PARENTS ARE COMING, PARENTS ARE COMING!

A full schedule of activities is planned for Parents' Weekend '84 beginning at noon Friday when the Jazz Ensemble performs in the Student Center lounge and climaxing at the Horned Frog-Rice Owls football game at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Amon Carter Stadium.

Friday activities also include the 8 p.m. talent show, and Saturday's opening event will be the chancellor's reception on the lawn of Sadler Hall from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Coffee and sweet rolls will be served, and faculty members and administrators will be on hand to greet parents.

From 11 to 11:45 that morning, parents may take a choice of four mini-lectures to be presented by Ron Flowers, Paul Boller, Dave Cravens and Betsy Colquitt in the Sid W. Richardson lecture halls. Residence halls will hold open house from noon to 4 p.m.

A picnic supper will be served around Frog Fountain from 5 to 7 p.m., with a choice of fried or barbecued chicken, beans, cole slaw, watermelon and apple pie. Cost of the dinner is $5.95 per person, cash or student meal card, and no reservations are necessary. An American Bandstand dance will be held in Student Center ballroom after the game from about 10 p.m. to midnight.

Closing event of Parents' Weekend is the annual brunch sponsored by the International Student Association and the International Student Affairs office at 10 a.m. Sunday in Student Center lounge. Admission is limited to 100, so advance sign-up must be made at registration in the Student Center lobby from 1 to 6 p.m. Friday and again from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday.

Keri Dublin, TCU sophomore from Arlington, is chairman of the weekend observance, sponsored by Programming Council.

TWO SPECIAL PEP RALLIES ANNOUNCED

There will be two more special chances to cheer the Horned Frogs this season at pre-game pep rallies, both to be held on Milton Daniel hill. At 10:30 p.m. Oct. 25, preceding the Frogs' Homecoming game with Baylor, the pep rally will include fireworks and burning of the TCU letters. Before TCU's final home game with Texas, a pep rally will be held at 6 p.m. Nov. 16.

14TH MANAGEMENT PROGRAM BEGINS NEXT WEEK

For the 14th year, the "Management-in-Action" program will be sponsored by the Neeley School and the Division of Continuing Education. All programs in the four-part series will be held in the Student Center from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The initial seminar is scheduled for Oct. 17th with Tom Badgett (business) leading the consideration of "Managing Conflicts Productively." The session will provide participants with concepts and techniques for matching leadership styles with the organizational environment.

Don Drost (management) will lead the Nov. 6 discussions on "Coaching and Performance Appraisal: Management Tools." The seminar will offer insights to the process, the legal aspects, the techniques and tools of performance appraisal and how these tools can be used to coach the individual to a greater efficiency.

Guest lecturer Dr. Earl Brooks will conduct the Nov. 20 program on "Negotiation: The Art of Successful Persuasion." A professor of administration at Cornell University Graduate School of Business and Public Administration, he is a consultant to major companies in the U.S. and abroad. He will direct participants in analyzing their own negotiating skills and their overall effectiveness.

On Dec. 4 John Sheridan (management) will discuss "Managerial Stress." By properly utilizing time management practices, John will show participants how to identify stress and to resolve those stressors to become more effective. He has conducted management development programs for such organizations as Burroughs, General Motors, Standard Steel Co., the Internal Revenue Service, NASA and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Cost is $375 for all four seminars, $285 for any three, $190 for any two or $105 for any one seminar. Additional information is available from Margaret Chambers at Ext. 7132.

HELICOPTERS TO TRANSPORT ROTC CADETS

ROTC cadets and military science students have an extra incentive to attend this year's annual fall field training: helicopters will be transporting them from campus to Eagle Mountain Training Center.

The local Army Reserve has agreed to lend eight helicopters for flying the students to the training center Saturday, said Capt. Carolyn Knowles of ROTC. The trip will take 15 minutes, and the helicopters will make two trips to carry all of the more than 100 students expected to participate. The first round of departures will be at 9 a.m. from the stadium parking lot, and the second batch will be picked up at 9:30.

Once at the center, the students will practice squad tactics, formation and assault and firing. After the end of activities, the students will be flown back to campus.

LATIN AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT TO SPEAK HERE

Raymond T. Bonner, controversial Latin American correspondent for Newsweek and major U.S. newspapers, will speak on "U.S. Policy and Central America" at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday) in Moudy Building 141N. His appearance here is sponsored by Campus Christian Community and Forums Committee.

Bonner's reporting from El Salvador for The New York Times won accolades from his colleagues but was denounced by Washington officials. Bonner, whose name appeared on a death squad "hit list," is the author of the recently published "Weakness and Deceit: U.S. Policy in El Salvador." The New York Times review said of the book: "Anyone concerned with the fate of Central America, and of our own country, should read this book."

A graduate of MacMurray College in Jacksonville, IL, and of Stanford Law School, Bonner served in Vietnam with the Marine Corps and later practiced law, both with Ralph Nader's Public Citizen Litigation Group and as a senior attorney in the San Francisco District Attorney's office. He has served on the board of directors of the Consumers Union and has taught in law school. In 1979, he went to Bolivia, intent on traveling and learning more about the Third World. It was there he began his journalistic career. He was forced to flee Bolivia when a military government, angered by his dispatches about the brutal manner in which the generals had seized power, put out an order to kill him.

Washington officials expressed dissatisfaction with Bonner's coverage in public statements and to the editors of the New York Times. "But Bonner's reporting... generally has held up very well; much better, in fact, than that of his critics," says Christopher Dickey, Washington Post correspondent in Central America for three years.

Bonner was in El Salvador when the four American church women were murdered in December 1980 and stayed long after most other reporters went home for Christmas. "He was determined to find the patterns behind the violence or at least to expose the lies we all knew were being told," wrote Dickey. "His careful sifting of facts from the quagmire of official deception should from now on define the terms of debate about what has happened--and is happening--in El Salvador."

HODGSON TO PERFORM ORGAN VOLUNTARY PROGRAM

A program on the English organ voluntary will be performed by Peter Hodgson at 8 p.m. Oct. 15 in Robert Carr Chapel. Lasting slightly less than an hour, the free program will be made up of the organ voluntary from Henry Purcell (1659-1695) to Charles H. H. Parry (1848-1918). The voluntary is a freely composed art form which may be traced to the 16th Century.

Peter will play the Voluntary in G and the Voluntary in D for double organ, both by Purcell, followed by Suite of Voluntaries (including Trumpet Tunes) by John Stanley, whose voluntaries are considered especially noteworthy for their diversity of style, particular registral effects and consummate craftsmanship. The last part of the program will include Organ Chorales and Preludes by Charles Villiers Stanford as well as Parry's Fantasia and Fugue. Stanford and Parry constitute a link between 19th Century English romanticism and the 20th Century English musical renaissance.

NINETEEN FROM TCU TO TAKE PART IN SCMLA PROGRAM

Nineteen TCU-related folks will have parts on the program for the South Central Modern Language Association meeting Oct. 25-27 in Biloxi, MS. Officials of four sections of the association include three faculty members, Roberta Pritchard, chairperson of the rhetoric section; Ann Ashworth, secretary, literature and psychology; Keith Odom, secretary, 19th Century literature, and a doctoral student, Nancy Price, secretary of modern drama.

Presenting papers will be Pamela R. Howell of Midland College, a TCU Ph.D., talking on "Spirits of Light: The Feminine Influence Within the Children's Stories of Randall Jarrell" to the children's literature section; Gilman Tracy, TCU Ph.D. teaching at Southwestern Louisiana State University, "In the Beginning... A Journal by and for Developmental Students" for a special session on developmental programs in reading and writing; Theresa Enos, TCU Ph.D. teaching at SMU, "Concentric Circles of Identification: Learning to Write by Writing About Writing" for the same special session; Steve Wilson, TCU doctoral student, "Does Anyone Know the Color of Sir Guyon's Horse?" for the graduate student caucus.

Also Tita French, doctoral student, "Tragedy and the 'Rhetoric of Assent': Booth Meets the Bard" for the rhetoric section; Jim Corder, "On the Way, Perhaps, to a New Rhetoric, but Not There Yet, and If We Do Get There, There Won't Be There Any More," rhetoric; Glen Lich, TCU doctoral candidate now teaching at Schreiner, "A Battle of Metaphors: The Vintner and the Wolf," German-American literature section; Kathleen Hudson, TCU Ph.D., "The Horse: A Powerful Psychological Symbol," literature and psychology section; Carolyn Leach Yates, doctoral student, "A Theater of Distance: Brechtian Techniques in 'Our Town' and 'The Skin of Our Teeth,'" modern drama section; doctoral student John A. Killion, "The Function of Sleep in the Drama of Eugene O'Neill," modern drama.

Also Carmen Cramer, TCU Ph.D. teaching at Southwestern Louisiana State, "Gertrude Stein: Insistence of Self," American literature section; Clare Colquitt, TCU graduate now completing the Ph.D. at the University of Texas at Austin, "The Reader as Voyeur: Complicitous Transformations in 'Death in the Woods,'" American literature; David Vanderwerken, "Faulkner as Adult Novelist," American literature; Marjorie Lewis, respondent in comparative literature session; and Lou Thompson, TCU Ph.D., "No 'Holy Plan': Wordsworth's Nature in 'Tess of the D'Urbervilles,'" 19th Century literature.

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE TO MARCH

TCU's traditional Homecoming parade Oct. 27 is by no means a closed affair. In addition to community, alumni and campus organizations, departments, faculty/staff members and children of faculty/staff are welcome to take part by entering floats, decorating cars, marching or riding bicycles.

The parade, beginning at 9:15 a.m., will travel a 1.5-mile route beginning at Bluebonnet Circle, then north on University Drive and ending at Frog Fountain.

Anyone interested in taking part is urged to contact Gary Jones, P.O. Box 31320, TCU, or by telephone at 924-1659 or in the Student Activities office at Ext. 7926.

DEVELOPMENT GENETICIST WILL BE VISITING PROFESSOR

Dr. Stuart Alan Kauffman, internationally known biochemist and biophysicist from the University of Pennsylvania's School of Medicine, will be a Visiting Green Professor next week hosted by the biology department. Formerly a surgeon at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, MD, he has focused his major research efforts on developmental genetics. Currently he holds grants totaling some $750,000 for studies in that field.

"New Ideas About the Origin of Life" will be the topic of Dr. Kauffman's public lecture on Oct. 17. The free program will begin at 7 p.m. in Room 141 North of the Moudy Building. An 8:15 p.m. discussion, also open to the public, will follow his presentation. Participants, along with Dr. Kauffman, will be John Sheridan of business; Tom Nute, computer science; Rudolf Brun, biology; and David Grant, religion studies.

On Oct. 16 he will address the TCU chapter of Sigma Xi on "Self Organization, Selection and the Limits of Adaptation--Implications for Development and Evolution." The 7:30-9 p.m. program will be in Lecture Hall 4, Sid Richardson Building.

More than 50 works published in such journals as Developmental Biology, Physica and Journal of Cybernetics have detailed the biochemist's research. Included among these are "Pattern Generation and Regeneration," published last year in Pattern Formation, and "Bifurcations in Insect Morphogenesis I and II," which appeared in the book Nonlinear Phenomena in Physics and Biology.

A member of the biophysics and theoretical biology faculty of the University of Chicago for six years, Dr. Kauffman has been a visiting faculty member at McArdle Cancer Research Institute of the University of Wisconsin, the Center for Pathobiology at the University of California-Irvine and the University of Washington's zoology department. The Dartmouth College alumnus, who held a Marshall Scholarship while working on a degree at Oxford University, received the M.D. degree at the University of California at San Francisco.

Dr. Kauffman serves on the editorial board of Journal of Theoretical Biology, Quarterly Review of Biology, Biosystems and the Journal of Mathematical Biology. He is also on the editorial board of Marcel Dekker Textbooks. In 1971 he received the Wiener Gold Medal of the American Cybernetic Society and earlier the Borden Prize for Research at the University of California Medical School.

FIRST FACULTY WOMAN'S CLUB LUNCH SEMINAR SET

Reservations are due by Friday for the first of the new Faculty Woman's Club lunch seminars at 11:45 a.m. Oct. 17 in the Bass Building living room. Jack Scott will be the seminar speaker on time management.

The $4 lunch fee should be sent to Carol Adcock, Box 32917 or Sadler Hall Room 101. The new lunch seminar series, which will continue with two sessions in November and four others next spring, is open to anyone who is interested, Carol says.

MAYOR PROCLAIMS OCTOBER AS KTCU-FM MONTH

On Sept. 15, 1964, KTCU-FM went on the air for the first time as a 10-watt carrier current station serving the housing units on campus. Now a 3,000 watt, FCC-sanctioned broadcasting entity, the University station has been recognized in the observance of its 20th year by Mayor Bob Bolen's proclamation of October as KTCU-FM Month in Fort Worth.

In the citation, presented at City Council meeting last week, the mayor called attention to the station selectively choosing "to meet the needs of the citizens of Fort Worth by focusing on civic affairs and its regular broadcasts of the meetings of the Fort Worth City Council, Tarrant County Commissioner's Court and Fort Worth School Board."

The station's call letters date back to the 1948 fall semester when the original KTCU carrier current station went on the air under the direction of the late Dr. E.A. Pross. Designed by a physics faculty member to be heard in the campus housing facilities, the station consisted of a 10-watt RF generator with a public address amplifier on a homemade console in Building Two, one of the government-financed buildings on campus. The FM station had its start under the direction of then-chairman R.C. Norris.

As a climax of the month's recognition of the TCU station, former staff members along with former radio-TV-film students are planning an anniversary celebration in conjunction with Homecoming activities. An open house in the station's Moudy Building facilities as well as a banquet, beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Center's Woodson Room, are on the Oct. 27 schedule. Reservations are due Oct. 10 for the dinner, where R.C. will be the featured speaker. Additional reunion information is available from the radio-TV-film office.

FOUR COMPUTER SHORT COURSES SET

Four short courses will be offered for faculty and staff members along with graduate students during October by the Computer Center. Each will meet in Room 143 of the Sid W. Richardson Building, according to senior user services consultant Ivan Taylor.

The classes will include:

- Oct. 15: SPSS-X for the Experienced User, concentrating on the similarity and differences of SPSS-X (IBM 4341) and SPSS (Xerox Sigma 9), 2-4 p.m., Bennett Fletcher instructor.
- Oct. 17: SAS-A Powerful Statistical Package, an introduction to a new package available on the IBM 4341, 2-4 p.m., Fletcher instructor.
- Oct. 22 and 24: Programming in BASIC for the Novice, introductory course designed for first-time computer programmer, 2-4 p.m., Ranganath Nuggehali instructor.
- Oct. 29: Part 1 of IBM TEXT Processing: Using MUSIC/Script and Waterloo/Script, 2-3:30 p.m., Robin Duke instructor.
- Oct. 30: Lab for Part 1, to be arranged.
- Oct. 31: Part 2, 2-3 p.m., Duke instructor.

PHYSICS COLLOQUIUM SERIES BEGINS NEXT WEEK

Dr. Ivan A. Sellin, distinguished service professor in the department of physics and astronomy at The University of Tennessee, will be on campus Oct. 15-16 as the first of three noted scientists participating in the Cecil and Ida Green Physics Colloquium Series for 1984-85. Recipient of the Senior U.S. Scientist Award, Dr. Sellin also serves as project director at Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

A Fellow of the American Physical Society, Dr. Sellin will present two public lectures in addition to taking part in discussions and colloquia with physics department students and faculty members. "New Ideas About an Old Subject--Ionization" will be his topic for an Oct. 15 presentation, beginning at 4 p.m. in Lecture Hall 3 of the Sid Richardson Building.

His concerns about pending federal regulations intended to restrict the flow of technical communication with foreign graduate students, visitors and scientists will be addressed in his Oct. 16 lecture. "Freedom of Scientific Communications: The 1950s Revisited?" will be his topic for the 4 p.m. event, also in Lecture Hall 3. A 3:30 p.m. reception in Sid Richardson Building, Room 313, will precede both lectures.

Dr. Sellin, holder of degrees from Harvard University and the University of Chicago, is author of numerous papers on the physics of ion beams, highly ionized matter and heavy ion collisions. He has served on the advisory committee on atomic and molecular physics of the National Academy of Science. He has been a visiting professor under the auspices of the Organization of American States and the Swedish Natural Science Research Council.

Prior to assuming his present positions at Oak Ridge and Tennessee, Dr. Sellin was a faculty member at the University of Chicago and New York University.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Historian DAVE EDMUNDS has just returned from Ft. Wayne, IN, where he was banquet speaker Sept. 18 for the annual fall meeting of the Indiana Historical Society.

MARY ANNE SULLIVAN (home economics) has received word that her article entitled "Effects of Various Dietary Animal and Vegetable Proteins on Serum and Biliary Lipids and on Gallstones in the Hamster" has been accepted for publication in the November issue of Lipids.

One of the persons featured in the 1984 United Way film is ELVIRA HARRIS (emeritus, Spanish).

Music students of ARLENE SOLLENBERGER and ARDEN HOPKIN presented an afternoon musical Sept. 30 to open the 25th anniversary year of the Madeira Manchester Music Club of Fort Worth. Participating were sopranos Cynthia Hartrick and Patricia Helve, both Nordan Scholars, and baritone David C. Bennet. Accompanists were graduate student Judith Martyn and Mrs. David Williams.

FERNANDO SCHAFFENBURG (ballet) conducted a two-week workshop in Columbus, OH, in August for the professional Ballet Metropolitan. Fernando taught master classes in ballet for advanced and intermediate students as well as for the professional dancers and also set the Baryshnikov version of the "Don Quixote" pas de deux for company members.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

Any faculty/staff interested in the recent media flap over special education may contact DAVID VANDERWERKEN (English), who can share copies of the Fort Worth Independent School District's internal-external audit report on special ed that went to the school board. David is a member of the Special Education Advisory Committee as a parent representing the concerns of autistic children.

WENDY GOTTLIEB (library) has accepted the position of coordinator for public relations at Kimbell Art Museum.

DAVID EDMUNDS (history) will receive the Ohioana Book Award of 1984 in the category of biography for "The Shawnee Prophet," the Pulitzer Prize nominee and History Book Club selection which deals with Tecumseh's brother. The award, given by the Ohioana Library Association, will be presented at the 55th "Ohioana Day" annual meeting and awards luncheon Oct. 20 at Ohio State University.

JERRY BYWATERS COCHRAN (modern dance) will be in New York Thursday through Saturday to attend the first all-alumni Reunion Day held by Juilliard School. Jerry was asked to serve as a member of the organizing committee for dance alumni for the event. At the same time, she will be attending the fall meetings of the board of directors, executive committee and general membership of the National Association for Regional Ballet, which she serves as national secretary.

On Oct. 16 Jerry will attend a meeting of the dance advisory panel of the Texas Commission on the Arts. Her busy schedule is already filled into the spring, when Jerry will teach classes in modern dance for the Southwestern Regional Ballet Festival meeting in Little Rock April 11-13. On April 28 she will be in Winston-Salem, NC, as a member of a visitation committee to evaluate the dance programs of the North Carolina School of the Arts, a state-supported institution offering intensive training in the arts at both the college and high school levels.

GAIL DAVIS (nursing) attended the Nursing Research Symposium at the University of Texas-Austin Sept. 17-18 where she presented results of a recently completed study, "Evaluation: Patient Care Management System."

MIKE WOLFE (education) has published an article entitled "Here's How to Fan the Winds of Change" in the October 1984 issue of the Executive Educator.

COLQUITT HEADS AAUP CHAPTER

Landon Colquitt of the mathematics department was chosen as president of the campus chapter of American Association of University Professors at its Sept. 20 meeting. Other officers for the year are James Duke (Brite), vice president; Judith Solomon (music), treasurer; and Andrew Fort (religion-studies), secretary. Additional information about the chapter is available from all the officers.
