TCU WILL HONOR UNION PACIFIC CORPORATION

TCU's initial Corporate Partnership Award in recognition of contributions to the advancement of higher education will be presented to Union Pacific Corporation March 24. Hosted by Chancellor Bill Tucker and the board of trustees, the by-invitation occasion will be a black-tie reception and dinner at The Fort Worth Club.

The Corporate Partnership Award, established earlier this year, is designed to give public recognition to corporations that have made significant contributions to the University. It recognizes demonstrated commitment in the areas of civic leadership and involvement, volunteer service, financial support and other pursuits inherent to corporate citizenship. In presenting the award to Union Pacific Corporation, "the University acknowledges its ongoing contributions and encourages deserved public awareness of those contributions," according to Chancellor Tucker. Six companies constitute Union Pacific Corporation. They are Union Pacific Railroad, Union Pacific Resources, Union Pacific Realty, Overnight Transportation, Union Pacific Technologies and United States Pollution Control Inc.

Dr. Tucker will preside at the dinner, and the award will be presented by trustee chairman Bayard Friedman. Remarks will be made by Drew Lewis, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Union Pacific Corporation. He will be introduced by William L. Adams, chairman of Union Pacific Resources Company.

In his present leadership role since 1987, Lewis has been a director of the company since 1986 and served as chairman and chief executive officer of Union Pacific Railroad Company during that year. Prior to joining Union Pacific, he was chairman and chief executive officer of Warner Amex Cable Communications. He was instrumental in the deregulation of the cable television industry.

Lewis was appointed secretary of transportation in 1981 by President Reagan. During two years in that position, he obtained Congressional approval for a gasoline tax, initiated the transfer of Consolidated Rail Corporation to the private sector and restructured national air traffic controller operations.

TCU TO CELEBRATE YUCATAN-MAYAN CULTURE

Many of the principal cultural figures of the Yucatan Peninsula will be on campus March 28-31 for an unusual weeklong program that will immerse TCU in the culture of another land. The Yucatan's rich heritage of Mayan and Spanish influence will be revealed through its art, crafts, music, people, history and current concerns as TCU celebrates Yucatan-Mayan Culture Week.

"One purpose of the week is to show that Mexican culture is varied; not all Mexican musicians are mariachis, and not everyone dresses like the charro," said Don Frischmann of modern languages. The culture of Yucatan varies from central Mexico for several reasons: The peninsula was originally inhabited by the Maya rather than by Aztecs, and until recently it was isolated by rugged land from the Mexican capital. In many ways, the Yucatan is more a part of Central America than North America, explained Don, who coordinated the week.

Yucatan-Mayan Culture Week also will commemorate the 200th anniversary of the birth of Lorenzo de Zavala, a native of Yucatan who became the first vice president of the Republic of Texas.

Events begin March 28 with "Bilingual/Bicultural Education Among the Maya," a lecture and slide presentation by Carlos Amando Dzul Ek, founder and director of the pioneering Doroteo Arango Primary Bilingual School. Dzul Ek has led the struggle in support of Mayan rights to bilingual/bicultural education for more than a decade. The lecture, in Student Center Room 205-6, will begin at 4:30 p.m.

The official proclamation of TCU Yucatan-Mayan Culture Week in Memory of Lorenzo de Zavala and of Fort Worth-Merida Friendship Week will be made at the March 29 Fort Worth City Council meeting at 10 a.m. Guests of the council will be Carlos Ceballos Traconis, mayor of Merida; Alfonso Hiram Garcia, Merida's director of culture; and Jose Adonai Cetina Sierra, director of the Institute of Culture of the State of Yucatan.

"Life and Faces of Today's Maya," a photography exhibit by Humberto Suaste, will be shown March 29 through April 15 at the Student Center Gallery. Hours are 11 a.m.-4 p.m. weekdays, 1-4 p.m. weekends.

An opening fiesta and reception for leading artists and cultural figures from Merida, the capital city of Yucatan, will be held March 29 from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Student Center lounge. Native handicrafts will be on display and offered for sale, with proceeds benefiting the Doroteo Arango Primary School.

A concert of Yucatecan music will be performed March 30 by the acclaimed duo Los Magana. Juan and Rodolfo Magana perform enchanting guitar and vocal pieces native to the Yucatan Peninsula in Mayan and Spanish with explanations in English. The concert will begin at 7 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom.

"Texas, Yucatan and Independence," a lecture by anthropologist/writer Carlos Villanueva, will highlight journalist and statesman de Zavala, the man who bridged Texas and Yucatan. Villanueva's talk will be March 31 at 2 p.m. in the Student Center's Woodson Room.

The final event will be a private one, with Los Magana performing a special concert the morning of April 1 at De Zavala Elementary School in recognition of Texas' Hispanic heritage.

CAMPBELL LECTURES START TOMORROW

Observing the 200th birthday of Alexander Campbell, the Disciples of Christ Historical Society and Brite Divinity School will sponsor a lecture series here tomorrow (Wednesday) and Thursday. The lectures are a part of Brite's annual Charles Jackson Russell and Benjamin Franklin Russell Heritage Lecture series. Local arrangements have been under the direction of Joey Jeter of Brite.

An Irish native, Campbell emigrated to the United States and became, along with his father, Thomas Campbell, a leader in the pioneer American religious movement from which evolved the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), the Christian churches and the Church of Christ.

Tomorrow's lectures will include "In the Spirit of the Prophets: Alexander Campbell as a Social Thinker" by Dr. Robert O. Fife, adjunct professor of history at Johnson Bible College and Emmanuel College, 1:15 p.m., and "Nailed to the Church Door: How Protestant Was Alexander Campbell's Reformation," Dr. Richard L. Harrison Jr., dean of the Disciples Divinity House and associate professor of church history at the Divinity School of Vanderbilt University, 3:15 p.m., both in Robert Carr Chapel, and "Alexander Campbell as an Educator" by Dr. Thomas Olbricht, chairman of the religion division of Pepperdine University, at 7:15 p.m. at Richland Hills Church of Christ.

Scheduled for Thursday in Carr Chapel are "The Gospel as the Power of God: Alexander Campbell and Experimental Religion" by Dr. D. Newell Williams, associate professor of modern and American church history at Christian Theological Seminary, 9 a.m.; "Alexander Campbell as an Advocate of Christian Unity," Dr. William J. Richardson, professor of church history at Emmanuel School of Religion, 10:45 a.m.; and "Alexander Campbell, Child of the Puritans," Dr. T. Dwight Bozeman, associate professor for both the School of Religion and Department of History at the University of Iowa, 1:30 p.m.

The lectures will be published by the historical society and will be available early in 1989.

LIBRARY FRIENDS DINNER IS THURSDAY

"How William Became Known as Shakespeare" will be the title of Dr. Elliot Engel's address to the 16th annual dinner meeting of Friends of the TCU Libraries Thursday. Reservations at $20 per person may be made today (Tuesday) at Ext. 7106.

The dinner, presided over by Friends of the TCU Libraries president Jack Wilson, will be held at Colonial Country Club, beginning with a reception at 6:30 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

Dr. Engel, an English professor at North Carolina State University, is a nationally known speaker whose infectious enthusiasm creates an imaginative and informative presentation. He addressed the Friends group two years ago on "The Dickens Nobody Knows." The Indianapolis native earned the B.A. degree at Indiana University and the M.A. and Ph.D. as a Woodrow Wilson Fellow at UCLA, where he won the Outstanding Teacher Award.

NOTED TEXTILE RESEARCHER TO BE GUEST

Dr. Kitty G. Dickerson, whose research was the stimulus for a $40 million annual textile/apparel industry campaign to promote products "Crafted with Pride in USA," will be a campus guest March 28-31 as Visiting Green Professor in the design and fashion department.

In addition to speaking to classes and meeting with students and faculty members, the head of the University of Missouri's textile and apparel management department will give two free public lectures. "The Difficulty in Managing International Textile and Apparel Trade" will be her topic for a March 29 presentation, beginning at 4 p.m. in Room 306 of the Bass Building. She will discuss "Research That Launched the Crafted with Pride in USA Campaign" on March 30, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in Moudy Building 141N.

Research by Dr. Dickerson also provided the impetus for the federal requirement for country-of-origin labeling on textile/apparel products. Her results were featured in the Congressional Record, and the study has been cited in Congressional committee testimony a number of times. Holder of two degrees from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University and the Ph.D. from St. Louis University, she serves on the educational advisory board of Man-Made Fiber Producers Association. She also is a consultant to the marketing research committee of the Crafted with Pride in USA Council Inc.

In 1985 Dr. Dickerson was presented the research award of the American Home Economics Association Foundation/Man-Made Fiber Producers Association. This honor is the only national research award in the field. Earlier that year she became the first recipient of the Virginia Textile Award of Merit, presented her by then-Gov. Charles Robb on behalf of that state's textile industry. The former Danforth Home Economics Fellow was identified by the Journal of Home Economics as one of the most prolific authors of the decade in 1984. She currently chairs the U.S. Department of Agriculture committee on clothing consumption and distribution.

In the last five years, Dr. Dickerson's publications have included 21 refereed articles, 14 refereed papers in proceedings and seven invited papers in major national/international publications. Since 1982 she has presented more than 30 invited lectures to international, national and regional scholarly, professional, trade and government groups both here and abroad.

Last year Dr. Dickerson was invited to join International Working Group on Textile Geography, which is coordinated from Poland. She has been a visiting lecturer at Purdue and North Dakota State universities as well as the universities of California-Davis, Wisconsin-Stout and Nevada-Reno.

COLLOQUIUM WILL MEET MARCH 28

The Colloquium on Values and Public Policy will meet at 3:15 p.m. March 28 in Student Center Room 218. Guest speaker will be Prof. Timothy O'Neill of Southwestern University, formerly of Wellesley, who will discuss an aspect of his recent work on the use of metaphor in tort law, "Torts in Dollars and 'Sense'." Don Jackson of political science and Ted Klein of philosophy will comment on the paper before the session is opened for general discussion. All interested persons are welcome, said Charles Lockhart of political science.

NEW EQUIPMENT SHEDS LIGHT ON RESEARCH

Researchers in the physics department will be shedding some new light on their studies this year thanks to a $165,000 grant from the W.M. Keck Foundation of Los Angeles. The grant funds the purchase of a spectrophotometer, a sophisticated instrument that reveals chemical properties by measuring the chemical's interaction with light.

By shining light of specific wavelengths on chemicals and then measuring the amount of light absorbed, scientists can learn about atomic energy levels, chemical bonding and other fundamental characteristics. The new equipment increases TCU's capabilities by making available light from the entire spectrum, from ultraviolet through infrared. That ability will strengthen TCU's research in molecular, chemical and fossil fuels physics.

"The acquisition of this instrument will lead to a major expansion of our programs," said physicist Bill Graham, who researches fossil fuels and space-dwelling molecules called free radicals. The device also will stimulate new research involving graduate and undergraduate students as well as faculty.

The spectrophotometer will be installed this summer in the Molecular and Fossil Fuel Physics Laboratories in the Sid Richardson Science Building, where it can be used by numerous researchers for a variety of projects, including the following:

- Free radicals. Fundamental studies of these molecules will help explain how the simple atoms created in the Big Bang evolved into life on earth. Believed to be products of the processes that formed the universe, free radicals are highly unstable on Earth but have life spans of thousands of years in space. Bill, who studied with Nobel Laureate Gerhard Herzberg, leads research in this area.
- Sol-gels. Exploring the production of high quality glasses, coatings, fibers and ceramics from nontraditional materials, called sol-gels, rather than the traditional sand or clay is the object of research by Tadeusz Zerda. Materials science, from developing superconductors to designing plastic cookware, is one of technology's hottest fields.
- Fossil fuels. Focusing primarily on petroleum, tar sands, oil shales and coal, Bill investigates the interactions that strongly influence yields during extraction, conversion, upgrading and refining. Increasing yields and the efficiency of combustion are goals of his research.

RUSSO RECITAL IS MARCH 28

Music of two favorite French 20th Century composers, Maurice Ravel and Francis Poulenc, will be sung by baritone Vincent Russo in a TCU Music Series recital at 8 p.m. March 28 in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Vince will sing Cinq Melodies Populaires Grecques and Don Quichotte a Dulcinee by Ravel and Poulenc's Banalites and Chanson Gaillardes. He will be accompanied on the piano by Judith Martyn Boehm, a TCU graduate.

A graduate of San Francisco State University, Vince also studied at Ecole Normale de Musique in Paris, where he won the Premier Prix. After completing his doctoral studies at the University of California at San Diego, he taught at the International University of Europe in London and at the United States International University before joining the TCU faculty last year.

IZAC NAMED OFFICER OF YEAR

Suzette Izac of aerospace studies has been selected Air Force ROTC Company Grade Officer of the Year for 1987. The award recognizes her outstanding performance in her duties as the detachment's administration officer, adviser to Arnold Air Society and disaster preparedness, safety and test control officer.

Suzette was chosen officer of the quarter for April-June 1987 for her superb work as special adviser to NATCON '87, the national conclave of Arnold Air Society hosted by TCU's Arnold Air squadron and its auxiliary, Angel Flight.

She was honored for her accomplishments during an awards banquet at the 1988 Texas Area Conclave military ball last month.

CONVENTION SCHOLARSHIPS ARE AVAILABLE

Participants in the academic programs at the Republican and Democratic conventions this summer may be eligible for scholarship assistance from the Washington Center. New scholarships, to be awarded on the basis of financial eligibility, have been announced by the center.

Political science chair Gene Alpert, who will serve as academic program director for both convention sessions, said persons interested in taking either course for undergraduate or Master of Liberal Arts credit may contact him at Ext. 7395 about scholarship assistance.

The Democratic session will be July 10-22 in Atlanta, while the Republican convention course will take place Aug. 7-19 in New Orleans. The first national political convention courses were conducted in 1984 after TCU's political science department originated the idea and took it to the Washington Center, which made arrangements to offer the program to the 500 colleges and universities it served. Gene also served as academic supervisor for those programs.

FACULTY/STAFF SPORTS EVENTS SET

For sports enthusiasts among faculty and staff members, several events are on the calendar for March and April. The "Just for the Fun of It" activities, sponsored by the recreational sports department, begin Thursday with bowling.

Entries are due March 25 for an April 1 golf tournament at the Z. Boaz Golf Course. Cost is $10; cart rental is an extra $12.90. Frog Fest will include tournaments in racquetball and tennis on April 16. Entries for those are due April 14. A softball tournament is scheduled April 23, with registrations due April 18.

Additional details are available from recreational sports, Ext. 7945.

TCU IN THE NEWS

Vice Chancellor PAUL HARTMAN was quoted extensively in a story regarding the alternative minimum tax that appeared in the Feb. 17 issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education. The taxation of gifts, a result of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, "has true potential for inhibiting philanthropy," he emphasized.

"When mother leaves home" was the title of the feature in the Star-Telegram EXTRA Feb. 3-4 on LINDA ROME, social work major who has been chosen to be among TCU's interns in Washington in the fall. The 41-year-old wife and mother of two had a number of decisions to make about leaving for a semester.

Journalism chairman JACK RASKOPF was among those pictured in the Star-Telegram EXTRA's coverage of the recent Annual Addy Awards program. He is president of the Fort Worth Ad Club.

Junior MATTHEW GUIDRY was the subject of a feature in the Feb. 10-11 issue of the Star-Telegram's EXTRA. The Houston resident, who has tried both directing and acting, had a major role in the recent production of "Two Gentlemen of Verona."

Athletic Director FRANK WINDEGGER, coach TOM MUELLER and player TRACY SIMIEN were among those quoted in the Star-Telegram story Feb. 13 regarding visits by prospective athletic recruits.

Closing businesses for a day because of severe winter weather does not cause much of an economic loss, STANLEY BLOCK (finance) told the Star-Telegram in a Feb. 12 article beginning on page 1. Most business lost that day would be made up on other days, he said.

The United Press wire service picked up the January Star-Telegram feature on revised nursery rhymes by BARRY PERLMUTTER (family studies), and the article and accompanying photo have appeared in numerous papers throughout Texas. Barry also was contacted by an interested book publisher who saw the article, and a Plano middle school teacher has invited him to speak to her class regarding nursery rhymes.

"First-time author, 75, has two more books in the works" was the Dallas Morning News headline Feb. 25 for the story about John T. Webb, the retired Arlington homebuilder who was motivated to begin writing a few years ago as a result of some writing courses taken through EXTENDED EDUCATION. His first work, "Never on My Knees," was published last year.

The refusal of student publications ad manager LISA BIANCHI to accept Playboy advertising for The Daily Skiff drew the attention of the Star-Telegram and the Dallas Morning News as well as KXAS-TV, WFAA-TV and KDFW-TV and a number of area radio stations.

"At times, it's no laughing matter" was the EXTRA's headline for the story about the recent amateur night for campus comedians. Quoted were student participants JAN SMITH and TODD CAMP.

MORE TCU IN THE NEWS

"Students Beat Stock Market Pros--No Bull" was the headline for D Magazine's story on the Educational Investment Fund that appeared in the March issue. Noting that when the Finance 7193 students speak, "E.F. Hutton ought to be listening," the story quoted EIF students MIKE WYSONG and ANGELA RICE along with STAN BLOCK (business), who helped create the program.

"TCU will use high-tech lab for teaching" was the Star-Telegram EXTRA's headline March 2-3 for the story about the new $42,000 Learning for Pedagogical Studies in Mathematics, Science and Computer Education. KATHLEEN MARTIN (education) described the new facility that will be housed in the Rickel Building.

Faculty and students of the NUTRITION DEPARTMENT were complimented in the Cheers section of the March 5 Star-Telegram for the hours they spent assisting in the Tarrant County Medical Society Auxiliary's booth at the recent local Health Fair. The letter to the paper was written by the auxiliary's nutrition chair, Susan Stevenson.

It was described as a "banana bonanza" by KDFW-TV when that channel covered the "world class" banana split prepared and served by residents of Pete Wright Hall on March 6. Proceeds from the $1-a-person eating spree were designated for the Special Olympics. Attention also was called to the 230-foot-long banana split, for which 100 gallons of ice cream were donated, in Bud Kennedy's March 5 column in the Star-Telegram.

"Look Away, Dixieland" is the headline for the March 7 story in TIME that quoted DAVID LAWRENCE, sophomore physics major from Albuquerque, on Vice President George Bush. The magazine's reporter, Richard Woodbury, recently sat in on journalist ANANTHA BABBILI's Honors colloquia on Nature of Value.

DIRECTOR TO APPEAR WITH HIROSHIMA FILM

Japanese author and director Keij Nakazawa will speak about his film "Barefoot Gen" following its showing tonight (Tuesday) at 7 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom. The animated film is about a small boy's efforts to deal with the aftermath of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima.

Nakazawa, a survivor of the Hiroshima bombing, based the movie on his book "I Saw It"; both the book and movie have been popular successes in Japan. The film was first shown in the United States last week at SMU, whose Southwest Film/Video Archives has made it available for the TCU showing. Programming Council's Forums and Films committees are sponsoring the program. Nakazawa, through an interpreter, will entertain questions after the showing.

SINGING ASSOCIATION HEAD TO LECTURE

Dale Moore of Indiana University, president of the National Association of Teachers of Singing, will be on campus tomorrow (Wednesday) to present a lecture/recital and master class open to the public.

Moore's lecture/recital on the American art song, including works by Aaron Copland, Samuel Barber and Charles Ives, will take place from 10 a.m. to noon in Ed Landreth Auditorium. The master class is scheduled from 1 to 3 p.m. More information is available from Sheila Allen at Ext. 6627.

Moore holds bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Kansas and studied at the Mozarteum in Salzburg on a Fulbright Scholarship. Before becoming professor of music at Indiana University in 1985, he had taught at the College of Wooster, Denison University, Southern Illinois University and the St. Louis Conservatory.

A baritone who has presented nine all-Lieder recitals in New York City, Moore has made 11 solo appearances with the Cleveland Orchestra, including a performance of "The Merry Widow" with Beverly Sills. He also has been a frequent soloist with symphonies in St. Louis, Columbus, Akron, Canton and Wheeling and with the Minnesota Orchestra. Besides presenting a concert at the White House in 1963, Moore has sung recitals for the U.S. Information Agency in Austria.

MILLER SHOW OPENS MARCH 28

Prints and paintings that examine the inner world we all share will be shown March 28 through April 2 by graduate student Richard Miller of Linthicum Heights, MD. The show in Moudy Building Exhibition Hall will begin with a reception from 5 to 8 p.m. March 28 and will be open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and 1-4 p.m. Saturday.

A graduate of Maryland Institute, College of Art, Miller has had work shown at the Baltimore Museum of Industry, Gallery 110 in Baltimore and Club 21 in Fort Worth. He also was represented in a traveling exhibition to the Yellow Mountain School of Painting in the Hon Wi Province of China in 1986 and in this year's juried International Prints II at Silvermine Gallery in Stamford, CT.

At their best, Miller said, his images trigger the imagination and speak to the viewer on a personal level. "It is as if, gazing into a mirror, we come face to face with ourselves. What I find is that dichotomy between beauty and pain. It is like seeing the face of an old friend--the joy of reunion coupled with the sadness of time lost."
