ANNUAL MINISTERS WEEK WILL OPEN MONDAY

A lecturer/writer in the field of religious ethics and public policy and a Presbyterian minister will join Brite's Jim Duke for TCU's annual observance of Ministers Week Monday through Feb. 7 at University Christian Church.

Dr. Max L. Stackhouse of Boston, professor of religion and society at Andover Newton Theological School, will be Scott Lecturer; Jim, McFadin Lecturer; and Dr. James A. Wharton, senior pastor at Memorial Drive Presbyterian Church in Houston, Wells Preacher.

Dr. Wharton, a native of Zaire who holds the Th.D. from the University of Basel in Switzerland, will preach three sermons on the theme "Secrets of Discipleship" at 8 p.m. on Feb. 4, 5 and 6. Dr. A.M. Pennybacker, senior minister of University Christian, will conduct the service of worship each evening. Jim will lecture at 9 a.m. Feb. 5-7 on the theme "A Church Uniting: In Quest or Inquest?" Associate professor of church history at Brite, he also is co-editor of the Studies in Religion Series and serves on the research and publications committee of the American Academy of Religion.

"Public Theology and the Stewardship of a Technological Society" will be the theme for Dr. Stackhouse's Scott Lectures at 11 a.m. Feb. 5-7. His first talk will deal with "The Spirituality of Production, Distribution and Consumption." Subsequent topics will be "Computerization and Conscience" and "Ethics and Nuclearism." His long list of publications includes articles dealing with religion and technology, business ethics, the ethics of taxation, gay rights, ethics and law, the church and political life and abortion.

The week's closing luncheon, hosted by TCU in Brown-Lupton Student Center, will feature an address by Dr. Russell Dilday, president of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. Gilbert Davis will preside.

Chancellor Bill Tucker will welcome guests and introduce the Wells Preacher at the opening session Monday evening, followed by a chancellor's reception in the dining room of the Student Center.

The Ministers Week observance began in 1888 with the founding of the Texas Lectureship, whose speakers were prominent members of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). Discontinued in 1916, the program was revived in 1933. For five decades TCU has sponsored Ministers Week in cooperation with University Christian Church.

APPROVED MILEAGE RATE CHANGES FEB. 1

The reimbursement for approved business use of a personal vehicle will increase from 20 cents to 20.5 cents per mile on Feb. 1. Approved by Vice Chancellor Leigh Secrest in keeping with the Internal Revenue Service guidelines, the change was announced by controller Larry Calloway.

UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH HONORS MANGIERI

John Mangieri will be in Pittsburgh Saturday to receive an Outstanding Alumni Award from the University of Pittsburgh's School of Education. The award presentation will take place at the school's 75th anniversary reception and dinner.

Honored by the University of Pittsburgh for outstanding contributions in research, scholarship and service, John earned the Ph.D. degree there in 1972 and taught at Penn State, Ohio University and the University of South Carolina before becoming dean of TCU's School of Education in 1982.

John made headlines across the nation last year with a study (co-authored with a former colleague from South Carolina) of why high school students are or are not interested in teaching as a profession.

SULAK TO ASSUME LANDSCAPING, GROUNDS POST

Robert J. Sulak, holder of the B.S. degree in floriculture from Texas A&M, will become superintendent of landscaping and grounds on Feb. 1. Announcement of the appointment was made by Vice Chancellor Howard Wible.

"We are pleased to have Mr. Sulak join us," Wible said. "He brings a wide range of experience and expertise with him and will be of great help as we continue efforts to beautify our campus."

Formerly landscape supervisor at the Dallas Market Center, where his responsibilities included the Apparel Mart, World Trade Center and Loews Anatole, he earlier was supervisor for Six Flags Over Texas for five years. He has served in the Navy Air Reserve and the National Guard.

STUDENT PAPERS NOW BEING SOUGHT

A call for student papers on any topic related to international communications has been issued by the Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication. The papers are sought by the international communication division of AEJMC for its 1985 open paper competition and annual James W. Markham Award competition. Both graduate and undergraduate students are eligible to enter, and the papers will be considered for the division's research sessions Aug. 3-6 in Memphis.

Entries are due April 1, and additional information is available from Anantha Babbili in the journalism department.

JAN. 31 'TCU TODAY' PROGRAMS BEGINS '85 SERIES

A "TCU Today" program for Fort Worth-area high school students and their parents will kick off the spring series of events planned for 29 cities in 15 states from New York to California and from Florida to Minnesota. The on-campus event will be a complimentary dinner Jan. 31 in the Student Center ballroom, beginning at 7 p.m.

Master of ceremonies will be University relations director Larry Lauer. Speakers will be Vice Chancellor Bill Koehler and Fort Worth junior Angela Brown, a graduate of Southwest High School.

The traveling program, inaugurated in 1965 and coordinated by the admissions office, is designed to answer questions about various aspects of collegiate life. An audio-visual presentation serves to introduce the campus, faculty members and student body to prospective students and their parents. TCU's role in higher education and academic areas offered as well as financial aid and admissions procedures are discussed.

Other "TCU Today" programs in Texas will be Feb. 6 in Dallas; Feb. 7, Wichita Falls and Amarillo; Feb. 11, El Paso; Feb. 19, Midland and San Antonio; Feb. 21, Austin and Houston; Feb. 25, Tyler; and Feb. 28, Abilene. Events are planned in North Little Rock; Anaheim and San Mateo, CA; Denver; Miami and Fort Lauderdale, FL; Atlanta; Oakbrook and Lake Forest, IL; Overland Park, KS; New Orleans; Bethesda, MD; Bloomington, MN; St. Louis; Albuquerque; Tarrytown, NY; and Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

DANCE CONCERT IS FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Three young choreographers--two students and an adjunct faculty member--have created jazz, modern and ballet works for a dance concert at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in University Theatre. Admission is free.

Maryanne Klym, graduate student from Fairview Heights, IL, has designed Pulse-beat in Blue, a jazz work in four sections. The new work serves as a master's degree thesis for the ballet/modern dance student.

A contemporary ballet in three parts is the work of Edmond Cooper, TCU senior ballet major from Hot Springs, AR. Sections of the dance are Pagan, to music from Carl Orff's "Carmina Burana;" Janus, to Serge Rachmaninoff's "Symphonic Dances" and Deco, set to cinema works.

Susan Douglas Roberts of Tyler, who holds two degrees from TCU and teaches modern dance here, has created four short works for the concert, a Self-Portrait, in which she is the solo performer; Inside/Out; fragments from Time; and Woven Works.

IES ANNOUNCES FACULTY TRAVEL GRANT

The Institute of European Studies is offering a travel grant to encourage faculty members, particularly those in science, to visit the University of Durham when they are traveling in England. The purpose is to enhance their understanding of that institution in order to advise students who may wish to study there during a junior year abroad.

The grant covers cost of a round-trip tourist class train fare from London to Durham. The IES staff will show the visitors around the university, the residential colleges and the city.

Persons interested in applying for the grant should contact Carol Patton, advisement director, at Ext. 7486.

SCANDINAVIAN CAPITALS ARE ON TRIP ITINERARY

Scandinavian capitals as well as Berlin, Warsaw, Leningrad and London are on the itinerary for the TCU tour that will be conducted by Charles and Betty Peveler. The 23-day trip will begin July 14 with a flight from Dallas to New York and on to Berlin for the first stop. Cities such as Helsinki, Stockholm, Oslo and Copenhagen are included in the custom tour planned by Globus Gateway. The $2,595 fee covers air and land arrangements.

Applications and detailed itineraries will be available Friday from Charles, who has conducted several TCU trips to Europe as well as Canada, the Orient and the South Pacific. He can be contacted in the housing office, Ext. 7865.

SWIMMERS ARE GOING STRONG

TCU men and women swim teams have been busy during the Christmas break. The women's team is the strongest ever, says Coach Richard Sybesma, and already has rolled up some impressive statistics, including first in a seven-team field at the Texas Tech Invitational and a third (TCU's highest finish ever) in the Southwest Conference relays. Both teams had impressive dual wins over Oklahoma, Rice and Henderson State Jan. 19.

This weekend brings two good chances to see the teams in action, says Richard. Texas Tech will be the challenger at 6 p.m. Friday and Northeast Louisiana at 10 a.m. Saturday. Both matches are at the Rickel Center pool and are open at no charge.

Richard has been invited to speak at the National Interscholastic Swimming Coaches convention in March.

WIND ENSEMBLE/SYMPHONIC BAND CONCERT IS MONDAY

TCU's Wind Ensemble and Symphonic Band will present a joint concert at 8 p.m. Monday in Ed Landreth Auditorium. The performance also will be broadcast live over KTCU-FM, 88.7.

The Wind Ensemble, under the direction of Robert Blanton, will perform Symphony for Band by Vincent Persichetti; Concerto in B-flat by Vivaldi-Lang; "The Solitary Dancer," Warren Benson; and "Handel in the Strand," Grainger-Goldman. Linda McDavitt will conduct the Symphonic Band in "Night Flight to Madrid" by Kermit and Walter Leslie, "The Sussex Mummers Christmas Carol" by Percy Grainger and Incantation and Dance by John Barnes Chance.

SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION REAFFIRMS ACCREDITATION

As a result of satisfactorily completing the Institutional Self-Study Program inaugurated in 1982, TCU's accreditation was reaffirmed at the annual meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools at its annual meeting held in December. Chancellor Bill Tucker was notified of the action by Gordon W. Sweet, executive director of the SACS's commission of colleges and Harold E. Wade, associate executive director who was associated with TCU's self-study.

"I want to express my deep appreciation to Dr. Manfred Reinecke, the faculty and staff members and students who worked together to complete this time-consuming and most important assignment in the life of the University," Dr. Tucker said.

The University-wide self-study, conducted at 10-year intervals, was described by the chancellor as "a major undertaking...that can lead us to a clearer understanding of our current situation--both strengths and weaknesses--as we face the challenges ahead" when he announced the project in the spring of 1982.

Chemist Manfred Reinecke was appointed director of the effort. A steering committee was appointed to coordinate the self-study and issue charges for each committee on standards as well as self-study committees for various units and programs. In addition to Manny, it included Neil Daniel as editor and Nancy Sewell, director of Institutional Research and Planning Office, along with chairmen of each of the committees on standards which SACS requires to be met. Steering committee chairs included Bill Vanderhoof (education), Joe Helmick (speech), James Duke (Brite), Allen Self (business), Wayne Ludvigson (psychology), Ted Klein (philosophy), Linda Haviland (sociology), Charles Falk (continuing education), Willadeen Williams (Harris College), Roger Pfaffenberger (business), Leo Newland (environmental sciences) and Don Jackson (political science).

Preparation of the study's summarizing reports was completed in the summer of 1983, and the association's campus visitation was held in November of that year.

CORES RELEASES SECOND TRENDLINE REPORT

The second issue of a detailed study on Tarrant County lifestyles shows that 12 percent of the area's households report problems with drugs or alcohol abuse during the previous two years. In the biannual study entitled "Trendline," TCU's Center for Organizational Research and Evaluation Studies (CORES) includes a detailed report of child-care needs, accessibility of social services and elderly/disabled needs.

In the 12 percent sampling who reported difficulty with substance abuse, 40 percent of problems are attributed to alcohol, 22 percent to marijuana and 38 percent to remaining problems such as cocaine and prescription abuses. "Trendline" shows that alcohol problems are more prevalent for the 30 to 39-year-old group, while marijuana is cited as the biggest problem for persons 20-25 years. Twenty-nine percent said they considered seeking professional help for these problems. The report also states that 27 percent reporting substance abuse problems have annual incomes between $41,000 and $100,000. Additionally, 72 percent are white, 8 percent black and 20 percent Hispanic.

Other problems identified by respondents, in addition to drugs, are reduction of crime (54 percent), improvement of public schools (48 percent), improvements in streets (28 percent) and jobs (26 percent), said Pat Miller (CORES).

Fifty-six percent report they are aware of a general number they can call for help. A greater percentage of the Hispanic population (66 percent) indicate knowing a call-for-help phone number. A slightly smaller percentage of persons in lower income groups report knowing such a number. This is particularly true in the lowest income group composed largely of retired residents.

Eighteen percent of the population sampled report difficulty in finding child-care services, while 28 percent consider obtaining legal services difficult and 30 percent cite mental help.

Obtaining short-term help with money, food or shelter represents the most difficult service to receive for Tarrant County residents. Three percent of the population report having problems with not enough to eat.

The responses for Tarrant County residents with children (48 percent) show that 35 percent utilize 40 or more hours of child-care services per week and 95 percent report satisfaction with services. Particularly striking is the $31,000 to $35,999 income group in which 91 percent of the respondents with children ages one to five report using child care. Eight percent of the sample household population was 60 years or older. Over half (51 percent) of this population earns annual incomes of less than $5,000. A series of questions regarding specific elderly or disabled needs was asked. Thirteen percent of the elderly or disabled persons indicate a need for help in walking, dressing, housework or nursing.

The first issue of "Trendline," released in July of 1984, focused on four major aspects of life in Tarrant County--residents' attitudes toward living in the area, satisfaction with community services, consumer behavior and lifestyle/values. This second issue also supplies descriptive information specifying region, ethnicity and income distributions.

Data are the result of a two-wave "Trendline" sample survey of citizens living in Tarrant County. The samples consist of 1071 and 1107 telephone interviews from a computer-generated random-digit-dialing sample. The first sample data were collected in the Fall of 1983 and the second in the Spring of 1984. The most significant aspect of "Trendline" is that the accumulation of information will allow business, non-profit entities and social service agencies to understand the changes in social and economic variables through time, said Miller.

MARRIOTT OPENS 'STEMS AND STAPLES' SERVICE

Known as "Stems and Staples," a combined convenience store and flower shop was inaugurated Jan. 14 by Marriott Dining Services. The shop is located in the lower level of the Student Center adjacent to the Snack Bar area. As announced by Marriott's Bill Dux, the hours will be 10:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, noon to 8 p.m. Saturdays and 2-10 p.m. Sundays.

Flowers available will include live roses and carnations along with bud vases and a variety of live plants. The "staples" will include milk, bread, soft drinks, snack food, coffee, tea, paper products and other items.

INAUGURATION EVENTS INCLUDED TOUCH OF TCU

Though it may have been subtle, there was a touch of TCU connected with the inauguration activities in Washington. More than 5,000 Texans and Texans-for-a-night" who attended the Lone Star Studded Texas Inaugural Gala honoring George Bush and sponsored by the State of Texas Society heard some collegiate songs... and that included "I Was Purple When Purple Wasn't Cool" in tribute to the Frogs. Alumna Gloria Gilbert, who was Miss Texas in 1982 and provides the song's vocal, attended the function.

Dallas designer Jay Jacks, who earned the B.A. degree here in 1962, designed 14 gowns for the inaugural festivities. He was there to see the creations, described by the Dallas News as including "both opulent ballgowns and the 'simple elegance' look with emphasis on pastel colors."

BANTA ACCEPTS ASSOCIATE DIRECTORSHIP

Lois Banta, member of the University staff since 1977, has been named associate director of personnel. The appointment, announced by Vice Chancellor Howard Wible, was effective Jan. 1.

In her new role, Lois will continue to have major responsibility for administering the expanded benefits program. She also will continue to function as deputy affirmative action officer, a position she has held since 1980.

SENIOR GIVING GOES $2,850 OVER GOAL

Members of the Class of '85 are contributors of the largest amount given by the student group in the history of TCU's Annual Fund drive. This class, led by student division manager Richard Craig, contributed a total of $9,850 as of Dec. 7. The total is $5,000 above last year's senior class gift and $2,850 above the goal set for the 1985 group. Other gifts are expected to bring the figure for 1985 over $10,000.

Richard, a finance major from Amarillo, led a team of 30 volunteers in the fall effort. In April he and his team along with senior contributors will be honored at an afternoon barbeque planned in conjunction with the annual Frog Day Afternoon. Following a pattern set last year, the Class of '85 group will present a live oak tree to the University to be planted in the area adjacent to the Bellaire Drive North and Stadium Drive intersection.

"This class as well as any has an appreciation for the University--its programs and its facilities--and the role former donors had in making these possible," said development officer Jim Orsund, coordinator of the annual fund. "Richard and his volunteers effectively communicated the institution's needs as they led other senior class members in this successful effort."

SEVEN FILMS AVAILABLE FOR FEBRUARY

Seven films have been scheduled for use on campus during February, according to an announcement by director John Eaton of the Instructional Media Center. Persons interested in scheduling showings are asked to contact Susan Holland or John at the center, Ext. 7121.

The films and available dates are "Memory" and "Cotton Fiber to Fabric" on Feb. 4; "Group Think," Feb. 5; "Statistics at a Glance," Feb. 11; "The Feast" and "Trobriand Cricket," Feb. 14; and "Sexuality: The Human Heritage," Feb. 26.

NOTES ON FOLKS

HUNTER BECKELHYMER (Brite) completed his term as president of the Academy of Homiletics by presiding at the sessions of its 1984 annual meeting, Dec. 5-8 at Princeton Theological Seminary. The Academy is the professional organization of professors of preaching, Protestant and Catholic, in the United States and Canada.

Psychologists TOM ROCKLIN and DONALD DANSEREAU along with graduate students ANGELA O'DONNELL, JUDITH LAMBIOTTE, VELMA HYTHECKER and graduate (Ph.D.) CELIA LARSON are authors of an article published in Computers and Education Sept. 1, 1985, entitled "Training Learning Strategies with Computer-Aided Cooperative Learning."

The first issue of Texas Sings, published by the Texas Choral Directors Association, featured an article by RUTH WHITLOCK (music) entitled "Music and Academics: Allies or Adversaries."

Funeral services were conducted Jan. 21 at Harveson and Cole Funeral Chapel for CLEO FAYE MCCANS, former library staff member who died Jan. 18. She served as clerk/typist in the library's acquisitions department from 1967 to 1976.

ARNOLD BARKMAN (accounting) has had a paper accepted for presentation at the Midwest Regional Meeting of the American Accounting Association to be held March 27-29 in Chicago. The paper, "A Reevaluation of the Accountants' Stereotype," was co-authored with JOHN TOULIATOS (home economics) and Art Bedeian and Kevin Mossholder, both of Auburn.

TCU claims four of 16 music educators whose "dedication and professionalism is beyond compare," according to Texas Music Educators Association president Sally Schott of Pasadena. She referred to 16 elementary, secondary and higher educational music professionals who formed a special curriculum committee to develop models of quality curriculum documents and model lesson plans to aid Texas school districts in developing appropriate curriculum as mandated by the state's new educational reform legislation. RUTH WHITLOCK and LOIS LAND of the music faculty worked on the choral section of the curriculum, and alumni Carol Smith of Sam Houston State and Jerry Longwell of the Hurst-Eules-Bedford school district worked with orchestra and band sections, respectively.

MICHAEL WOLFE (curriculum/instruction) received word that two articles have been accepted for publication. The Clearinghouse will publish "Making Every Minute Count" and the Small Schools Forum will publish his article, "Counseling in Bush Alaska."

A panel of wine experts, including SPENCER WERTZ (philosophy), discussed the evaluation of wine at a recent les Amis du Vin wine tasting at the Petroleum Club with 300 people present. Spencer said that the panel reminded him of his Friday afternoon tennis game: he was included because they needed a fourth.

JIM CORDER (English) read a paper, "Teaching, Technology, and the Meditative Pause," at New Mexico State University's conference on university teaching Jan. 9-10.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

An article by MORRISON WONG (sociology) and Charles Hirschman of Cornell entitled "Socioeconomic Gains of Asian Americans, Blacks, and Hispanics: 1960-1976" appeared in the recent publication of American Journal of Sociology.

BILLIE CUNNINGHAM (accounting) has had a paper accepted for presentation at the 10th annual conference of the Economic and Business Historical Society to be held April 25-27 in Chicago. The title of the paper is "Blind Faith or Antitrust: A History of the Relationship Between the Learned Professions and Federal Antitrust Regulation."

An article authored by LOIS LAND (adjunct music faculty) entitled "Teacher-Training: Possibilities for Positive Action" appeared in the November 1984 issue of the Southwestern Musician. The topic was assigned to Lois by the Texas Music Educators Association Symposium '85 Committee.

PAUL KING and RALPH BEHNKE (speech communication) presented a paper entitled "Teaching Interviewing Skills by Electronically Mediated Simulations" at the recent annual meeting of the Speech Communication Association in Chicago.

TITA FRENCH (doctoral student in English) has an article, "A Good Crot Is Hard to Find" in the January issue of Rhetoric Review, edited by Theresa Enos of SMU, a TCU Ph.D. Another doctoral candidate in English, DEBORAH KUHLMANN, was at the University of Mississippi last weekend reading her paper, "Chaucer's Book of the Duchess and the Wife of Bath's Tale: The Deliverance of Truth or the Consolation of Confession."

Funeral services were conducted Jan. 24 in Dallas for NOBEL J. ATKINS, a member of TCU's Lettermen's Hall of Fame who died Jan. 22 following a lengthy illness. An elder emeritus of Dallas' Northway Christian Church, the former coach and public school administrator was a center and linebacker on the Frogs' first southwest Conference championship team in 1929-30. He was named most valuable player in 1930.

On Jan. 22 FRED ERISMAN (English) spoke on children's literature to the creative writing group of the Junior Woman's Club of Fort Worth, discussing "Good History, Bad History, and the 'Little House' Books."

Minister to the University JOHN BUTLER has been elected president of The Association of Ecumenical Ministries in Tarrant County, an organization to provide assessment of human need in Tarrant County, common evaluation and cooperation in programming, common reporting of program and standards for both services to individuals and accountability to the churches. Member agencies include Catholic Charities, Northside Interchurch Agency, Southside Area Ministries and Tarrant Area Community of Churches.

DONNA EDWARDS conducted a master class and workshop and presented a lecture-concert on French Keyboard Music for the Shreveport Music Teachers Association recently.
