BARRY WILL HOLD NEW LOWDON CHAIR

Dr. Christopher B. Barry, internationally recognized scholar in the discipline of finance, will join the faculty in the fall as initial holder of the Robert and Maria Lowdon Chair of Business Administration. Chosen for the prestigious position following an extensive search, he is known nationally for the management seminars in financial planning and financial analysis he conducts for executives of leading corporations throughout the United States.

A member of the Southern Methodist University faculty since 1981, Dr. Barry is founding director of its Center for the Study of Financial Institutions and Markets. He headed the SMU finance department in 1982-86.

The Georgia Tech alumnus, who holds the Doctor of Business Administration degree from Indiana University, was presented SMU's Research Excellence Award as outstanding researcher in Edwin L. Cox School of Business in 1984. Former president of Micro Data Base Systems Inc., Dr. Barry served as associate professor of finance and associate professor of management at the University of Texas in Austin and the University of Florida, respectively. In 1982 he conducted research in the financial economics group at Bell Laboratories in New Jersey as a visiting scholar.

Frequently a presenter of invited papers at meetings for professional organizations, he has addressed such groups as the American Institute for Decision Sciences, Western Economic Association, Institute of Management Science and the Operations Research Society of America. He has reported on his research to the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis in Austria and the international meeting of the Institute of Management Science in Greece. Dr. Barry's published studies include "Financial Institutions and Markets and the Economic Development of Four Asian Countries," published by the Capital Market Board of Turkey as well as in Nigeria's Security Market Journal.

In addition to seminars for the oil and gas industry and health services, Dr. Barry has conducted short courses on business applications of personal computers for such clients as IBM, Southwestern Bell, Mobile Systems and Texas Power and Light.

Associate editor of Financial Management since 1979 and referee for Journal of Finance as well as other journals, Dr. Barry has been named a Southwest director of the Financial Management Association and chaired the national organization's nominating committee in 1982. He also is active in the Western and American finance associations.

The new Chair in Business Administration is named for Fort Worth residents Robert and Maria Lowdon, whose endowment gift "is typical of the thoughtful, generous ways in which Mr. and Mrs. Lowdon have invested in TCU and its students," said Chancellor Bill Tucker when the gift was announced. Longtime supporters of the University, the donors have made substantial contributions for educational programs, research, construction projects and athletics. Lowdon is board chairman of Stafford-Lowdon Company since 1979 and a Tandy Corporation director. A member of TCU's Class of 1940, he serves on his alma mater's board of trustees. Mrs. Lowdon is a graduate of the University of Texas law school. They are Chancellor Associate members of the Addison and Randolph Clark Society.

BOLLER BACK FROM 21-CITY TOUR

Book promoting gets tougher all the time, emeritus history professor Paul Boller has found. He is just back from his third--and most demanding--book tour for Oxford University Press. In five weeks he visited 21 cities and did scores of radio, newspaper and TV interviews about "Presidential Wives," which completes the trilogy of books about the presidents that began with "Presidential Anecdotes" in 1981 and continued with "Presidential Campaigns" in 1984.

During the April-May tour, Paul usually did four interviews a day, ranging from five minutes to two hours in length and almost around the clock. He was on live TV at 6 a.m. in St. Louis and on Cable News Network at 2 a.m. in Atlanta.

Paul crossed paths with some interesting folks, including former first lady Rosalynn Carter, actor Tom Hulce (Mozart in "Amadeus"), humorist David Owen and novelist Jane Smiley, author of "The Greenlanders." Between interviews he managed to squeeze in reunions with relatives in San Diego, Los Angeles and Minneapolis.

He has been pleased with reviews of "Presidential Wives" by some people who know the subject--including Liz Carpenter, Lady Bird Johnson's former press secretary, who reviewed the book favorably for the Los Angeles Times, and Letitia Baldrige, formerly on Jacqueline Kennedy's White House staff, who praised the book in the Washington Post.

Next month Paul will go to New York to talk to the Oxford University Press staff on what it's like for a writer to go on a book promotion tour. His verdict: "They're fun to look back on."

MAY 31 IS DEADLINE FOR TICKETS

May 31 is the deadline for faculty and staff members to order their football tickets for the 1988 season. Ticket manager Tommy Love calls attention to this earlier-than-usual deadline, which leaves only one more week to renew or to purchase tickets.

Price of tickets for 1988 is unchanged from last season—$25 for one or $50 for two. Purchase price for two season tickets for non-TCU persons is $192 for this fall's six-game home schedule that opens Sept. 17 with Bowling Green.

As in the past, purchase price of season tickets for TCU personnel includes an athletic card for admission to basketball and baseball games. For those not associated with TCU, these season tickets for two would be $160 and $120, respectively.

Tickets must be purchased in person by those who will use them at the ticket office in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Other football home games this fall will be Boston College Sept. 24; Rice on Oct. 8 for Parents Weekend; Baylor, Oct. 22; Texas Tech at Homecoming Nov. 5; and Texas, Nov. 12.

NEWSOM RECEIVES FULBRIGHT GRANT

Doug Newsom has been awarded a Fulbright grant to lecture in India during the fall semester. She and Bob Carrell, former journalism department chairman here and faculty member at the University of Oklahoma, will lecture at Osmania University in Hyderabad.

Invited as a result of papers presented at the August 1986 meeting of the International Association of Mass Communication Research, they are co-authors of two books, "Campaigns" and "Public Relations Writing." Before beginning their lectureships at Osmania University, however, they will make additional appearances and lectures in Europe and India. Initially, Doug will present a paper in July at the IAMCR meeting in Barcelona, Spain.

Doug recently has returned from Australia, where she presented papers on measuring the effectiveness of public relations to the 11th Public Relations World Congress and the Public Relations Institute of Western Australia.

Journalism department chair from 1980 to 1986, Doug also is co-author of "Media Writing," "Writing for Public Relations" and "This Is PR: The Realities of Public Relations." Active in numerous professional organizations, she currently is vice president of Texas Journalism Education Council, vice president of teaching standards committee for Association for Education in Journalism, national chairman of the educator's section of the Public Relations Society of America and president of the Association for Education in Journalism/Mass Communication.

RETIREMENT BUTTERFLIES CAN BE GREAT

It's not unusual to approach retirement with butterflies in your stomach. But Joann Karges, retiring Friday as TCU's collections management librarian, has been surrounded by the fluttering insects this spring, and she couldn't be happier.

A serious amateur lepidopterist (someone who studies butterflies and moths), Joann is the author of "Nabokov's Lepidoptera: Genres and Genera," published by Ardis Press in Michigan three years ago. The late Russian novelist, who startled this nation with the English translation of his pornographic novel "Lolita," had a second career as a lepidopterist, including seven years as a research fellow at the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Harvard University.

Her colleagues in Mary Coats Burnett Library read in a library journal that Nabokov's butterfly collection was to be displayed at the Harvard museum this spring and determined that their retirement gift to her would be an unusual one--a trip to Boston to stay at the Harvard Faculty Club and visit the exhibit. On contacting Harvard, they learned Joann's book had been used by the museum staff for coordinating quotations and specific butterflies as they installed the exhibit. Her happy trip to view the butterflies was enhanced by public recognition at the museum.

Joann earned her undergraduate degree at TCU in French and English, then worked at the New York Public Library for a year before earning the M.A. in English at the UT in Austin and the Master of Library Science degree from the University of Michigan. She worked at Michigan and at the University of Redlands before becoming chief librarian at the American Library in Paris. In 1957 she returned to TCU and the library.

In retirement, Joann intends to pursue her interests in creative writing, photography, researching artist books and small press publications and, yes, Lepidoptera. In other words, she'll keep right on chasing butterflies.

IBA ENCOURAGES KIDS TO "TEAM UP"

Coach Moe Iba plans to catch up on his reading during June, normally vacation time for college basketball coaches. But his time will be filled reading essays he is inviting fourth- through eighth-graders to write as part of his new "Team Up Against Drugs" campaign.

Moe's interest in such a campaign came after he read a study conducted by Weekly Reader magazine which indicated more than a third of students in these grades felt pressure to use alcohol and other drugs. "I am really alarmed how early in life young people are being exposed to drugs," Moe said. "Drugs, including alcohol, are taking a tremendous toll on young people today. We have to start listening to our youngsters and developing a successful plan for drug education and prevention."

To kick off the campaign, Moe invited boys and girls to send him a 200-word essay entitled "One on One--How I Say No To Drugs." Two winners, one boy and one girl, will be selected from each grade. Writers of the winning essays will receive a free week at his boys basketball camp or Fran Garmon's camp for girls. Season tickets for the 1988-89 Horned Frog basketball season will also be given to all winners and their parents. All students entering will receive a complimentary ticket to TCU's season-opening basketball game next fall.

"Everyone entering the contest is going to get something back from me," Iba said. "I want to reward the kids who are saying 'no' and setting a positive example of peer pressure for others."

Due by June 1, entries in the essay contest must include the student's name, address and grade in school and should be sent to "Team Up with Iba," Box 32924, Fort Worth, 76129. Contest winners will be announced in the June 12 issue of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

EXCHANGE CLUB HONORS TRUSTEE

Trustee William Conner was presented the 1988 Golden Deeds Award of the Exchange Club of Fort Worth during a May 12 banquet. The honor is bestowed annually by the club to an individual whose contributions to the community have been outstanding.

Co-founder of Alcon Laboratories and current chairman of the board of Hearing Health Group Inc., Conner also is a director of Tandy Corporation and chairs the advisory board of Huguley Memorial Hospital. He is a member of the Harris Hospital's development council and heads the board of Shale Energy Corporation of America.

Conner, a TCU trustee since 1962 and board chairman in 1974-79, was awarded the honorary Doctor of Laws degree by the University in 1974. He has received numerous honors, including the American Academy of Ophthalmology's Distinguished Public Service Award in 1983. In 1981 he was named business executive of the year and inducted into the Texas Wesleyan College Hall of Fame.

ANN McDERMOTT DIES

Ann Day McDermott, a member of two pioneer Texas families, died at her home May 6. Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery. It has been requested that, instead of flowers, remembrances be sent to the Ann Day Jarvis McDermott Endowment Fund at TCU.

Ann was the daughter of Dan Jarvis, the youngest son of Ida and Col. J.J. Jarvis, early Texas philanthropists. Col. Jarvis chaired the board of trustees of AddRan College, the forerunner of TCU, from 1889 to 1896, when the college was located at Thorp Spring. Jarvis Hall is named for Col. and Mrs. Jarvis.

Dan Jarvis' wife, Ida Van Zandt Jarvis, was the sister of Maj. K.M. Van Zandt and was born in Washington, DC, when her father, Isaac Van Zandt, was in charge of the Texas Legation. Isaac Van Zandt returned home to Texas after annexation in early 1845 and was a delegate to the state constitutional convention, where he and Nicholas H. Darnell wrote the Texas Homestead Law. Van Zandt died in 1847 while running against Sam Houston for governor of the new state. Ida Jarvis was a TCU trustee from 1928 until her death in 1937, during which time her eldest son, Van Zandt Jarvis, was board president.

Ann graduated from Central (now Paschal) High School and came to TCU, where she majored in Spanish and minored in French. Her first job after graduation in 1938 was in the advertising department at Monnig's. She also worked briefly for the U.S. government's Bureau of Censorship soon after the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

She enlisted in the Marines in September 1943 and in 1946 married the Marine recruiter, Jack McDermott, after he returned from overseas. A former newspaper editor and publisher in Lufkin, he joined the U.S. Information Agency after leaving the Marine Corps. The McDermotts lived in Washington, then in London, where she headed the Embassy Wives Speakers Bureau. They were guests at the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II. The couple later lived in Bonn, West Germany, in Mexico City and in San Salvador, where McDermott died.

Ann earned her Master of Library Science degree from NTSU and also did graduate study in archival management at the University of Illinois. She joined Mary Coats Burnett Library's reference department in the late 1960s and became special collections librarian in 1972. She had been retired since 1981. Her brother, Dan Jarvis, taught geology here from 1948 until his death in 1973.

A cat lover, Ann built her own library of cat books, which will be permanently housed in the library's special collections. The collection currently is being displayed there. The exhibition, arranged by Joann Karges, includes "Cats in Story and Legend," "Particular Cats and Particular People" and "The Comic Cat" as well as books illustrated by both Peggy Bishop and Clare Tulley Newberry and other displays of children's cat books and books of cat photographs. The cat books will be on view at least through mid-summer.

GIFTS THROUGH MARCH TOTAL $9,316,807

Gifts to TCU for the fiscal year that began last June 1 totaled $9,316,807 through March. As announced to the trustee development committee by Vice Chancellor Paul Hartman, this total includes:

- $2,273,624 to the Annual Fund for TCU (unrestricted gifts for budget support);
- $1,422,862 for endowment of programs and services plus an additional $210,000 given subject to lifetime income for donors;
- $1,406,685 for campus and facilities.

Alumni gifts for all purposes are ahead of last year's figure at this time by nearly $500,000. Alumni gifts designated for the Annual Fund are up by $37,784 over last year. A total of $442,621 had been earned through the Alumni Trustee Challenge by more than 3,000 alumni who have made first gifts or have increased their gifts over last year.

NEW FACULTY, STAFF APPOINTMENTS

A former lecturer at the University of Zambia, RICHARD HANSON will join the faculty this fall as assistant professor of geology. The former Air Force officer holds two bachelor's and a master's degree from Oklahoma State and the Ph.D. from Columbia University. Most recently an adjunct assistant professor at Ohio State for three years, he is author of studies published in the Geological Society of America Bulletin.

LINDA K. HUGHES, a specialist in British poetry of the 19th Century and in Arthurian literature and art, will join the faculty beginning in the spring of 1989. She is coming to TCU as an associate professor of English from the faculty of Washburn University. The Dodge City, KS, native earned the bachelor's degree from Wichita State University and the master's and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Missouri at Columbia. Her book, "The Manyfaced Glass: Tennyson's Dramatic Monologues," was published last year by Ohio University Press. With the aid of a National Endowment for the Humanities Interpretive Research Grant, she and Dr. Michael Lund of Longwood College in Virginia are completing a book entitled "The Victorian Serial," which examines 19th-Century poetry and fiction first published in installments.

MARGARET McWHORTER, who joined the home economics faculty in 1972, has accepted reappointment as chairman of the design and fashion department for a three-year term.

A member of the speech communication faculty since 1979, BILL JURMA has accepted a three-year appointment as chairman of that department, effective with the opening of the fall semester. He is the author of a number of published studies, including "Communication Specialists and Corporate Challenges," which appeared in 1986 in Vital Speeches.

RAY REMLEY, currently researching how the brain interprets external stimuli, has accepted reappointment as psychology chairman. The three-year term begins in the fall.

TWO STUDENTS ARE TRUMAN SEMIFINALISTS

Two juniors have been named semifinalists in the prestigious Harry S. Truman Scholarship Program for outstanding students who intend to pursue careers in public service.

David Lawrence of Albuquerque, a physics major, went on to be selected as an alternate from his state and will be eligible for the $7,000-per-year scholarship if the original recipient should be unable to pursue studies. David holds the Chancellor's Scholarship. Named a semifinalist from Texas is Amy Drake, nursing major who came to TCU from Troy, IL.

NOTES ON FOLKS

KAY HIGGINS (residential life and orientation), with the assistance of 1987 orientation student advisers JEANETTE HALL, ELENA HICKS, SHANNON MORGAN, MICHAEL WHITEHURST and JOHN WATSON, presented an all-day workshop, "Preparing To Go To College," for the senior class of Country Day School. While Jeanette and Shannon graduated, Elena, Michael and John will be assisting again with this summer's orientation program.

Sympathy is expressed to JIM CORDER (English), whose father, Nolan J. Corder Sr. of Fort Worth, died May 15. Services were held May 18 at Birdville Baptist Church, with burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

On May 13 DAVE EDMUNDS (history) presented a paper entitled "They Will Drive Us into the Lakes: The Aftermath of the Proclamation of 1763" to students and faculty at Dartmouth College. The paper was presented at a symposium that focused on native American sovereignty in law and history and featured speakers from graduate history programs and law schools across the United States and Canada.

NADIA LAHUTSKY (religion-studies) has been accepted to participate in a National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Seminar for College Teachers at the University of Maryland. The seminar, which will provide Nadia with a $3,500 stipend, will be on "The Development of the Modern Scientific Worldview."

It's been a busy few weeks for geologist NOWELL DONOVAN. During spring break he hosted an alumni reunion of his Georoots field excursion to Scotland at the American Association of Petroleum Geologists' national convention in Houston. Subsequently he led an AAPG-sponsored, four-day field trip to examine the southern Oklahoma aulacogen; participants were a mixed group including six Chinese, two Japanese and two West German geologists in addition to U.S. petroleum professionals. Assisting him were colleague JOHN BREYER and graduate students DEBORAH SHELBY and SCOTT WHITE.

On April 28 Nowell gave a talk to the Roswell, NM, Geological Society entitled "Georoots--The Scottish Influence." The next day he led a field trip for the Dallas Geological Society to Oklahoma's Wichita Mountains. May 1 he spoke at Fort Worth's Dan Danciger Community Center on "The Global Environment: Reassessing the Threat." In early May he visited Norman, OK, for a meeting on the Southern Mid Continent-Texas Craton Transect, a project he and geologists KEN MORGAN and DAVID LAMBERT are working on for the Global Geoscience Transect program. The purpose is to publish a cross section of the earth's crust to the mantle from the northern border of Oklahoma south to the Llano uplift in central Texas; the line will pass just to the west of Fort Worth.

Nowell remained in Oklahoma to present a paper, "Structural Styles on the Southern Margin of the Anadarko Basin," at the Oklahoma and U.S. Geological Surveys' Anadarko Symposium. Later that week he gave a paper entitled "The World's Smallest Oil Field" to a group of petroleum geologists in Dallas and the following weekend taught a two-day seminar entitled "Advanced Concepts in Geology" for the Mobil Research Lab in Dallas.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

The U.S. Gymnastics Federation has selected RICHARD FENKER (psychology) to represent the United States as sport psychologist at the Four Continents Rhythmic Competition June 8-11 in Toronto.

LOTTIE SIMPKINS MEADOR, serials cataloger at Mary Coats Burnett Library, presented a paper on "Texas Libraries—One Senator's Contribution" for the annual Texas Library History Colloquium at the LBJ Presidential Library in Austin. The chronology of former U.S. Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough's efforts on behalf of national legislation for library service during the 1960s was the focus of the colloquium. Sen. Yarborough was present and responded to the paper.

Sympathy is expressed to RICHARD LYSIAK (physics) on the death of his wife, Floy LaFae Lysiak, on May 17. A memorial service for Mrs. Lysiak, who was director of research for the Fort Worth Independent School District, was held May 18 at All Saints Episcopal Cathedral. The family has requested that memorials be made to the Memorial Fund at All Saints Episcopal Cathedral or to the American Cancer Society.

STARPOINT OFFERS SUMMER PROGRAM

Children with average to high intelligence who have problems in learning and are falling behind in school are encouraged to enroll in Summer at Starpoint, an intensive five-week summer learning opportunity for children ages 6-12.

Starpoint School offers a full academic program during the school year. The summer program expands upon the regular program by offering the same child-centered, nurturing environment for young people. A multisensory and didactic approach is used, involving group discovery, oral responses, considerable review and written follow-ups.

Applications for Summer at Starpoint, which will run from July 5 to Aug. 4, must be received by June 30. Additional information is available from Laura Lee Crane, program director at Starpoint, and the OEE, Ext. 7134.

STUDENT CENTER STAFF PLANS EVENTS

A number of activities under the heading of "Summertime Fun '88" are scheduled in the coming weeks through the Student Center staff, directed by Larry Markley. The initial event was TCU night at the Ranger vs. Royals game May 16.

For baseball fans, another TCU Night at Ranger Stadium is planned June 4, when the Rangers play the A's. For the occasion, $10 field and mezzanine tickets will be available for $8 at the Student Center information desk.

Other coming events include a May 26 study break from 7 to 8 p.m. in the Student Center; pool party May 30, 5-7 p.m., Rickel Building; study break June 30, 7-8 p.m., Student Center; pool party, July 5 5-7 p.m., Rickel Building; a July 13 surprise at noon in the Student Center; and study break Aug. 4, 7-9 p.m., Student Center.

Billed as a "TCU Company Picnic" is a June 14 event in Sadler-Reed Mall for faculty and staff members, along with their children, and students. Price of the 4:30-7 p.m. schedule of fun, food and games will be $4 each and $1.50 for children. Details on all the summer festivities are available at the information desk.

WRITERS WORKSHOP IS JUNE 11

"The Writing Relationship: Editors and Authors Working Together" is the topic for the 11th annual TCU/Chisholm Trail Writers' Workshop June 11 at the Moudy Building.

The workshop, which has earned a grant from the Texas Committee for the Humanities, will feature author Larry King as keynote speaker. Other speakers will include English chair Fred Erisman; Sally Arteseros, senior editor at Doubleday and Co. Inc.; Ellis Amburn, a TCU graduate who was most recently editorial director of G.P. Putnam's Sons and now is a freelance author; and Robert Flynn, Texas novelist and writer-in-residence at Trinity University.

Designed to encourage authors and aspiring authors to gain an appreciation of the editorial process and an understanding of its importance, the conference is sponsored by TCU Press, Chisholm Trail Round-up Association and the Office of Extended Education. Registration at $25, including luncheon, may be made through Extended Education, Box 32927. An optional post-workshop reception will cost $5.
