BOLLER ENDOWS HONORS AWARD

The mutual admiration between Emeritus Professor Paul Boller and the TCU Honors Program has resulted in the TCU Honors Scholar Award to be presented annually to an Honors student for special study. In presenting a $10,000 gift to TCU, Paul wrote: "My last years of teaching were made so pleasant by my association with the TCU Honors Program that I would like to have my gift used for a specific purpose within that program."

Accordingly, Honors Program director Jim Kelly has announced the $650 annual award to be presented on the basis of a student's academic performance and potential and on the merits of a proposal written by the student in support of a particular program of study. Financial need may also be considered.

The program may be carried out on or off campus, Jim says, and may include special study abroad, laboratory or field research, a National Collegiate Honors Council Honors Semester, a professionally related apprenticeship program such as a Washington Internship, travel to participate in a professional meeting, symposium or art exhibit or some other specific study.

Freshmen, sophomores and juniors in good standing in the TCU Honors Program are eligible. Applications, available in the Honors office in Sadler Hall 207, will include an essay of not more than 1,000 words describing the proposed program of study as well as letters of recommendation from two TCU faculty members addressing the academic performance and potential as well as the character of the student. Applications are due in the Honors Program office by April 15. The recipient will be named by a selection committee named by the TCU Honors Council.

Paul, who came to TCU in 1976 as first holder of the Lyndon B. Johnson Chair of History, was honored by students with all their top teaching awards by the time of his retirement seven years later. He won the Brachman Teaching Award in 1982, was Mortar Board Top Prof for 1982-83 and received the Honors Program's Faculty Recognition Award in 1983, when he was cited as an outstanding teacher because he has remained a student. "He continues to learn, to read, to work hard, to study, to write . . . and to show unending concern for us--his 'fellow students.'"

The new award is not Paul's first gift to the Honors Program. In 1982 he presented an endowment allowing an annual award to be given to the student judged to have presented the outstanding senior honors project during Honors Week. That award is named in honor of his late parents.

NUTT EARNS ALL-SWC HONORS

Senior Dennis Nutt, the feisty 6-2 guard from Little Rock, takes his place on the five-man all-Southwest Conference basketball team. Announced March 4, the team also includes Mike Wacker of Texas, Jon Koncak of SMU, Bubba Jennings of Texas Tech and Joe Kleine of Arkansas.

Named to the second all-SWC team last year, Dennis became the fourth leading scorer in TCU cage history this season. When the latest honor was announced, he had a 17.6-point average.

On this year's second team is the Frogs' Carven Holcombe, a 6-5 sophomore from Houston.

NEW FACULTY, STAFF APPOINTMENTS

In his position as assistant director of ranch management since January, DONALD NELSON served as vice president for policy coordination of the National Cattlemen's Association in 1981-84. Formerly executive vice president of the American International Charolais Association, he holds the Ph.D. degree from Ohio State as well as degrees from the University of California-Davis and California State at Fresno, where he was a professor of animal science in 1964-74.

PHIL SPITZER, director of planned giving in the development division, was associated for eight years with the firms of Merrill Lynch and A.F. Edwards & Sons as investment counselor and estate planner. The Houston native is an alumnus of Sam Houston State University.

To have a major role in job development and working with MBA students in her position as placement specialist in the Career Planning and Placement Center, JAN BAKER has been a placement specialist in the Counseling, Testing and Career Placement Office at the University of Texas-Arlington. Holder of the master's degree from Texas Woman's University, she also is an experienced realtor.

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROGRAMS BEGIN NEW SESSION

A full schedule of community service classes begins the week of March 25. Categories of classes include art/cultural, business/professional, communications, fun/hobbies and physical fitness.

Special programs for women and children will also be offered during the second spring session.

A complete listing of the non-credit, low-cost programs is available from the Continuing Education office at Ext. 7134.

RETIREMENT PLANNING SEMINARS START MARCH 25

A six-part retirement planning seminar series, offered by the Personnel Office in conjunction with the retirement, insurance and benefits committee, will begin March 25. The first of four sessions will be conducted from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 205 of the Student Center.

The initial session will deal with adjusting to the transition of retirement, creative uses of time and housing chores. For the April 1 seminar, mid-life roles such as marriage, single living, older parents, children and grandchildren, friends/networks and wellness will be discussed.

Financial planning, estate planning/legal concerns and vital record-keeping will be subjects discussed April 8, while the April 15 meeting will focus on Social Security/Medicare, health insurance, crime prevention and home safety. The sessions on April 22 and April 29, both free and open to the public, will be conducted by representatives of the Pension Fund of the Christian Church (PFCC) and Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association/College Retirement Equities Fund (TIAA/REF).

Registrations, set at $10 per person for the entire series, will be accepted until Friday (March 15). Additional information is available from the Personnel Office, Ext. 7790.

ALBY EXHIBITION OPENS MARCH 26

Relief Assemblages, the master's thesis exhibition of graduate student Rick D. Alby, will be on view in Moudy Building exhibition space March 26 through April 1. The painter/sculptor will be honored at an opening reception from 7 to 9 p.m. March 26. Hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and 1-4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

The showing highlights work employing the senses of both painter and sculptor. Consisting of natural wood, paint and canvas, the work represents three related series--the Gate, the River and Interpose. Alby's work is derived from visual references to power, religion and nature, combining natural gesture and manipulated forms in an attempt to clarify the nature of personal and spiritual experience affected by high culture.

MARCH 14 EVENT TO HONOR VIRGINIA MARX

The Financial Aid Office will host a party Thursday to honor associate director Virginia Marx on her retirement. The 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. fete will be held in Room 205 of the Student Center.

Virginia joined TCU's staff in January 1973 as secretary to then-director Logan Ware. Later serving as assistant and associate director, she was acting director of financial aid for about a year before Leo Munson assumed that division's leadership in the 1984 fall semester.

Retirement plans, Virginia says, include travels with husband Bill and spending more time with their seven children and grandchildren.

KING SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATIONS ARE AVAILABLE

Applications are being accepted in the Financial Aid Office for the Faculty/Staff Martin Luther King Jr. Scholarship designated for students committed to a career in service to humanity. Applications are due by April 15.

Preference is given to minority applicants. A career in service to humanity would be one consistent with the values and purposes reflected in the life of Martin Luther King Jr.

Applicants must demonstrate financial eligibility and must submit an essay of not more than 750 words focusing on how the applicant's proposed career is seen as being "in service to humanity." Letters of recommendation are required from two TCU faculty/staff members or high school teachers, counselor or principal. Continuing students must have a minimum cumulative grade-point average of 3.0, and that average also is required for continuing an award beyond the first year.

SCIENCE FAIR OPENS IN COLISEUM TODAY

The 34th annual Fort Worth Regional Science Fair, which opens today (Tuesday) in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum, will feature project exhibits submitted by students in grades 6 through 12 from Fort Worth area schools. The display will continue through March 17, and judging for some 200 awards is set for Friday.

In addition to providing facilities for the popular annual event, TCU awards scholarships to winners who are graduating seniors.

INTRAMURAL SOFTBALL ENTRIES DUE

Entries for intramural softball teams are due before the spring recess, which begins Friday, according to intramural director Maggie Mabee. Teams can be composed of faculty and staff members as well as students and can be all men, all women or coed.

Coed games will be on Sunday afternoons, and other tournaments will be Mondays through Thursdays from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. Entry forms should contain notation if there are times particular teams cannot participate. For the competition, the intramural office will provide bats, catcher's gear, bases and softballs.

Entry forms should be taken to Room 238, Rickel Building, and persons with questions may call Ext. 7948. A mandatory team meeting is set for tomorrow (Wednesday) at 3:30 p.m. in Room 230, Rickel Building. Entering teams must be represented, and rules will be discussed at the session.

DISCIPLES LECTURE IS TOMORROW

"Unknown Prophets: Black Disciples Ministry in Historical Perspective" is the title of the sixth annual Charles Jackson and Benjamin Franklin Russell Disciples Heritage Lecture to be presented tomorrow (Wednesday) in Robert Carr Chapel. Speaker for the 7:30 p.m. program will be Prof. Kenneth Henry of the Interdenominational Theological Center in Atlanta.

TCU WINS TWO OF PR SOCIETY'S TOP AWARDS

TCU entries in two categories of the Texas Public Relations Society's Silver Spur Awards competition are first-place winners. Announced at a March 2 dinner at the Americana Hotel, the awards are for the 30-minute film "Lili" and a six-minute slide show entitled "TCU Journalism: A Hand-Tooled Education."

Entries in the annual competition come from across the state from society members and include all areas of public relations from education to corporations. More than 300 entries were judged for this year's awards. Co-chairing the competition were Norm Teich of Teich Communications and Kay Barkin of Texas College of Emergency Physicians. Master of ceremonies for the dinner was WBAP Radio news director Joe Holstead.

"Lili," the feature on the life of former artist-in-residence Lili Kraus which aired nationally on PBS in January, was entered in the video film/feature length category and received the "best of Texas" first-place award. Present for the presentation were Larry Lauer and Sherrie Ham, the film's executive and associate producers, respectively.

Coordinated by Jack Raskopf, who premiered the show at last fall's Journalism Exes breakfast, the first-place winner depicting TCU's journalism education was entered in the multimedia category for slide shows using one or two projectors. Jack and department head Doug Newsom were present for the honor.

"Lili" recently garnered another award, that of "best of category" in fine and performing arts, in the 28th San Francisco International Film Festival. The competition is open to non-theatrical specialized films and tapes in a wide area of subjects. The award winners will be screened publicly as part of the April 11-27 festival.

TCU RANKS IN 25 LARGEST AREA EMPLOYERS

In its March 4 issue, the Dallas/Fort Worth Business Journal identified the 25 largest Fort Worth-area employers, and TCU was 25th on the list with its 1,494 employees and an estimated annual local payroll of $35 million. Heading the list with 16,500 employees and a $496 million payroll was General Dynamics.

Following in order, the others in the top 10 were American Airlines Inc., 8,787; Fort Worth Independent School District, 7,332; Tandy Corp./Radio Shack, 6,600; Bell Helicopter Textron Inc., 6,200; Carswell Air Force Base, 5,944; City of Fort Worth, 5,416; General Motors Corp./GM Assembly Division, 4,900; Delta Airlines, 3,655; and Southwestern Bell Telephone, 3,339. The University of Texas-Arlington with 2,400 employees and a $46 million payroll ranked 14th, and Tarrant County Junior College was in 19th place with 1,945 employees and a $31.9 million payroll.

CADETS' HOLIDAY INCLUDES JUMPS IN GERMANY

Jumping out of helicopters onto foreign soil isn't the typical spring break getaway for college students, but it is the opportunity of a lifetime for nine ROTC cadets going to West Germany to earn that army's parachutist wings. Each of the nine cadets has successfully completed Basic Airborne Training in this country and is a qualified jumper. The unusual idea of taking the cadets to Germany to earn a second set of wings was concocted by Lt. Col. Bruce Stacy, who heads TCU's Army ROTC. Holder of jump wings from both the United States and Canada, he was stationed for three years in Germany prior to his assignment here last June.

Through his overseas connections, Bruce has arranged for the cadets to earn their German jump wings at West German Airborne Training Center at Altanstadt. There the cadets will work with German army weaponry and learn to take their jump commands in German. To earn their wings, they must complete five jumps in two days. By comparison, the cadets underwent three weeks of the U.S. Army's most rigorous training to earn their first set of wings at Fort Benning, GA, last summer. In addition to the jumps, a day of ski training at Garmish, meetings with foreign allied officials and military personnel and briefings on border security have been arranged.

"While touring, parachuting and skiing are going to be fun, I sense that looking across the fence into East Germany will be a very sobering experience," the ROTC chairman said. "I also hope this trip will demonstrate to our cadets the solidarity of NATO forces."

The cadets also will have an opportunity to do some recruiting for the University. While in Munich, they will visit the University of Maryland extension campus. Since the campus offers only a two-year program, many of the students transfer to universities in the United States. The cadets will present a program on the benefits and opportunities of TCU and Army ROTC.

The 10-day visit won't be all work and no play. Plans include a visit to Heidelberg Castle, the Gutenberg museum and a tour of the Rhineland that includes a dinner in their honor, hosted by the mayor of a village that named Bruce an honorary citizen. The cadets also will have free time to explore the city of Munich and to see firsthand a German village virtually unchanged in appearance since the 15th Century.

The cadets and Bruce will leave Friday for Frankfurt and will return March 26. The airborne-qualified cadets are Daryl Adams of Arlington; Alice Gilbert of San Antonio; Stephen Hodnett of Jersey City, NJ; Douglas Iefew of Marriott Island, FL; Sam Castorani of Houston; Allen McCormick of Tulsa; William Davis of Dallas; James Bice of Azle; and Stephen Lamkin of Midland.

BRITE TO HONOR BACH

Brite Divinity School will commemorate the 300th anniversary of the birth of Johann Sebastian Bach with a special worship service in Robert Carr Chapel at 11 a.m. today (Tuesday). All components of the order of worship will be aided by the use of Bach's compositions--including the sermon, which will be sung by the Brite Choir.

TCU/CLIBURN TO HOST PIANO INSTITUTE

Van Cliburn Foundation and TCU will team to offer master classes, seminars and symposia this spring by some of the world's most distinguished musicians. The TCU/Cliburn Competition Piano Institute May 17 through June 3 is open to auditors as well as performers.

Van Cliburn has written of his pleasure that TCU, one of the international piano competition's co-sponsors since its beginning in 1962, has undertaken this institute. "Young artists and their teachers, as well as other music lovers, will have the unique opportunity of benefiting from some of the world's greatest musical minds as well as attending every competition event," he said.

Piano master classes will be taught by performers Cecile Ousset, Jorge Bolet and Malcolm Frager, and Tadeusz Strugala, permanent conductor of the Warsaw Philharmonic, will lead a master class for conductors. Seminars will include one for composers by John Corigliano; for piano technicians by master piano builders Joel and Priscilla Rappaport; master recordings, Harold C. Schonberg, longtime senior music critic for the New York Times; piano teachers, Tamas Ungar, head of TCU piano faculty. Teaching symposia will be Peter Hodgson, TCU music chairman, music critics; Charles Hamlen, artist managers; and Ernest Fleischmann, executive director, Los Angeles Philharmonic, orchestra managers.

Fifteen performing participants currently are being selected. Auditing participants must register by April 10. Single admissions to the piano institute master classes, symposia and seminars will be on a first-come, first-served basis subject to availability of seating.

The TCU/Cliburn Competition Piano Institute is funded by a grant from the Meadows Foundation and by TCU alumna Mrs. W. Dewey Lawrence. Full scholarships will be awarded performing participants, and some grants-in-aid are available for auditors.

SAX RECITAL IS MARCH 25

Morris Moore, soprano and alto saxophonist, will present a Music Department Concert Series recital at 8 p.m. March 25 in Ed Landreth Auditorium. Assisting will be two TCU students, Adam Lara, alto saxophone, and Lance Winders, tenor and baritone saxophones, along with Alan Burton, alto sax; Denise French, oboe; Paul Stebbins, bassoon; Lawrence Riley, alto and baritone saxophones; Larry Thompson, clarinet; and Jim Walton, tenor sax.

The program will include "Les Trois Mousquetaires" by Pierre-Max Dubois, Quartet for Reeds by Walter S. Hartley, Divertimento No. 12 by Paul Arma, Legende by Marcel Poot, Grave et Presto by Jean Rivier and two Scott Joplin numbers, "Elite Syncopations" and "Scott Joplin's New Rag."

NOTES ON FOLKS

DAVID FINN and BILL MONCRIEF have been notified that their article, "Salesforce Entertainment Activities," has been accepted for publication in Industrial Marketing Management and will appear in a future issue.

RICHARD LYSIAK (physics) was the invited major speaker Feb. 25 at a workshop in Albuquerque for specialists in wavefront reconstruction. The invitation-only workshop was organized by the Los Alamos Laser Group. Dick's research with the two-lens system was found to be particularly applicable with laser amplifiers. The research has resulted in significant improvement in the design of laser amplifiers.

DOTTIE PHILLIPS (Student Activities) has received word that her article, "How to Treat Lecturers," will appear in Campus Activities Programming Magazine published by the National Association for Campus Activities.

MICHAEL WOLFE and ELENE DEMOS (education) presented a workshop entitled "Master Supervising Teacher Training Program" at the National Association of Teacher Educators Conference in Las Vegas. In addition, Mike presented another workshop entitled "School-University Partnerships (Adopt-a-School)" at the same conference. He recently gave a workshop, "Matching Teaching and Learning Styles," at the Fort Worth Association for the Education of Young Children's annual conference and delivered a speech on gifted education to the faculties of Fort Worth Country Day School and Trinity Valley.

At the Feb. 28-March 2 meeting in Fort Worth of the Texas State Historical Association, JIM CORDER (English) read a paper titled "History Is Fiction, Except the Part That I Like, Which Is, Of Course, True."

RALPH GUENTHER (emeritus, music) will be presented on the 1985 Festival of Texas Composers. The concert, a part of the Seventieth Annual Convention of the Texas Federation of Music Clubs, will be held in San Antonio March 12-15. Ralph's work, "How Fast The Moon," is written for solo soprano and string quartet and will be presented on March 13. Three concerts by Texas composers are being given, and 20 composers are represented on the series. Ralph's composition is a three-movement piece with the text by JAMES NEWCOMER (vice chancellor, emeritus).

CYNTHIA FOLIO (music) completed all requirements for the Ph.D. in music theory at Eastman School of Music by successfully defending her dissertation Feb. 27. She will present a paper taken from a portion of her dissertation at the National Conference of the American Society of University Composers March 28-30 at Tempe, AZ. Title of the paper is "The Synthesis of Traditional and Contemporary Practices in Joseph Schwantner's 'Sparrows.'"

CHARLES LATHAM (Upward Bound) was a trainer for a programs management workshop funded by the U.S. Department of Education. The workshop, held in Baton Rouge Feb. 26-March 1, was for new Upward Bound directors from the South and Southwest United States. Charles' topic was "Administrative and Instructional Uses of Computers by Upward Bound Projects." The workshop will be repeated in November at the Southwest Association of Student Assistance Programs 14th annual conference in Santa Fe, NM.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

NOAH KNEPPER (music) recently performed and demonstrated woodwind instruments at the Kimbell Art Museum for the Children's Workshop series. During the presentation "Music in Art," Knepper's short solos on flute, piccolo, clarinet, oboe, English horn and bassoon were coordinated with slides of paintings from the Kimbell holdings.

Stephen Paulus, composer of the opera "The Postman Always Rings Twice," and Dwight Bowes, general director of the Fort Worth Opera, were guests of ROSEMARY SOLOMONS (radio-TV-film) Feb. 27 on her KTCU program, Matinee with the Masters. The Fort Worth Opera recently presented "The Postman," which is described as one of the most important new operas of the 20th Century.

Trustee ALANN BEDFORD has been named to the executive committee of United Way of Metropolitan Tarrant County, and Chancellor BILL TUCKER has been named to a three-year term on its board of directors.

SPENCER WERTZ (philosophy) has published a review essay of "The Zen Way to Martial Arts" by Taisen Deshimaru in the latest issue of the Journal of the Philosophy of Sport.

LISA FUSILLO (ballet) attended the annual conference of the Society of Dance History Scholars in Albuquerque in February. Lisa was honored as Mortar Board's "Top Prof" in the Fall of 1984 and has recently been selected as an Outstanding Young Woman of America.

BETSY COLQUITT (English) has been named a member of artistic and academic advisory board of The Software Teacher Inc., an Alabama-based corporation which develops and markets computer programs for teaching creative writing in universities, colleges, high schools and libraries. Others on the advisory board include such authors as Academy Award-winning screenwriter Harry Brown ("A Place in the Sun"), internationally known novelist Christopher Isherwood, whose book "Berlin Stories" was the basis for the movie "Cabaret," and Glenn Allen Smith, former artistic director of the Dallas Theater Center, who wrote the nationally produced play, "Curious in L.A."

JIM HUDSON and ERIC KLEIN (computer center) recently attended INTERFACE '85, a trade show/conference in Atlanta featuring over 300 computer and communication-related exhibitors. In addition to viewing state-of-the-art equipment displays, they heard leading communications experts presenting the latest information on a variety of topics. Jim and Eric also attended the GANDALF PACX Users Group meeting prior to the conference where they gave a presentation on the TCU computer/communications network.

CURT WILSON and the TCU jazz program were the subject of a newsletter circulated to members of the International Count Basie Society, which is headquartered in London. Dealing with the Count Basie Band performance on campus in November, Jay Montague had only good things to say about the performance and about Curt. "This guy is a jewel," he wrote.

RICHARD LYSIAK (physics) was an invited speaker at the Quantum Electronics and Applications Society meeting held Feb. 27 in Dallas. He discussed "Quality of Wavefront Reconstruction Via Stimulated Backscatter."

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS
