Texas and conductor for Miss Texas and Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show rodeo bands. The TCU graduate played trombone in the Horned Frog Band as a student in the late 1940s and served as band director from 1950 to 1955. He also taught at North Texas State University, played trombone with the Fort Worth Symphony, Fort Worth Opera, local and traveling dance bands and has composed and arranged for bands, church choirs and theatres locally and nationally. He has been guest conductor for Bob Hope and Eddy Arnold shows, among others.

Tickets ordered by mail will be held at the door; no tickets will be sent through the mail. Any unsold tickets may be purchased at the door the night of the concert, and sponsors also will gratefully accept donations from persons unable to attend the concert.

GRANNELL TO PLAY FLUTE RECITAL

Janis Grannell will present a flute recital as Monday's TCU Music Series performance at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium. Piano accompanist will be Judy Fisher.

Janis will open the program with J.S. Bach's Sonata in A major and Sonatine by Pierre Sancan. She also will play Medieval Suite by Katherine Hoover, Kassouga by M. Shinohara and Charles-Marie Widor's Suite, Op. 34. The performance will be broadcast live over KTCU-FM, 88.7.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Of 11 TCU singers at the North Texas District Auditions of the National Association of Teachers of Singing Oct. 23-24 at UTA, eight advanced to the final round, and two were first-place winners. Those two, JIMMIE TAYLOR of Kingwood and CHRISTOPHER HANEY of Longview, both students of ARDEN HOPKIN, will perform at the NATS national convention next month in San Antonio. Other finalists, who also may be chosen to perform in master classes at the convention, were DANIEL BAKER of Mesquite, DOUGLAS SPURLIN of Alamogordo, MICHELLE NORMAN of Garland and RAY HERMAN of Fort Worth, all students of the late JOHN LARGE, and DEBORAH POYNER of Garland and DAVID GROGAN of Dallas, students of SHELLA ALLEN.

DAVID VANDERWERKEN (English) presented a paper, "North Dallas Forty Reconsidered," to the South Central Modern Language Association's Play, Game and Literature session at the association's annual meeting Oct. 29-31 in Houston. David also was selected to chair that session for the 1988 meeting.

As a member of the Kansas City Early Music Consort, HARRIET RISK WOLDT (music) performed two concerts with the group in September at the Nelson Art Museum in Kansas City, where she was featured on the solo gamba part of a Telemann concerto. The group will present concerts in London, England, in early January. Harriet also was a guest performer with the Piedmont Players in an Oct. 15 concert at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville and took part in a Byrd Mass for voices and viols at SMU Oct. 30.

BOB FRYE (English) presented a paper entitled "Alice Walker's The Color Purple, Rolando Hinojosa's Dear Rafe, and Rainer Maria Rilke's Letters to a Young Poet: Crossing Cultural Boundaries in the Teaching of Writing" at the annual conference of the Association of General and Liberal Studies Oct. 30 in Cincinnati.

"Crime Victims and the News Media," the 40-page proceedings magazine that came from the department of journalism's symposium on victims and the media last year, was reviewed in the November/December issue of Columbia Journalism Review. The review, written by Gloria Cooper of the CJR staff, commended the conference and the magazine for making a significant contribution to the discussion of the issue. TOMMY THOMASON and ANANTHA BABBILI (journalism) edited the magazine.

LINDA CURRY, GAIL DAVIS, ALICE GAUL and MAISIE KASHKA (nursing) attended the 1987 International Nursing Research Conference in Washington, DC, Oct. 13-16. Gail made a poster presentation on "Theoretical Model of the Chronic Pain Experience." In September, Gail presented a paper on "Development and Testing of the Chronic Pain Experience Instrument" at the 14th annual Nursing Research Conference sponsored by the University of Arizona College of Nursing and Beta Mu chapter of Sigma Theta Tau in Tucson.

Gail and DENISE ZANECCHIA (nursing) were speakers for an Oct. 30 conference, Investigating Nursing Practice, jointly sponsored by Texas Woman's University College of Nursing, Beta Beta chapter of Sigma Theta Tau and the Dallas Veterans Administration Medical Center. Gail's presentation was "Grant Writing," and Denise conducted a session on "Investigating Community Health Practice."

BUSINESS HALL OF FAME HONORS WYSONG

Mike Wysong, now in his second year in the Master of Business Administration program, was honored by the Texas Business Hall of Fame during Oct. 29 ceremonies in Houston. The occasion was the annual awards dinner of the Hall of Fame Foundation, which honors outstanding business leaders from across the state and awards scholarships of $1,000 each to selected graduate business students.

In addition to Mike, TCU was represented at the event at Houston's Hotel Intercontinental by Vice Chancellor Paul Hartman, Dean Kirk Downey, Dave Cravens and Larry Lauer.

Mike, who earned the B.S. in Petroleum Engineering degree at the University of Wyoming in 1985, will complete the M.B.A. with emphasis in finance and decision science in May. Formerly of Lincoln, NE, he was a field engineer with Dresser Industries Inc. in New Mexico before coming to TCU.

Completing his first year of M.B.A. studies as No. 1 in his class, Mike is active in the M.B.A. Association and has been a graduate assistant in the finance and decision sciences department. Formerly a participant in the Educational Investment Fund, he also held an off-campus job as head waiter at Bennigan's Restaurant. Since May he has worked at Burlington Northern Railroad in its electronic data interchange as well as in in-depth database design and implementation. Mike is one of three students chosen as scholarship recipients to work in the Computer Center, where he is a user consultant and conducts personal computer workshops for faculty members.

As an undergraduate, Mike was a member of the Society of Petroleum Engineers and headed that group in 1984-85 and was parliamentarian and engineer senator of the Associated Student Senate at Wyoming. He also held an assistantship there and was president of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

AIR FORCE TO USE TCU IN ROTC ADS

If you notice a camera crew on campus this week, it probably will be the one sent by the Air Force to capture the campus in photographs and videotape to be used in advertising material for Air Force ROTC. Capt. Richard Horton of aerospace studies reports that the Air Force chose TCU and its detachment to illustrate ROTC in promotional materials.
