ENGLISH ORGANIST TO JOIN EVENSONG PRESENTATION

A formal choral Evensong as presented in Anglican churches will take place at TCU Monday with British organist Jonathan Rennert and the TCU Chapel Choir participating. The service begins at 8 p.m. in Robert Carr Chapel.

Rennert, an accomplished young artist who was a popular visitor to campus three years ago, is director of music at the ancient City of London Church of St. Michael's Cornhill. Officiant will be Father Fred Robinson of St. Andrews Episcopal Church, Grand Prairie. Readers will be Peter Hodgson and Tom Smith of the American Hymn Society.

The Chapel Choir, augmented by former choir members and by singers from All Saints Episcopal and St. Stephen Presbyterian churches, will be conducted by Ruth Whitlock and Rennert, and Mark Scott, organist at St. Stephen, will assist at the organ.

The service will include Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in F by Peter Aston and Psalm CL by Charles V. Stanford, and the Introit will be an anonymous 16th Century work, This Is the Day. Anthems will be Evening Hymn by H. Balfour Gardiner, Praise to God in the Highest by S. S. Campbell and Let Us with a Gladsome Mind by Alan Ridout.

Rennert's London church boasts a musical tradition of more than 1,000 years, and its celebrated organ dates in part from 1684. He specializes in performing music by British composers of all periods, a wealth of organ repertory rarely heard outside England.

Born in London in 1952, Rennert had by the age of 18 become a Fellow of the Royal College of Organists and an Associate of the Royal College of Music. He was a Foundation Scholar and top prizewinner at the Royal College of Music; Organ Scholar of St. John's College, Cambridge; Stewart of Rannoch Scholar in Sacred Music at Cambridge; and musical director of Cambridge Opera.

73 NEW INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS JOIN US

TCU welcomes 73 new international students this fall, including 27 freshman, 11 transfers, 21 masters candidates, three working toward the Ph.D., eight special students and three former students returning after an absence of at least one semester.

The largest number, seven, are from West Germany, says Al Mladenka, followed by six each from India and Lebanon and five from Canada. Iraq, Indonesia, Guatemala and Japan are represented by three students each. Nations with two each are Brazil, Ecuador, Mexico, Panama, Taiwan, Spain, Thailand, Jamaica, Korea, Malaysia, Pakistan, and Saudia Arabia. Represented by one student each are Jordan, Kuwait, Singapore, Egypt, Kenya, Netherlands/Curacao, Peru, Venezuela, Switzerland, Iran, Honduras, El Salvador and China.

Largest single major represented among the new international students is the Master of Business Administration program, in which 19 are enrolled. Another seven are undergraduate business majors, six undergraduate business administration and six computer science. Two of the Ph.D. students are in chemistry and the other in physics.

Overall international student enrollment is expected to be approximately the same as last year's 225.

FRIDAY EVENT TO HONOR STEVENS

A.L. Stevens, an employee of the physical plant for 29 years, will be the honoree Sept. 14 at an informal gathering in the physical plant. An invitation to stop by between 10 a.m. and noon to wish him well is extended to the campus community. A member of the staff since June 14, 1955, A.L. is making plans for more time to enjoy his grandchildren, to work in his home woodwork shop and to go fishing.

PEOPLE OF VISION EVENT HONORS ALUMNI

The 1984 People of Vision award was presented Sept. 8 to alumni Jean and John Roach during a black-tie event at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. The award is given annually by the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness, Metro Texas chapter, and proceeds from the fete are used to continue and expand the programs of Prevent Blindness.

Chancellor Bill Tucker was dinner chairman.

Vice President of the Arts Council of Fort Worth, Jean serves on the boards of Lena Pope Home, Harris Hospital, TCU Alumni Association and the national advisory board for UNICEF. John, a member of TCU's board of trustees, is chairman and chief executive officer of Tandy Corporation.

NOTED JOURNALIST WILL BE FIRST GREEN PROF

Journalist Grace Halsell, former Fort Worth resident who has "lived" most of what she has written, will be a campus guest next week as the first of 10 Visiting Green Professors of 1984-85. She will be hosted by the journalism department during her week-long appointment, which will include sessions and informal meetings with students and faculty.

A highlight of the week will be "An Evening with Grace Halsell" on Sept. 20 in the Student Center's Woodson Room. To begin at 7 p.m., her presentation will center on her research style and the experiences she had while gathering information for her books. Free tickets will be available in the Student Center information desk or from the journalism department, and seating will be limited.

A resident of Washington, DC., since 1964, Ms. Halsell is a world traveler who vividly chronicles what she finds around the globe. In the last year she has been in Brazil to see how the people feel about their national debt, as well as in Mexico and then in Central America to learn firsthand how its residents are reacting to the tensions of political upheaval. Her thrill in travel dates back to her teen-age years when she toured Europe via bicycle while working for the Star-Telegram. She has traveled and lived in Europe, Asia and South America while writing for 12 Southwestern newspapers as well the New York Herald-Tribune.

Before beginning to write books, Ms. Halsell worked in Tokyo for a year for the Japan Times, in Hong Kong for the Tiger-Standard, and for three years in Lima, Peru, she was a columnist for the Spanish language daily, La Prensa. In addition to her datelines from Russia, China, Vietnam and Korea, she covered the Kennedy administration as a Washington correspondent and a White House staff writer during Lyndon B. Johnson's presidency.

Of Ms. Halsell's dozen books, those dealing with personal experience have been most popular. The first, "Soul Sister", was published in 1969 and became a best seller. It was the record of her living as a black woman in Harlem and Mississippi after she had turned her skin black via medication. Her most recent book, "Journey to Jerusalem", was published in 1981 and is based on her experience living among families of Christian, Jewish and Muslim faiths in the strife-torn Holy Land.

Other well-known works include "Bessie Yellowhair," the story of her life on a Navajo reservation in Arizona; "Los Viejos," her record of her life among the longest living people in the Southern Hemisphere; and "The Illegals," based on her experiences passing as a "wetback" and on experiences of scores of Mexican illegals she met crossing the border between Mexico and the United States. In three different crossings, she swam the Rio Grande, crawled through the sewers of Tijuana into San Diego and was smuggled past border guards.

Ms. Halsell credits her father for her unquenchable thirst for adventure. An Indian fighter, Texas rancher and author of nine books, he told his own story in "Cowboys and Cattleland", which was reprinted earlier this year by the TCU Press.

THISTLE HILL SITE OF SEPT. 19 EVENT

Historic Fort Worth, from Hell's Half Acre to the Spring Palace, will be part of the present when the TCU Press hosts an autograph party Sept. 19 for "Fort Worth and Tarrant County: A Historical Guide." Appropriately, the party will be held at Thistle Hill, one of the historic homes meriting an entry in the new guide, from 5 to 7 p.m.

Edited and revised by Ruby Schmidt, the book is a project of the Tarrant County Historical Society. Although this is a completely new book, it builds on the strong tradition established by earlier guides issued by the society and combines factual information with exciting stories such as the shootout between Luke Short and Longhair Jim Courtright. Biographical sketches of such colorful and important figures as Amon Carter and K.M. Van Zandt are woven into the entries on historical sites.

The 96-page volume available in paperback at $5.95 or cloth at $11.95 includes illustrated maps and is arranged alphabetically within geographic areas. Separate sections describe cemeteries, historic homes and houses of worship.

Schmidt, president of the Tarrant County Historical Society, has been named outstanding chairman of a county commission by the Texas State Historical Commission and has received numerous state and county awards for her work in genealogy and history. A member of the Tarrant County Historical Commission, she has been state chairman of the Daughters of the American Revolution and was recently appointed chairman of the Historical Committee of the Fort Worth 150 (Sesquicentennial) Celebration Committee.

SERVICES HELD FOR LILLIAN MCDONALD

Lillian McDonald, who came to TCU in August of 1926 as secretary to business manager Pete Wright, died Sept. 6 in a Fort Worth hospital. Graveside services were held last week at Mount Olivet with Charles Sanders officiating.

With offices in the old administration building, which is now Reed Hall, Miss McDonald was the only full-time clerical worker when she started. Since the only other help were students employed part-time, she "sometimes assisted as secretary to Dr. E.M. Waits, president before Dr. M.E. Sadler came in 1941, and Dean Colby Hall, academic dean of the University," according to a 1965 story in The Skiff.

Secretary to the late Pete Wright until 1955, she was Dr. Sadler's secretary until his death. When he retired in 1965 and became executive chairman of the board with offices in the Fort Worth Club Building, she continued with him there. The 40-year employee was named to membership in the Faculty Woman's Club at Dr. Sadler's request. She also was an honorary member of the Saturday TCU Women Exes.

FINAL BENEFIT PROGRAM SESSIONS SET

The last two sessions for explanations of TCU's new employee benefit program will be held Sept. 14 and Sept. 20, according to program administrator Lois Banta. To begin at 2:30 p.m., the Sept. 14 session will be held in Student Center 205. The final orientation will begin at 3 p.m. in Student Center 222.

BIG NIGHT PLANNED FOR FIRST FROG GAME

The Faculty Woman's Club plans to make a special event of the Horned Frogs' first home football game Sept. 22 against the Kansas Jayhawks. The club is sponsoring a TCU Round Up Bar-be-que at 5:30 p.m. in the Rickel Building, and all faculty, University and general staff are invited.

It's a chance to park the car early and then for $6 per person enjoy all the Risky's barbecued brisket, sausage, potato salad, beans and slaw you can eat.

Co-chairmen Margaret McWhorter and Janet Murphy have only two requests: wear purple and make your reservations by Sept. 19 with Gretchen Latterall, Box 30776 or Ext. 7809. Other committee members are Teresa Atwood, Jane Boone, Linda Combrink, Kathy Dierker, Mary Kincannon, Maggie Mabee, Virginia Merrill, Betty Peveler, Kristina Riddlesperger and Barbara Worcester.

PRINTS AND DRAWINGS GO ON DISPLAY IN GALLERY

Prints and drawings by Judy Youngblood of Denton will be on display Sept. 19-Oct. 5 in Brown-Lupton Gallery. The artist, who is associate professor of art at NTSU and coordinator of its printmaking program, will be honored at a reception in the Gallery from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Sept. 18. Hours for the showing will be 11 a.m.-4 p.m. weekdays, 1-4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Ms. Youngblood's exhibit will include new etchings and pastel drawings in which the subjects are transparent sacks, works that suggest an indefinite space, a mysterious location.

Holder of two degrees from the University of Wisconsin at Madison, Ms. Youngblood was a Fulbright Scholar at S.W. Hayter's Atelier 17 in Paris in 1978-9. In 1982, she held a residency at the MacDowell Colony in Peterborough, NH, and also won the annual Award for Artist Achievement at the Southwest Cultural Festival at Oklahoma State University. Her works are included in permanent collections at the Portland Museum of Art, Metropolitan Museum of Art in Miami, Madison Art Center, Arkansas Art Center, University of California-Davis, University of Dallas and University of South Dakota. She was an award winner in the 1984 Art in the Metroplex show at TCU and has work included in the current Texas Fine Arts Association annual juried exhibition at Laguna Gloria Art Museum in Austin.

SEPT. 15 IS 'TCU DAY' AT HULEN MALL

The emphasis will be on the University on Sept. 15 at Hulen Mall, which has been designated as "Salute to TCU Day." In addition to providing a link between TCU and the Fort Worth shopping public to generate interest and good will, the occasion is designed to honor students and programs through fine and performing arts, sports and special activities and community education.

Displays and activities, open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., will be located adjacent to the center court of the mall in the fountain/escalator area. The day's schedule will include demonstrations and/or workshops by the art, music, theatre and dance departments. Also planned is a "meet and greet" session with coaches, athletes and cheerleaders during the afternoon.

NOTES ON FOLKS

"Rhetoric and Literature Together in the Same Room with No Appreciable Harm to Either" was the title of a paper given by JIM CORDER (English) at the annual Penn State Conference on Rhetoric held in July. Jim has been notified that a paper of his has been accepted for publication by College English. Its title is "On the Way, Perhaps, to a New Rhetoric, But Not There Yet, and If We Do Get There, There Won't Be There Any More."

Sympathy is extended to SHIRLEY HALL (Student Life) on the death of her husband, Franklin D. Hall. The businessman, well known as a beekeeper, was founder of Jimbo Manufacturing Co. Funeral services were held Sept. 1 at Laurel Land Chapel.

ANANTHA BABBILI (journalism) gave the keynote address to the Communications Colloquium held at Osmania University, India, on May 27. His address was titled "Mass Communication Research in the U.S.: Implications for Developing Countries." The colloquium was organized by the Indian journalism graduate students and the Indian Television consultants.

"A Design for the Development of a Computer Assisted Instruction Tutorial Module" is the title of an article co-authored by MAISIE KASHKA (nursing) that appeared in the July/August issue of Computers in Nursing.

Juror Richard Koshalek, director of the Museum of Contemporary Art in Los Angeles, selected RON WATSON's The Garden 1984, an oil on canvas, for inclusion in the 27th annual Delta Art Exhibition at the Arkansas Arts Center in Little Rock. A total of 318 artists in a seven-state region submitted 542 works of art, and Koshalek selected 83 works for the exhibition.

An essay by FRED ERISMAN (English), "St. Nicholas," has been included in Children's Periodicals of the United States, a new reference work published by Greenwood Press. The essay, which served as a model for the almost 100 other articles in the volume, gives an overview of St. Nicholas's publishing history and a critical account of its contents and significance.

KEN MORGAN and DAVID KOGER (Geology/Remote Sensing) were organizers and presenters at a three-day symposium on "Nonrenewable Resource Exploration Using Remote Sensing." Meeting date is Sept. 11-13 in San Antonio as part of a national conference on remote sensing. More than 1,000 people were expected to attend.

CAROLYN CAGLE and GAIL DAVIS (Harris College) recently returned from New Orleans where they both served as Texas delegates to the American Nurses' Association Convention. Both will serve as delegates from Texas at the annual House of Delegates Meeting in Kansas City, MO, in July 1985.

Carolyn had her paper, "Women Who Delay Parenthood: Older but Bolder," presented at the American Psychological Association in Toronto during Aug. 22-28. Carolyn, who recently assumed the position of junior chairperson at HCN, could not attend the convention due to registration commitments, but LINDA RICHARDSON (nursing) presented the paper for her. Much of the substance of the paper contrasted the unique needs of older first-time parents with those of younger first-time parents. This information was collected by three research studies conducted in the last year with Lamaze couples.

HEAD OF NICARAGUA ELECTORAL COUNCIL TO SPEAK HERE

Dr. Mariano Fiallos, president of Nicaragua's Supreme Electoral Council, will lecture at 7 p.m. Thursday in Sid W. Richardson Lecture Hall 1. His appearance here is sponsored by TCU's Department of Political Science and is open to the public.

Nicaragua's Supreme Court named a three-member Supreme Electoral Council April 2 to oversee the electoral process. Last month the membership was expanded to five. First order of business for the council, which is directly responsible to the Supreme Court, was to establish an electoral calendar, including dates for registration of candidates of the various political parties. It also is responsible for setting up provincial, municipal and other precinct councils and will organize and supervise the polling and the national vote count.

Prior to being sworn in as council president April 4, Dr. Fiallos had been president of the National Autonomous University of Nicaragua since 1974. A native of Leon, Nicaragua, he earned his bachelor's degree in Guatemala and a Doctor of Law degree from the University of Nicaragua in his home town. He also holds the Master of Law in comparative law from SMU and the Ph.D. from the University of Kansas, where his dissertation was on "The Nicaraguan Political System: The Flow of Demands and the Reactions of the Regime."

Dr. Fiallos' teaching career at the National University of Nicaragua began in 1957, and since 1960 he has been associated with the Superior Council of Central American Universities, which coordinates activities, curriculum and degrees. He served as its president in 1975-76 and again in 1979-81. From 1968 until 1974, he was dean of the Faculty of Science and Letters at the National University. After the overthrow of the Somoza dictatorship in 1979, Dr. Fiallos was chosen as president of the National Council of Higher Education and also became a representative to the Nicaraguan co-legislative body, the Council of State. He was its secretary in 1982-84 and president of its Foreign Affairs Commission in 1983.

MORE THAN 100 COMMUNITY COURSES SET FOR FALL

For those interested in learning new hobbies or acquiring new skills, more than 100 low-cost, non-credit community service courses will be offered through the continuing education division, beginning Sept. 18.

New classes include Appalachian basketry, a course on campaigning issues and strategies, Greek and Roman architecture and Texas literature. Easy gourmet, Greek cooking, introduction to chess, hunting safety and holiday entertaining are other new classes available this fall. Additional offerings are advanced photography and Tae Kwon Do Karate.

A wide range of classes is also offered in the areas of art/cultural, business/professional communications, daytime series, fun/hobbies, personal development, physical exercise, women's focus, youth programs and learning/study skills.

Most classes, with fees of $20 to $50, run an average of six weeks. Additional information about registration is available by contacting Community Service Programs at Ext. 7810.

NEW FACULTY/STAFF APPOINTMENTS

Alumna ROBIN NEELY DAVIS, new to the Starpoint School teaching staff, has taught special education in Dallas public schools for the last eight years. Holder of the M.S. degree from North Texas State, she has taught at Starpoint for the last two summers.

Assistant professor MARY TAYLOR MARTOF (nursing), who completed the Ed. D. degree earlier this year at North Carolina State University, is the author of works published in Self-Directed Learning in Nursing, Nephrology Nurse and Nursing Research. The Virginia native formerly was a clinical nurse educator at the Clinical Center of the National Institutes of Health. She holds two degrees from the University of Maryland.

KIRK ALLAND, newly appointed assistant director of alumni and special programs, was chapter management consultant for Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity Inc. for a year before assuming his current position last month. Before earning the B.B.A. degree with a major in marketing here in 1983, he was active on the student conduct committee, American Marketing Association and for four years was top fund raiser in the annual TCU National Phonathon.
