NEW MBA PROGRAM SET FOR FALL

"Only serious seekers of Master of Business Administration degrees need apply" is the message TCU wants to get across to prospective students regarding implementation of a new M.B.A. curriculum that will begin in the fall.

In a review of the existing program, it was compared to others across the nation, according to graduate program director Tom Badgett. Two different types were found. The first--most prevalent in the Northeast, Midwest and on the West Coast--concentrates heavily on a strong core of classes. "The concept is that the M.B.A. program should be structured like a law school with most of the students taking essentially the same thing," Tom said.

The second type, most commonly found in the South and Southeast, offers a large number of electives with the core set up mainly to satisfy the accreditation requirements of the American Assembly of Collegiate School of Business.

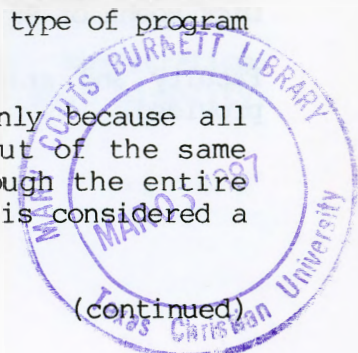

Tom described TCU's current program as "a strong hybrid" with a basic core of 33 hours and a large number of electives to make a 57-hour degree program. The thinking of many in the business school was that this type of rigorous graduate work was unreasonable for a two-year degree. The requirements have been more defined and streamlined for a new 48-hour degree program.

In addition, persons now applying to the M.B.A. degree program will be admitted only in the fall. They also will be required to take two courses each semester and one in the summer in order to graduate in two years.

A review of the M.B.A. curriculum began in part because many of the major companies now recruiting are looking more closely at the structure of a particular program and are starting to equate quality with the type of program offered.

"I believe the changes will make our program stronger, mainly because all those who graduate with M.B.A. degrees will be singing out of the same hymnbook," Tom said. "As it is now, a person can go through the entire program and not take, for example, a finance course." That is considered a fundamental weakness in the current program, he said.

Starting this fall, all students entering the program will be required to take the same specified core of classes. Administrators believe this change will improve comparability among students, making it possible to evaluate each student on an equal basis.

The M.B.A. degree program, inaugurated into the business school in 1938, was the second in the state to be accredited, receiving recognition from the AACSB in 1966. Presently 248 students are enrolled in the Neeley School's M.B.A. degree program, representing about a quarter of all graduate students. While the majority of these hold undergraduate degrees from Texas colleges, 32 percent are from schools outside the state and about 10 percent come from international schools.

SENIORS ARE FIRST TO EARN GRADUATE AWARDS

Seniors Jayme Jones and Paul Warren are the first TCU students to be awarded full tuition scholarships for graduate study through the Army Fellowship Program. Only ROTC and West Point cadets ranked in the top 5 percent nationally qualify for the awards, which are granted after the awardees finish their initial assignments as Army officers, said Lt. Col. Bruce Stacy, military science chairperson.

Paul, an economics major, served as battalion commander last semester, and Jayme, a business administration major, is this semester's top ranking cadet. Both are Fort Worth residents.

LUNCHEON GROUP MEETS FRIDAY

Jim Farrar of religion-studies will be presenter at Friday's Luncheon Reflection group at noon in Student Center 205-6. His talk will deal with "How does God lead us through the collisions of our moral categories with our life experience? For example, what does a Christian do when the biblical injunction 'Turn the other cheek' collides with the response of national defense in time of war?"

On March 20 the group will hear Andrew Reding, a hemispheric affairs analyst and a fellow of the World Policy Institute, discuss "Central American Christianity: The Gospel According to Whom?" The March 27 speaker will be Dick Hoehn of Brite, whose topic will be "The Church and Homosexuality."

Faculty and staff are invited to bring a sack lunch. Coffee and tea are provided.

"DUSTER" INTRODUCES NEW SERIES

With the publication of "Duster," a novel by Frank Roderus, the TCU Press introduces the new name of Chaparral Books for its series of young adult novels.

Like its predecessor Sundance Books, this series will include well-written, historically accurate works of handsome design. Both originals and reprints with Texas settings, they are intended for readers age 10 and above. The new series will be distinguished by a roadrunner logo.

"Duster" is the story of Douglas "Duster" Dorwood, who at almost 16 sets out from the brush country of South Texas on his first trail drive. His direction is not north to the Kansas beef markets but east to Rockport and hide and tallow factories. The Civil War is barely over, and Duster's job is supposed to earn him enough to pay the Reconstruction taxes on the family homestead.

In his own South Texas dialect, Duster tells the story of his adventures and his education, from swimming cattle across a deep river--he ends up riding a recalcitrant steer--to the etiquette of feeding the cook's fire. Young and likable, Duster is inexperienced but totally honest about everything, from his first cigarette to his sense of unreality in the face of imminent death.

Published in 1977, "Duster" was the first novel by Roderus. That year it was a finalist for the Spur Award from Western Writers of America. The author now lives in Colorado.

TCU Press books are available in the bookstore.

WOMEN AS LEADERS SYMPOSIUM OPEN

Women as Leaders, billed as the third annual symposium for aspiring professionals taught by seasoned professionals, will be held May 17-30 in Washington under the auspices of The Washington Center. The symposium may be taken for credit.

Speakers will include Margaret Adams, national affairs editor of Good Housekeeping and president of the National Council of Women USA; Patricia Bailly, commissioner, Federal Trade Commission; Mary Louise Smith, former Republican National Committee chairwoman and former vice chair, U.S. Commission on Civil Rights; Lynette Spano Vives, president, Software Control International Inc.; and Wilma L. Vaught, retired Air Force brigadier general.

Gene Alpert of political science has symposium applications. Registration deadline with The Washington Center is April 15, and Gene says minority scholarships are available for as much as $500.

JANUARY GIFTS TOTAL $776,651

Gifts to the University during January totaled $776,651, according to Vice Chancellor Paul Hartman's Feb. 17 report to the trustee development committee. The total includes:

- $132,226 to the Annual Fund;
- $19,743 in currently expendable restricted gifts;
- $359,380 for endowed programs and services;
- $265,301 for building projects.

The fiscal-year-to-date Annual Fund total is $1,873,528, which is down $74,000 from last year at the same time. Most of the shortfall, the report noted, is in gifts from corporations and foundations. Alumni gifts to the Annual fund are up more than $60,000 over last year.

More than 500 student volunteers participating in the national phonathon had raised $145,901 in pledges by Feb. 16. The effort, which ended last week, had a goal of $225,000. Final figures have not been tallied.

100 PERCENT PASS CERTIFICATION EXAM

All social work seniors and graduates from last year who took the state's first certification exam passed, according to the Texas Department of Human Services. Statewide, 86 percent of those who took the test passed it.

In addition to their perfect passing record, TCU seniors and graduates also outscored the state average. While the average score of those passing was 78 percent, the average for TCU applicants was 88 percent. The newly instituted exam was open to recent graduates and current seniors.

"I am very pleased that the hard work and enthusiasm of our students and graduates have been reflected in the exam results," said Art Berliner, social work director. "We have a fine student group and a competent faculty; that combination has paid off."

TRUSTEE RECEIVES LINZ AWARD

Trustee-alumnus Rodger Meier of Dallas was chosen by a panel of civic and business leaders to receive the 58th annual Linz Award. Sponsored by Linz Brothers Jewelers and The Dallas Morning News, Dallas' most prestigious award is given annually to the individual whose volunteer civic or humanitarian efforts have created the greatest benefit for Dallas during the previous year. He was publicly honored Feb. 24.

Meier, past president of the Salesmanship Club and Dallas County New Car Dealers, is noted for his efforts on behalf of health, education and underprivileged children. Among his most recent endeavors have been chairing the Dallas/Fort Worth Chaplaincy Board and working to raise money for the Chaplaincy Service and Chapel in D/FW airport terminals. His chairmanships have included the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, Lasso Club, American Cancer Society, D/FW Airport Board and National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Recipient of numerous awards for his achievements as chairman of Rodger Meier Cadillac, he has been honored as TCU's most valuable alumnus, Dallas Father of the Year and with the National Conference of Christians and Jews Brotherhood and Humanitarian Award. His newest honor was announced in a story and full-page ad in the Feb. 25 Dallas Morning News.

TWO ALUMNAE ARE ROTARY WINNERS

Two TCU graduates--Holly Marshall '85 and Suzy McAuliffe '82--have been selected for Rotary International Scholarships. The young women also share a mutual home town--Corpus Christi--and the same high school--Richard King.

Holly, an English major who won the Boller Award in 1985 for outstanding presenter of a senior honors project, has been assigned to Deakin University in Geelong, Australia, near Melbourne. She had been attending graduate school at the University of North Carolina.

Suzy, a journalism major and former Skiff editor, has been a feature writer at the San Angelo Standard-Times and a contributing editor to San Angelo magazine. She currently is on the editorial staff of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

RECORDS ABOUND IN CAGERS' SWC TITLE

Numerous entries for Horned Frog athletic history books are included in the cagers' 10th Southwest Conference title, which was achieved with the 70-54 defeat of the Texas Longhorns Feb. 18. This year's title is the eighth outright in TCU's 74-year basketball history.

Ranked No. 15 by the Associated Press last week, the team closed out its home season Feb. 25 with a loss to the University of Houston. Prior to that game, the school record of home court wins stood at 24 games, with the last loss home recorded March 2, 1985, to Texas Tech. The 84-65 defeat by Houston made this season a 10-1 at home. The school's record 24-game home court winning streak is the fourth longest in Division I basketball. Overall TCU has won 184 of the 318 games in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum since it opened in December 1961.

TCU, which has won or shared four of the last six SWC crowns earned by private schools, broke the modern school record for most conference wins in a single season with the Longhorn defeat.

History books show that the first Purple team was 15-4 against conference opponents in 1913-14. In both 1985-86 and 1958-59 seasons, the Frogs' season included a dozen SWC victories. This season's 13th win in regular season play broke the modern day school record for most conference wins in a single season.

This year's team is the third to produce 20-victory seasons for Coach Jim Killingsworth in his last five years. Prior to his assuming the head position eight years ago, TCU had only two such seasons in its cage history.

With the season's final game still to be played at this writing, several Frogs were approaching all-time records. These will be noted later.

KTCU-FM FEATURES CLASSICAL MUSIC SUNDAY

Classical music selections on KTCU-FM, 88.7, will begin at 1 p.m. Sunday with the New York Philharmonic playing Corigliano's Fantasia on Ostinato, Bartok's Violin Concerto No. 2 and Brahms' Symphony No. 1. Starting at 3 p.m., the San Francisco Symphony will perform Schoenberg: Transfigured Night; Ravel: Piano Concerto in G; and Dvorak: New World Symphony.

The Philadelphia Orchestra, beginning at 5:30 p.m., will feature Druckman: Aureole; Mozart: Adagio in E; Panufnik: Violin Concerto; and Brahms: Symphony No. 2. At 7:30 the Chicago Symphony Orchestra will play Faure: Incidental Music to "Pelleas et Melisande"; Ravel: Concerto for Piano in G major; and Copland: Symphony No. 5.

RUSSO TO SING MARCH 16

Vincent Russo, a recent addition to the music faculty, will present a solo TCU Music Series recital at 8 p.m. March 16 in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Vincent, who earned the Ph.D. from the University of California at San Diego, received the Most Promising Young Singer Award in Metropolitan Opera Auditions in San Francisco and has won California-Western National Association of Teachers of Singing Auditions, a Wooley Award for study in Paris and the Huntington-Beebe Award. He was selected for the Santa Fe Opera Apprentice Artist Program and has sung with both the Los Angeles and San Diego opera companies.

Vincent's TCU recital program will include Handel's Cantata: Dallas guerra amorosa, Morike Lieder by Hugo Wolf, five songs by Marie Eugene Duparc, and three songs of war by Charles Ives, Tom Sails Away, He is there! and In Flanders Fields.

FACULTY, STAFF GIFTS TOTAL $59,093

An important part of last fall's successful TCU/Tarrant County campaign for the Annual Fund was made up of contributions from faculty and staff members. Previously unidentified from the overall figure, these gifts and pledges totaled $59,093.

"The financial support from faculty and staff members reflects the University community's continued commitment to TCU," said history professor Dave Edmunds, who chaired the faculty/staff division.

CADETS FINISH SECOND AT RANGER CHALLENGE

Army ROTC's nine-member team finished second among 17 university teams at the state's first Ranger Challenge competition Feb. 21, said Lt. Col. Bruce Stacy of military science. They will enter regional competition March 28-29 at Fort Riley, KS, along with the state winner, Texas A&M.

The regional competition will pit eight teams against one another in military skills events, including two new categories--orienteering and a night patrol that will involve both reconnaissance and combat. TCU's team members include commander Sam Houston and Greg Wilson of Fort Worth, Ian Lyles of Azle and John Hayhurst of Amarillo. Other team members are Mark Boll of San Antonio, Mark Kalmbacher of El Paso, Charles Rolling of Austin, Jon Howerton of Leesville, LA, and Jonathan Westbrook of Atherton, CA.

NOTES ON FOLKS

DAVE EDMUNDS (history) is new chairman of the Western History Association nominating committee. He was elected at the committee's annual meeting in Phoenix in early February.

MORRISON WONG (sociology) has been appointed to serve as the Texas representative to the membership committee of the Southern Sociological Society. He is charged with trying to maintain and, if possible, increase membership in the society among sociologists in Texas.

A research paper by ANANTHA BABBILI (journalism) titled "Human Rights and International Communication: An Exploration of Legal Imperatives" was presented to the fourth annual International Communication Conference on Latin America and the Caribbean held at the University of Miami, Coral Gables, FL, Feb. 5-6.

DON JACKSON (political science) spoke on "President Reagan's Foreign Policy--Does It Violate the Constitution?" before the Great Decisions Discussion Group of the Dan Danciger Jewish Community Center Feb. 8.

Don and DENG XIN PING (business) spoke on recent developments in the People's Republic of China at the February meeting of the Fort Worth chapter of the Brandeis University National Women's Committee.

On Feb. 12 FRED ERISMAN (English) spoke before the AAUW (Arlington branch) Book Collectors' Group on "Tom Swift and His Friends."

MARK THISTLETHWAITE (art and art history) recently presented a lecture to the Bayou Bend Docent Organization at the Houston Museum of Fine Arts. His topic was the success and failure of history painting in 19th-century America.

"Evidence That the World Exists," a poem by JIM CORDER (English), has been accepted for publication by The Concho Review.

An essay by WALTER NAFF (Brite) has been accepted for publication in the next issue of Biblical Literacy Today, quarterly journal of the Institute for Biblical Literacy. An earlier article by Walter, published in The Disciple, was quoted in the winter issue of Biblical Literacy Today.

JOHN TOULIATOS (family studies and home economics) and ARNOLD BARKMAN (accounting) recently published two articles, "The Accountant Stereotype: An Update for Vocational Counselors," in The Career Development Quarterly (December 1986) and "Females and Males in Accounting: A Profile" in the Government Accountants Journal (Winter 1987). Other co-authors were Art Bedeian of LSU and Kevin Mossholder of Auburn University.

ODETTE BRUNEAU and KIP SULLIVAN (education) presented their research Feb. 17 at the recent conference of the Association of Teacher Educators in Houston. Their paper, entitled "Changing Attitudes of Teachers," represented their work examining teacher attitudes on self-concepts, professionalism, evaluation and reform requirements.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

The second annual Oreon E. Scott Ethical Issues Lectures were given at Jarvis Christian College last week by JESSE TRUVILLION (minority student minister and adjunct in Brite).

On Feb. 17 LYNDA DAVIS (management information systems) and TOM NUTE (computer science) presented a talk on "Educational Opportunities at TCU" to the Greater Fort Worth Chapter of IBM 34/36 Users Group. Tom discussed the Bachelor of Science in Computer Science degree and Lynda focused on the continuing education program and the Master of Software Design and Development degree offered here.

The national publication Pan Pipes, issued by Sigma Alpha Iota music sorority, used a picture and an account of recent musical activities of RALPH GUENTHER, (emeritus music) in its recent winter issue. This issue is traditionally devoted to the contemporary American composer and Ralph has been included in the publication regularly since 1957.

The lead article in the 1986 Bronte Newsletter is an essay by KEITH ODOM (English) entitled "Caught in the Brontes' Web of Childhood." The newsletter is a publication of the Bronte Society in North America.

Food Bank of Tarrant County enjoyed overwhelming success with its fifth annual Canned Food Drive, which football coach JIM WACKER served as honorary chairman. The drive collected 232,600 pounds of cans, more than two and a half times its 80,000-pound goal. Other TCU participants included HORNED FROG FOOTBALL TEAM members, who took part in the opening kick-the-can races; SUPER FROG, who helped award prizes to race winners; and ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY.

MICHAEL KNAPP (accounting) is co-author with Bart H. Ward of the University of Oklahoma of an article entitled "An Integrative Analysis of Audit Conflict: Sources, Consequences and Resolution" in Volume 4, 1987, of Advances in Accounting. For its upcoming July issue, Accounting Review has accepted his work on "An Empirical Study of Audit Committee Support for Auditors Involved in Technical Disputes with Client Management."

Historian DON WORCESTER is receiving accolades for his book, "The Spanish Mustang: From the Plains of Andalusia to the Prairies of Texas," recently released by Texas Western Press. In the book he traces the spread of the mustang among Indian tribes and then to Anglos.

A good part of the TCU music department took part in the Texas Music Educators Association convention in San Antonio Feb. 12-14. In addition to a performance by CURT WILSON's jazz ensemble, SHEILA ALLEN and CYNTHIA FOLIO presented a recital with DAVID YEOMANS on piano.

Serving as judges on the all-state audition committees were Cynthia (flute), NOAH KNEPPER (bassoon), KERRY HUGHES (trumpet) and JEFF COX (violin). RUTH WHITLOCK chaired a session, and BOB BLANTON received an award for conducting an honor band. Also attending the convention were CANDLER SCHAFFER, FRANK BROWN, STEVEN MOSER, RON SHIREY and a number of TCU students.
