ERIGHTON BEACH' OPENS APRIL 21

Weil Simon has said he wrote "Brighton Beach Memoirs," the start of his autobiographical trilogy, because "I felt like writing about a time when I was probably, and I think all of us are, the happiest in our lives—before the soligations start in."

Simon's portrait of himself as a teen-ager in lower-middle class Brooklyn in 1937 will be staged by Theatre TCU at 8 p.m. April 21-25 and at 2 p.m. April 26 in University Theatre. Reservations may be made by calling Ext. 7626.

Randal Berger, junior from Edina, MN, portrays Eugene Jerome (the young Neil Simon), the narrator and central character whose mind is filled with strong fantasies about baseball and dimmer fantasies about girls.

"Brighton Beach" tells of only a few days in a struggling Jewish household headed by the hard-working father, Jack Jerome, played by Tim Wilkendorf Fort Worth, and sharp-tongued mother Kate (Lauren Halyard of Richland Hills). There are also Eugene's older and more experienced brother Stanley (Matt Guidry of Houston), his widowed Aunt Blanche (Karen Kunkle of Laurel, MD) and her two daughters, played by Marika Hazelbaker of Lake St. Louis, MO, and Trina Simon of Deer Park.

As Eugene's father says, "If you didn't have a problem, you wouldn't live in this house." Two of the residents have heart disease, another asthma. Two at least temporarily lose jobs needed to keep the family afloat. Yet Simon deftly mixed comedy with the drama to such an extent that some Broadway critics described "Brighton Beach" as his funniest play yet.

APRIL 22 EVENT TO HONOR CAGERS

A public tribute to Coach Jim Killingsworth and his 1987 Frog cagers will be held at 6:15 p.m. April 22 in Roundup Inn in the Will Rogers Exhibition Center.

The program will feature a tribute to Jim, who is closing out his coaching career as the 1987 Southwest Conference Coach of the Year. Salutes will be given to Carven Holcombe, the unanimous SWC and District VI choice for Player of the Year, along with standouts Larry Richard, Jamie Dixon and Carl Lott. Other players also will be recognized for their participation in one of the most successful teams in TCU cage history, a nationally ranked squad that was a repeat SWC champion. A highlight tape feature of the Frogs' 24-7 season will be shown.

Due by April 20, the $20 per person reservations are available at the athletic ticket office. No tickets will be sold at the door. Jim and his team were honored April 4 at a special TCU Day event at Hulen Mall.

TEACHER PROSPECTS GET THEIR DAY THURSDAY

Applying for teaching positions in this area may be the smoothest operation the profession has ever seen, thanks largely to the efforts of Dale Young, placement director for the School of Education. Dale and his peers at TWU and MISU have set up teacher interview days this week in Fort Worth and Denton that are attracting representatives of the state's top school districts.

Interviewers from 32 school districts will fill just about every nook in the Student Center from 9:30 Thursday morning to 4:30 that afternoon, giving TCU penior education majors a chance to interview for teaching jobs from Amarillo to Houston, El Paso to the Metroplex.

In this way the education majors, who are practice-teaching all over the area, will have to spend only one day in this interview process. In the past, when school districts came here one at a time, some students have had to take off from their teaching 20 or more times for appointments.

The school districts are as happy about the new set-up as the schools are, Dale said. The recruiters will be at TWU today (Tuesday), at NTSU tomorrow and here Thursday, making many times the usual contacts with one trip.

SENIOR ART SHOW IS APRIL 20-25

Four senior studio art majors will show paintings, prints and sculpture April 20-25 in Moudy Building Exhibition Hall. The showing is from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday. Works on view will be by Jo-Ann Mulroy and Kathy Webster of Fort Worth, Michael J. Magoto of Russia, OH, and Georgeann Shafer of Dallas.

STUDENTS ORGANIZE NATIONAL CONCLAVE

After more than a year of planning, organizing and coordinating, a group of TCU students will be seeing the fruits of their labors this weekend as they host 1,300 college students in Dallas for the National Conclave for Argel Flight and Arnold Air Society.

The two Air Force ROTC-related groups meet annually to outline a nationwide community service campaign, select officers and learn about military life after college. The TCU chapters won the right to host the April 17-21 event by developing an agenda that includes a military ball, a Roaring '20s theme party at Union Station and a participatory rodeo and western barbecue at Circle R Ranch.

Student co-chairs of the conclave are Angela Power, senior mathematics major from Lawton, OK, and Gretchen Thomas, senior political science major from Denver. For more than a year they have been attending to details as small as obtaining paper for photocopying to arranging transportation for speakers and special guests to staging a banquet and ball. Assisting them have been Michael von Hoffman, psychology major from Blooming Grove; Deborah Vuillemot, nursing major from Fort Worth; Alissa Mulqueen, political science major from Fairfax, VA; and Dan Hunt, sophomore from Fort Worth. Capt. Suzette Izac of aerospace studies has served as the students' adviser.

TCU HOSTS CHEROKEE CHIEF APRIL 21

Wilma P. Mankiller, first woman to serve as principal chief of the Cherokee Nation, will be a TCU Forums lecturer April 21. Her talk, "The Future of the Cherokee Nation," will begin at 5 p.m. in Student Center ballroom.

Noted as a staunch advocate for rural Cherokees, Mankiller also is president of the Inter-Tribal Council of The Five Civilized Tribes and of the Arkansas Riverbed Authority. Before her election as deputy principal chief, then as principal chief, she founded and managed the multi-million dollar Cherokee Nation Community Development Department. Mankiller helped to secure funding for such projects as Bell, OK, a small Cherokee community that volunteered its time for the construction of a 26-mile waterline. The Bell Project has become the model self-help project for Indian tribes and the federal government.

Mankiller also secured grants to fund current Cherokee programs in home health and home maintenance. She is a member of the board of directors for the Women of Indian Nations, a political action committee. She represents the tribe in the National Tribal Chairman's Association and is a member of the Native American Indian Women's Association and the National Organization of Native American Women.

22 ARE KAPPA TAU ALPHA INITIATES

Twenty-two students were initiated into the journalism honor society of Kappa Tau Alpha during the department's annual Honors banquet held April 7. Current members of the organization were recognized during the event for which news director Joe Holstead of WBAP Radio was guest speaker.

Initiates include Jennifer Snyder, Stephanie Lathouras, Frances Melanie Strake, John Paschal, Michelle Michaud, Kenneth Curtis, Melissa Howell, Dina Rosen, Francesca Taylor and Amy Shoemaker. Others are Steven Roth, Katherine Pitner, Leslie Custer, Susana Goepfert, Carol Clover, Todd Camp, Tracie Tempel, Howard Pena, Kristin Temte, Elizabeth Woods, Stephanie Hyatt and Rebecca Allison.

A recognition award to Dean of Students Libby Proffer cited her as "outstanding leader, teacher and friend to students and faculty." Introduced by chairman Jack Raskopf as "probably the most misquoted person on campus," she noted that she first came to TCU as a member of the journalism faculty.

Other honors presented include the Lynn Swann Haag Memorial Award to Wendi Hayes; Scripps-Howard honors shared by Francesca Taylor and Todd Camp; Steve Pierenger Award to Susana Goepfert; William Randolph Hearst honor to Sherry Yvonne Webb; and Dan Jenkins Sportswriting Scholarship to John Paschal.

MARJORIE LEWIS IS HONORS PROF

Students in the Honors Program have elected a Shakespearean specialist as their Professor of the Year for 1987. The award to Marjorie Lewis, associate professor of English and a member of the TCU faculty since 1965, was announced at Honors Convocation Thursday in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

A graduate of Texas State College for Women (now Texas Woman's University) who holds the master's degree in history from the University of North Carolina as well as a master's in English from TCU, Marjorie earned her doctorate at the University of Kansas.

Marjorie has been president, vice president and executive secretary-treasurer of the South Central Renaissance Society as well as secretary and Division I chairperson of the South Central Modern Language Association. She has been a delegate to the Renaissance Society of America and a contributing author for the University of Mississippi Writers' Conference.

Advisory editor to Allegorica and associate editor of Explorations in Renaissance Culture, Marjorie has had work published in the Shakespeare Newsletter and the New Mexico Quarterly and has read a number of her papers at South Central Renaissance Society meetings.

At the Honors banquet, ties for both Sigma Xi and Phi Beta Kappa awards resulted in four presentations—Sigma Xi honors to Hiram S. Jackson of Arlington and Ann E. Moran of Fort Worth, Phi Beta Kappa honors to Michelle Cook of Houston and Catherine Craft of Fort Worth. The Boller Award for outstanding presentation of a senior Honors project went to Bruce Capehart of Arlington, whose biochemistry project was entitled "The Structural Determination of the Product of 3,4-Didehydropyridine and Cyclopentadiene."

Named to Phi Beta Kappa were juniors Duane Bidwell of Urbana, IL; Sarah Carlson of Edina, MN; Revathi Venkatappan of Fort Worth; and James Wilson of Mission Viejo, CA, as well as seniors Janine Breyel of Coppell; David Cobb, Lexington, KY; Suzanne Copeland, Fort Worth; Debbie Dungan, Overland Park, KS; Karen Hoehn, Fort Worth; Barry Lewis, Oklahoma City; Suzanne Loeffelholz, Kansas City, MO; Kathleen McAchran, St. Louis; Ann Moran; Nancy Schmuhl, Monroe, CT; and Harry Weitzel of Beaumont. Graduates elected to the liberal arts honor society were Diane Bohlcke, Richardson; John Dungan, Overland Park; Sandy Luera, Dallas; Jennifer Mearns, Aledo; Karen Nelson, Richardson; and Jennifer Smith, Fort Worth.

NOTES ON FOLKS

On April 1 ARDEN HOPKIN (music) presented a lecture recital, "Shakespeare in Song," for the Fort Worth Woman's Club at the invitation of the Ladies of Shakespeare Society. He was assisted by TCU graduates CARL JOHNSON and KAREN FONTENOT-ERNEST. The program included songs from the original productions of Shakespeare's plays, plus songs composed by Burcell, Thomas Arne and other English composers.

Arden and CYNTHIA FOLIO (music) performed Friday with the Latin American music consort Amistad at Fort Worth's Main Street Festival. Amistad also is presenting a program today (Tuesday) at the Dallas Public Library.

TCU voice students under the direction of Arden, SHEILA ALLEN and JOHN LARGE presented a program of German vocal chamber music Friday for the annual meeting of the Texas Association of Schools of Music in Dallas. The program also had been performed earlier for TCU's student recital hour and on March 30 at a special program at TCJC-South.

DAVE CRAVENS (business) will be a featured speaker at the Marketing Strategies for Growth Symposium in Tulsa tomorrow sponsored by Oklahoma industry, OSU, OU and University of Tulsa. He will discuss "Growth Through Strategic Marketing Advantage."

Reviews of DONNA EDWARDS' (music) new piano music publications were published in the January-February issue of the American Music Teacher Journal.

NANCY SAYNER (nursing) has been selected to present a special session at the American Association of Neuroscience Nurses Annual Convention in Dallas May 7. Her presentation will be "Methodological Options: Quantitative-Qualitative Research."

STANLEY BLOCK (business) and Tim Gallagher have received notice that their work on "The Use of Interest Rate Futures and Options by Corporate Financial Managers" will appear in the Strategic Paper Series of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

GARY TATE and FRED ERISMAN (English) attended the MLA Conference on The Future of Doctoral Studies in English April 2-5 in Minneapolis. Funded by the Ford Foundation, the conference assembled chairmen of doctoral programs in English from throughout the country to consider the present state and possible future of the doctorate. Fred went as representative of the TCU program; Gary went at the invitation of the Modern Language Association to report on his recently completed survey of graduate programs in rhetoric and composition.

Band director BOB BLANTON has been invited into membership in the American Bandmasters Association. One of only 10 or 12 invited each year, he joins the brotherhood of about 200 of the professional and college band leaders in the U.S. The organization lists as its early members John Philip Sousa, Edwin Franko Goldman, Herbert L. Clarke, Frank Simon, Henry Fillmore, Karl King, Wm. D. Revelli, Wm. F. Santelmann, and every top band leader since their time.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

Bob and assistant band director STEVEN MOSER recently attended the national meeting in Chicago of the College Band Directors National Association. TCU will host the regional meeting of that group next February.

PAUL KING and RALPH BEHNKE (speech communication) have had their article entitled "Computer Comment Files and Writing Evaluation" published in the current issue of Journal of Technical Writing and Communication.

Sympathy is extended to CHARLEEN McGILVRAY (admissions), whose mother-in-law, Mattie W. McGilvray of Fort Worth, died March 31. Funeral services were conducted April 2.

Among speakers at the April 3-4 meeting of the National Council of Administrative Women in Education at the Worthington Hotel was CHERIE LOHR (education). Keynote speaker was Sarah Weddington, who headed the Carter administration's work on women's issues and government.

MILDRED HOGSTEL (nursing) presented a paper on "Geriatric Issues and Elder Abuse" at the second annual Medical-Surgical Educational Conference in Fort Worth April 3.

JOHN LOUD (modern languages) spoke April 6 to the Brandeis University Women's Committee. His topic was "Religion in Russia," discussing today's Soviet reality for believers in all three of the monotheistic faiths practised to some degree in the USSR: Jews, Moslems and Christians.

Members of the English department reading papers at the College English Association Convention April 2-4 in Charleston, SC, included JIM CORDER, "Why I Refuse to Use Funny Machines When I Write;" KEITH ODOM, "Video-Cassettes in the Classroom: Extending the Range of Pedagogy;" and Ph.D. graduate TITA FRENCH of TCJC, "A/V in the Classroom: Boon or Bane to Literacy?" Keith also attended the CEA board of directors meetings and served as respondent for the session on "English and the Adult Learner."

MARK THISTLETHWAITE (art and art history) will present a "Connoisseur Gallery Lecture" at the Kimbell Art Museum Friday at 12:15 p.m. Mark's talk is titled "Modernism and the Machine Aesthetic: Fernand Leger's Composition." Those interested in this free program should meet in the Kimbell's southwestern gallery in front of the Leger painting.

CINDY SIMS, photography lab supervisor for art and journalism, is one of 15 winners in the Mid-America Arts Alliance six-state photography competition. Her award is a $3,500 grant. The fifth annual competition was open to photographers in Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas, and Texans were awarded 10 of the 15 fellowships.

LEE DANIEL (modern languages) has been notified that his article on "The Hispanic Presence in Aztlan/USA" will be published in the spring issue of Heritage of the Great Plains.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

Religion-studies participation at the March 13-14 Southwest regional meeting in Irving of the Society of Biblical Literature, American Academy of Religion and Association for the Scientific Study of Religion included papers by RON FLOWERS, "Church-State Update: The 1986-1987 Term of the U. S. Supreme Court" and "Religious Objection to Public School Textbooks: A Status Report." NADIA LAHUTSKY, "Daughters of Tamar, Daughters of Phoebe: Interpretations of Women in the Christian Tradition;" DAVID GRANT, "Gordon Kaufman's Reconstructed Gods;" DARYL SCHMIDT, "Syntax-Based Pedagogy: A Cognitive Approach to Teaching Hellenistic Greek Grammar;" and adjunct JEFFREY PULIS, "Fundamentalist Religious Values in the Public Arena."

JIM FARRAR was a discussant for a session on "Religion and the Mechanisms of Social Control," and masters candidate BABS SCHMIDT presided, as chair-elect, at sessions of the Art, Literature, and Religion section. Also attending were CLAUDIA CAMP, AMBROSE EDENS, RICH FORRER, KEN LAWRENCE and adjunct EDWARD WCMAHON.

Four representatives of the HONORS PROGRAM participated in the Great Plains Regional Meeting of the National Collegiate Honors Council at Missouri Southern State College in Joplin March 27-28. As secretary of the region, SALLY BOHON presided at the business meeting. HIRAM JACKSON, senior geology major and 1986 recipient of the TCU Honors Scholar Award, presented a paper describing his senior Honors research on meteorites. The meeting also was attended by TRACY WILSON, 1987 chair of the Honors Cabinet, and director JIM KELLY.

A. QUARLES (physics) has been invited to present a paper, "Monte Carlo Simulation and Laboratory Measurement of the Photoelectric Index for Selected Rock Samples," at the annual meeting of the American Nuclear Society in Dallas in June. The paper reports on research in the determination of the lithology of chemically analyzed rock samples using the photoelectric effect. To-authors are former doctoral candidate JOE ALTMAN, candidate HALIM LEHTIHET and Dr. George Salaita of Chevron Oil Field Research Co.

The philosophy department hosted the April 4 spring meeting of North Texas Philosophical Association in the Faculty Center. GREGG FRANZWA read a response to a paper on Kant's transcendental philosophy, and SPENCER WERTZ was elected president for next year. RICHARD GALVIN, a member of the executive committee, helped in coordinating the program, which attracted about 35 students and faculty members from local colleges and universities.

TCU Press has a real bargain to offer—copies of OLD AMERICAN GLASS; THE MILLS COLLECTION AT TCU by Julia Magee Hartley for only $2.00 each. The book is a complete catalog, with photographs, of the prized and unusual glass collection in the faculty center. Copies of this bit of TCU memorabilia are available in Sadler 209.
