INTERNATIONAL SCHOLAR ACCEPTS BRADFORD CHAIR

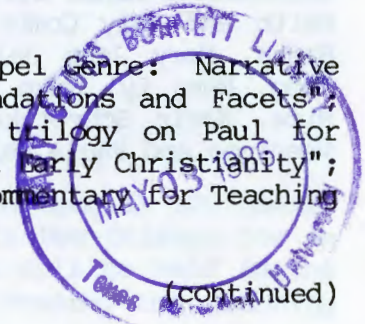

Dr. Eugene Boring, an internationally known linguist and scholar in the field of New Testament studies and classical history, will join the faculty in August as A.A. Bradford Distinguished Professor of Religion-Studies. A prolific author and active research scholar, he is especially noted as the writer of "Sayings of the Risen Jesus: Christian Prophecy in the Synoptic Tradition," published by Cambridge University Press and considered a landmark book in the study of prophecy.

Dr. Boring succeeds the first holder of the Bradford Chair, Dr. W.D. Davies, Welsh scholar credited with shaping the direction of the study of origins of the Christian religion. Dr. Davies is retiring. The Bradford chair was permanently endowed in 1980 through a gift of the late Mrs. A.A. Bradford of Midland in memory of her husband, A.A. "Jack" Bradford, TCU graduate and Midland oilman who served on the Board of Trustees in first an active, later honorary capacity from 1951 until his death in 1978.

A native of Tennessee, Dr. Boring holds bachelor's degrees from Johnson Bible College and Christian Theological Seminary, the M.A. from Butler University and the Ph.D. from Vanderbilt. He has been on the faculty at Phillips University Graduate Seminary for 20 years and since 1982 has served as Darbeth Distinguished Professor of New Testament.

Ken Lawrence, chairman of religion-studies, pointed out, "Statements from the academy throughout the Western world confirm the young Eugene Boring as a scholar of true international reputation. His career has flowered in recent years, making him much sought-after in his specialization as well as in related areas of classical Greek and Roman studies and in literary studies. A widely recognized instructional ability of unusual quality and his deep interest in the growth of students make him a person of very special promise in the TCU environment."

Dr. Boring currently is at work on three books, "The Gospel Genre: Narrative Christology," a volume in Fortress Press' series "Foundations and Facets"; translation of the second volume of Gerd Luedemann's trilogy on Paul for Fortress Press, to appear under the title "Antipaulism in Early Christianity"; and a volume on Revelation for "Interpretation, a Bible Commentary for Teaching and Preaching."

He has been president of Southwest Commission on Religious Studies and of Society of Biblical Literature/Southwest Region, serves on the editorial board of Journal of Biblical Literature and is senior lecturer for the Southwest Commission on Religious Studies for 1985-86. He has carried out extensive research at Georg-August Universitat in Gottingen, West Germany, has studied in Greece and Rome and has taken part in scholarly meetings in Jerusalem, Israel and Switzerland.

MANGIERI SPEAKS AT TACAC MEET

Approximately 200 Texas high school counselors and admissions officers, many from the Metroplex, were praised by Dean John Mangieri, of the School of Education at the 6th Annual Texas Association of College Admission Counselors (TACAC) Conference on April 14.

John was keynote speaker at the Monday "Counselor's Day" breakfast at the Fort Worth Hyatt Regency. With humor and sincerity, he extolled the work being done by those who guide college-bound students and urged them to strive for peak professional performances.

Dean Ned Boehm, a past president of TACAC, and his admissions officer staff acted as local arrangements committee for the two-day conference.

Judging from thank-you notes received, the recent conference was an outstanding success. Among the comments were: "...the fond memories of this year's conference will last a long time for me. Your staff members are to be highly commended for all their extra efforts to make us comfortable and 'at home' ... You all deserve purple hearts!"

Another wrote: "You have done it again! It was so much fun to be in Fort Worth with everyone and what enthusiasm! The conference was a large success, and it all should go to you and your staff for such a great job on all the special events!"

GIFTS TO TCU SET RECORD AT $18+ MILLION

Gifts to the University, including Brite Divinity School, totaled $18,106,950 as of March 31 for the fiscal year that began June 1, 1985. The figure represents a record total, according to Vice Chancellor Paul Hartman's report to the development committee of the board of trustees.

The total includes:

- $2,247,949 contributed to the Annual Fund for TCU
- $1,272,796 currently expendable for restricted projects
- $9,044,578 added to the endowment fund producing income for use now
- $545,205 in gifts which will provide lifetime incomes for the donors before they are merged with the endowment fund
- $4,996,420 designated for physical plant projects

Completing the gifts and pledges needed for the Neeley School facilities project and achieving the Annual Fund for TCU goal have been isolated as top priorities for completion by May 31, Dr. Hartman noted. About $900,000 must be secured to reach the $8.2 million for the Neeley School project needs. The Annual Fund has a goal of $3.1 million, and the March total leaves $852,000 to be raised before the fiscal year closes at the end of May.

NEW TITLES DUE FOR LAUER, GEE, ORSUND

Effective June 1, new titles will be assumed by University relations director Larry Lauer and development directors Ann Gee and Jim Orsund.

Larry, in his current position since 1979, will become associate vice chancellor for University relations. Director of continuing education in 1974-79, he previously was a member of the radio-TV-film department faculty for eight years. His change in title is "in recognition of the very important role he fills in relating the University to its varied audiences," said Vice Chancellor Paul Hartman.

Ann and Jim will assume the title of assistant vice chancellors for development. The positions are being created in lieu of the now-vacant post of executive director of development, Dr. Hartman announced. Both will retain regional responsibilities in addition to management roles for other development activities.

Formerly alumni field services coordinator at Memphis State University, Ann joined the development staff in 1978 as associate director. She served TCU as director of alumni and special programs in 1979-84.

Jim joined the staff in 1981 as associate director of development. He came to TCU from the staff of United Way of Metropolitan Tarrant County and earlier had been a United Way executive in Corpus Christi.

The 400-meter relay team won over North Carolina State in 39.11, which was a national collegiate and meet record time. Out of three tries, these were the first victories by Frogs.

The quartet of Roscoe Tatum, Andrew Smith, Leroy Reid and Greg Scholars lowered the 800 record of 1:20.26 that was set in 1978 by Southern California at Tempe, AZ.

TCU SENIOR EARNS CURTIS SCHOLARSHIP

Monte Maxwell, senior organ performance major, has won a full scholarship to the prestigious Curtis Institute of Music---not by audition, but by accident. Maxwell, a San Angelo resident who has studied the last four years with Emmet Smith, did not apply to the Philadelphia conservatory in the normal way. He was heard by Curtis organist John Weaver on a recent visit to Fort Worth to perform for the American Guild of Organists.

Curtis Institute, noted for its exceptionally high standards and its carefully chosen student body numbering only about 100 at one time, accepts a maximum of six organ students from throughout the world to study with Weaver. When he arrived here, Weaver already had auditioned applicants throughout the U.S. and had not found one measuring up to Curtis Institute standards.

When he happened to hear Maxwell, he asked Smith if his student would be interested in Curtis, then contacted the institute. Within 48 hours, Maxwell was invited to enroll at Curtis Institute in September for a two-year course leading to the Artist Diploma.

Maxwell has held a Nordan Scholarship in Organ Performance at TCU and presently is organist at Southcliff Baptist Church. Maxwell will play his senior recital in TCU's Ed Landreth Auditorium at 8 p.m. today (Tuesday) and will receive his Bachelor of Music degree at May 17 commencement.
