DISCOVERER OF 'LUCY' TO BE HONORS SCHOLAR

Dr. Donald C. Johanson, founding director of the Institute of Human Origins in Berkeley, CA, and the man who discovered "Lucy," the oldest, most complete skeleton known to anthropologists, will be visiting Green Honors Professor during Honors Week April 8-14.

The paleoanthropologist's discoveries have greatly altered human understanding of the origin of man. His exploration in the Afar Triangle area of Ethiopia in 1973 led to his first major find, a knee joint described as the "oldest anatomical evidence for man's bipedal stature." It was a year later in the same area that Dr. Johanson and a student found "Lucy." That discovery led to a reassessment of earlier traditional theories on the development of man as an upright walking creature and has created a challenge to evolutionary theories proposed by the Leakeys. In 1975, Dr. Johanson uncovered fossil remains of at least 13 beings, an associated group often referred to as "the first family."

Jim Kelly, Honors Program director, says: "The significance of Johanson's scientific discoveries and consequent contributions to knowledge and understanding of human origins cannot be overstated. His research may be as important to our understanding of human evolution as was the advent of quantum theory to our understanding of the nature of matter and energy in the physical world."

Dr. Johanson is a graduate of the University of Illinois who holds both M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago. He has taught at Case Western Reserve and Kent State universities, was director of Scientific Research and of the Laboratory of Physical Anthropology at Cleveland Museum of Natural History and is a research associate in anthropology at the University of California at Berkeley.

His three presentations during Honors Week will include the Sigma Xi address, "The Current Status of Australopithecus," at 8 p.m. April 10 in Moudy Building 141 North; the Honors Week Convocation address, "In Search of Our Origins," at 11 a.m. April 11 in Ed Landreth Auditorium; and that afternoon's open forum, a discussion with students and faculty on the convocation topic at 2 p.m. in the Faculty Center in Reed Hall.

Opening event of Honors Week will be senior honors presentations from 2 to 4:20 p.m. Monday in the Faculty Center. After Jim's opening remarks, papers will be given by Laura Matysek, history, "Die Mauer: The Reasons Behind and the Effects of the Building of the Berlin Wall"; Cynthia McKinney, English, "Nihilism versus Spirituality: The Struggle Within the Souls of Dostoevsky's Characters"; Sally Bohon, art history, "An Answer to Saint Bernard's Question: Why the Grotesque?"; Grant Whittenberg, economics, "The New International Economic Order: Some Implications for an Evolving World"; Thomas Kelso, theatre arts, "Synthesis of the Arts: Theatre, Music and Photography in 'Fugue in a Nursery'"; and John Murzyn, chemistry, "A Mechanistic Study of the Reduction of Quinoline-N-Borane." Don Jackson and John Wortham will preside over the Monday sessions.

April 9 senior honors projects, to be presented from 2 to 4 p.m., will be by Ann Maire Watkins, religion-studies, "Christian Social Ministry and Social Work: The Blending of Perspectives"; Cynthia Kessler, history, "The Commentor and the Critic"; James Koster, physics, "Bremsstrahlung Radiation Spectra: A Tentative Model"; Holly Marshall, English, "Katherine Anne Porter, Flannery O'Connor, Eudora Welty: Reflections of Death and Time"; and Jean Robb, nursing, "Stressors Experienced by Critical Care Nurses." Bill Jurma and Carolyn Cagle will preside. Faculty panel members to pick the winner of the Boller Award for the outstanding presenter will be John Albright, Jean Giles-Sims, Marjorie Lewis, Jim Riddlesperger and Glenn Routt.

Jurma, chairman of the Honors Week committee, will preside over the convocation, and the invocation will be given by Julie Jasica, senior Honors student. Alpha Lambda Delta awards will be announced by Michael Hanson, president of the honor society, and Greek Scholarship Trophy winners by Salli Shields and Steven Duble, presidents of Panhellenic and Interfraternity councils. Don Jackson, past president of Phi Beta Kappa, will reveal the names of Phi Beta Kappa electees. Andy Miracle will introduce Dr. Johanson, and Hiram Jackson, chairman of the Student Honors Cabinet, will present the Faculty Recognition Award for 1985. Nordan Scholar Chris Griffith will be organist.

Chuck Becker, last year's Honors professor, will be speaker for the Honors Banquet at 6:30 p.m. April 11 in the Student Center ballroom. "The Good, Bad and Indifferent News--An Absent-Minded Professor's Views" will be his topic. The dinner also will feature presentation of senior scholars by Chancellor Bill Tucker, along with presentations of Sigma Xi Award by Bill Graham, Phi Beta Kappa Award by Don Jackson and the Boller Award by Jim Kelly.

Other events during Honors Week will include the Kappa Tau Alpha (journalism honor society) banquet at 5 p.m. Monday in the Student Center's Woodson Room, Pi Kappa Lambda Honors Recital at 8 p.m. April 9 in Ed Landreth Auditorium and Mortar Board initiation at 2 p.m. April 14 in Robert Carr Chapel, followed by a reception in the Faculty Center.

NEW CHAIR WILL HONOR FORMER TRUSTEE PENROSE

A newly endowed position in the history department will honor the lifelong interest of a former trustee, the late Neville G. Penrose of Fort Worth. The Neville G. Penrose Chair of Latin American Studies, being funded by a private gift of $750,000, was announced by Chancellor Bill Tucker at last week's meeting of the Addison and Randolph Clark Society. Penrose was an independent oil man widely recognized for his advocacy of improved relations between Latin America and the United States.

"Given TCU's location and existing faculty strengths in related areas, the Penrose Chair opens important new vistas for teaching and research," Chancellor Tucker said. "Neville G. Penrose was a man of vision and sought his whole life to foster learning and better understanding between the people of Latin America and the United States. The holder of the Penrose Chair will undoubtedly contribute toward those same goals for years to come."

A search will begin the fall for a new scholar with expertise in the history and culture of Latin America and Latin American relationships with the United States. The appointment will be made for the beginning of the 1986 fall semester.

Penrose, member of TCU's board as an active and then honorary member from 1968 until his death in 1977, moved to Fort Worth from his native Philadelphia in 1928 to begin his oil business. His association with Mexico began in 1912, when he moved there to work. Twice captured and threatened with execution by the legendary Pancho Villa, he joined the U.S. Cavalry and was part of General John Pershing's forces that tracked Villa.

A wildcatter in West Texas and New Mexico, Penrose was chairman of Penrose Products Company and had oil and ranching interests in nine states and the Republic of Mexico. He was founder of the Penrose Good Neighbor Foundation, designed to assist Spanish-speaking students, and was its president for several years. He served on the Texas Good Neighbor Commission for seven years by appointment of then-Governor Allan Shivers and later was named its honorary chairman for life. He also was founder/president of the International Good Neighbor Council.

Well known for his political activities, including membership on the State Democratic Executive Committee in 1943-52, Penrose was cited in 1963 by the Fort Worth chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews for his "contribution to his fellow man and, particularly, for his interest and support of the advancement of minority groups." His leadership as "a constructive supporter of childhood education for the underprivileged" was noted when TCU bestowed the honorary Doctor of Laws degree in 1968.

Penrose, active in numerous civic, educational and political endeavors, was a member of the National Petroleum Council, a director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Camp Fire Girls, Texas Society for Crippled Children and Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

TANDY EXECUTIVE PROGRAM EXPANDS

Three senior executives will visit the Neeley School during April and May as part of the David L. Tandy Executive-in-Residence Program.

P.W. Ifland, manager of professional and regulatory services at Proctor and Gamble Company, will discuss his dealings with the federal regulatory system today and tomorrow. The TCU graduate holds master's and Ph.D. degrees in chemistry from the University of Texas at Austin. Since 1956, he has worked for Proctor and Gamble, rising through the ranks of the company based in Cincinnati, OH. His primary responsibilities are dealing with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, the Consumer Products Safety Commission and the Office of Occupational Safety and Health (OSHA).

Executive vice president of the General Dynamics Corporation, Richard E. Adams will be on campus April 17-19. He served as president and general manager of the corporation's Fort Worth division before taking over the executive post in St. Louis, MO. Adams received the B.S. degree in mechanical engineering from Purdue University and also holds an honorary Doctor of Engineering degree from that university.

Leo L. Contois, senior vice president of human resources for Consolidated Foods Corporation in Chicago, IL., will be here May 1-2. In his position, he has overall responsibility for directing the activities of more than 95,000 employees throughout the $7 billion diversified consumer products corporation.

The Executive-in-Residence Program was made possible by a grant from the Tandy Corporation. It was inaugurated in 1980 as a means of attracting recently retired chief executive officers or vice presidents who could bring real-world business experience to the classroom. The visits of Ifland, Adams and Contois will begin a new phase that will supplement the existing program. The senior executives will be on campus for two days of seminars and classroom lectures. Each executive will be directed to business classes where his or her expertise may be utilized.

Retired executives will continue to contribute to the program on a semester-by-semester basis. Currently James H. Brown, formerly president and chief executive officer of the Fort Worth and Denver Railway Co., is serving as executive-in-residence.

SCHEDULES CHANGE FOR EASTER WEEKEND

Some changes in schedules for campus facilities have been made for the Easter weekend. All University offices will be closed Friday. Other changes include:

Library: Open 7:45 a.m. to 10 p.m. on April 4; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on April 5; 9 a.m. to noon on April 6. Closed April 7.

Student Center: Closed April 6-7.

Rickel Building: Open 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. on April 5; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. April 6; 1-6 p.m. April 7. Pool will be open noon to 7 p.m. on April 5; noon to 6 p.m. April 6; 1-6 p.m. April 7. Beginning immediately, the pool's regular opening will be at 3 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

PAGANO RECITAL IS MONDAY

Caio Pagano, a winner of the International Beethoven Award, will perform Beethoven's Sonata in F Minor (Appassionata) as a part of his TCU Music Department Concert Series recital at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

The program also will include Haydn's Sonata in F Major, the Sonetto del Petrarca No. 2 by Franz Liszt and four works by Chopin, Impromptu No. 2, Nocturne Op.9, Nocturne Op. 27 No. 1 and Ballade Op. 52.

Caio, a native of Sao Paulo, twice was voted as the best pianist of Brazil. He has performed with leading orchestras here and in Central and South America as well as in Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, England and Germany. He joined the TCU music faculty last fall.

DAVIES WILL SPEAK FOR MIDLAND PROGRAM

Internationally recognized biblical scholar Dr. William David Davies, who holds the A.A. Bradford Chair of Religion-Studies, will be featured speaker in Midland for an April 3 gathering of Permian Basin-area alumni and friends of TCU. "An Evening with a Professor," sponsored by the TCU Permian Basin Association, will be held in the home of Jane Bradford Armstrong.

Credited with shaping the direction of the study of origins of the Christian religion, Dr. Davies joined the faculty in 1982 as holder of the distinguished professorship that bears the name of the late Andrew A. "Jack" Bradford of Midland. The prominent oilman served on the University's board of trustees in an active and later honorary capacity from 1951 until his death in 1978. The chair in the religion-studies department was permanently endowed through a gift of the late Mrs. L.K. Helen Bradford in honor of her husband.

Mrs. Armstrong, hostess for the April 3 event, is the daughter of the Bradfords.

Dr. Davies came to TCU from Duke University, where he was George Washington Ivey Professor of Advanced Studies and Research in Christian Origins for 16 years. A two-time Guggenheim Fellow, he was awarded the Burkitt Medal of the British Academy in 1964 and was named a corresponding fellow of the academy three years later. He also is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Academy for Jewish Research. Dr. Davies is the author of numerous books, and, along with Louis Finkelstein, he is editor of The Cambridge History of Judaism.

NOTES ON FOLKS

JOHN BREYER (geology) received the Energy Minerals Division's Best Paper Award at the American Association of Petroleum Geologists 1985 convention in New Orleans. John was given the award for a paper on the geology of a South Texas lignite deposit he presented at the 1984 national meeting in San Antonio.

GLEN HAUBOLD (physical plant) was recently elected secretary-treasurer of the North Texas chapter of the Association of Energy Engineers.

On March 17, KEN STEVENS (history) presented a paper on Alfred C. Kinsey and constitutional law as part of the Indiana Association of Historians lecture series in Indianapolis. His paper, discussing conflicts between federal law and Kinsey's work at the Indiana University Institute for Sex Research, will later be published in a collection of essays on constitutional history.

AUDREY ABRON (admissions), JOEL PERSKY (radio-TV-film) and senior student ERIC McLENDON conducted a two-hour presentation for junior and senior students at the Communications Magnet at Lincoln High School in Dallas March 1. All of the students are planning careers in the media.

During spring break, SPENCER WERTZ (philosophy) attended the Pacific division meeting of the American Philosophical Association in San Francisco. He participated in several sessions on the teaching of critical thinking courses at the University level and attended the session on Probability Theory which dealt with generalizations of de Finetti's theorem.

STEPHANIE WOODS (ballet) was invited to adjudicate seven choreographic works by students and faculty at TWU dance department in preparation for the South Central American College Dance Festival in Norman, OK. "Storm Steps," a ballet choreographed by Stephanie to Samuel Barber's "Capricorn Concerto," was performed at the festival March 28-30.

Several education faculty members presented papers March 14-16 at the state conference of International Reading Association. Presenters at the Hyatt Regency, Dallas, included CATHY COLLINS, "Metacognitive Skill Development: 37 Activities To Increase Students' Reading Ability" and "Gifted Students Speak Up: Changes in the Reading Program that They Desire"; LUTHER CLEGG, ETTA MILLER, BILL VANDERHOOF, "Fun, Humor and Reading"; ELENE DEMOS, "Site-Based Reading Motivation Systems"; and LYNN RHOADES, "Teaching Bilingual/Bicultural Readers with the Daily Newspaper."

At the 12th annual conference of the Texas Association of Black Personnel in Higher Education (TABPHE) held March 7-9 in Fort Worth, admissions counselor AUDREY ABRON was named chairman of the elections committee and served on a panel addressing an audience of 80 high school students on "SAT and Scholarships." On March 16 she was on a five-member panel speaking to students on high school and college preparation as a special guest of the North Dallas chapter of Jack and Jill Inc. Second Annual Career Day Seminar. Future corporate interns were her audience at the INROADS/Dallas Inc. Talent Pool Workshop recently. INROADS Inc. is an organization that recruits and prepares academically talented Black and Hispanic students for corporate careers.

The literary magazine The Phoenix will publish a story by HARRY OPPERMAN (English) in an early summer issue. The story is titled "At the Still Point."

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

NEIL DANIEL (English) presented the keynote address, "Discovering and Nurturing Exceptional Intelligence," to parents and teachers of the gifted at the Mountain View College Super Saturday in Dallas March 23.

TCU English faculty and former students were active on the program of the Conference on College Composition and Communication in Minneapolis March 21-23. PRISCILLA TATE presented a paper, "Toward a Definition of Advanced Composition and, Perhaps, a Theory," and GARY TATE read "The New Teacher and the Knowledge Most Worth Having." A paper by JIM CORDER, "Rhetoric and Literature in the Same Room, and No Harm Done to Either," was one of a dozen read to the conference as a part of the early review leading to the publication of Gary Tate's book, Teaching Composition: Twelve Bibliographic Essays, to be revised and re-issued by the TCU Press.

ROBERTA PRITCHARD, JIM BAUMLIN AND NEIL DANIEL served as section chairs, along with KEITH GREGORY (TCU Press). Papers were also read by five TCU Ph.D.'s, THERESA ENOS of SMU, CARMEN CRAMER of Southwestern Louisiana State University, DONNA HAISTY of Clemson, KEITH MILLER of Ohio State and KATHLEEN HUDSON of Schreiner. Papers also were read by a pair of TCU alumnae who majored in English, DIANE DOWDEY, now teaching at A&M, and DIANE PRICE HERNDL, attending graduate school at the University of North Carolina.

ART BERLINER's Issues in Social Welfare Policy class recently had a guest lecturer from England. Terry Avery, principal research and development officer of the Department of Social Services of the Gateshead Metropolitan Borough Council, provided an overview of British social services and compared various key programs with their U.S. counterparts.

Sympathy is extended to Chancellor Emeritus JIM and LUCILLE MOUDY on the death of her mother, Mamie Rhea Lauritzen, on March 28. Mrs. Lauritzen, a frequent guest at University activities, was a resident of Trinity Terrace. Burial was in Fort Worth.

EXCHANGE CLUB HONORS ALUMNI COUPLE

This year's Golden Deeds Award will be presented by the Exchange Club of Fort Worth to alumni John and Jane Justin. Recognizing lifetime contributions to the community life of Fort Worth, the presentation will be made in May 2 ceremonies at the Fort Worth Club.

A member of the Class of '41, Justin is chief executive of Justin Industries and formerly served as Fort Worth's mayor. The TCU trustee, named 1984 Man of the Year by the Cowboy Hall of Fame, also is on the boards of Edna Gladney Home, First Methodist Church, Texas American Bank, Texas American Bancshares, Millers Mutual Insurance and other organizations. He has been honored as Fort Worth Salesman of the Year and Jaycee Outstanding Man of the Year.

Named First Lady of Fort Worth in 1969 by the Altrusa Club, Mrs. Justin also has been cited for her work with the Child Study Center Auxiliary, which she helped form in 1966, as well as her volunteer efforts at the Edna Gladney Home, where she served on the board. The Class of '43 member, active in the Tarrant County Association for Retarded Children, YWCA and Camp Fire, is the author of "Mother Jane's Prescriptions for Hunger," a cookbook that began with instructions for her daughter.

REPORT SHOWS CONTINUED APPLICATION INCREASES

As of March 15, admission applications from both freshmen and transfer students continue to increase. A report released by Dean Ned Boehm shows a 45.3 percent increase in freshman applications and 16.6 percent increase in transfers over the total on March 15, 1984.

February and March were high-point months with a record number of freshman applications coming in. "All efforts are now being directed toward finalizing our admission process to insure our May 15 candidates' reply date," Ned said.

The last Monday at TCU program for the spring is set for April 15.

THOMAS, SMITH QUALIFY FOR NCAA EVENTS

Lady Frog track members Donna Thomas and Ella Smith will compete in the NCAA competition May 27-June 1 at the University of Texas in Austin. They give Coach Bubba Thornton cause for celebration.

Donna, currently ranked No. 2 in the nation in the NCAA indoor long jump with a 21. record, will compete in the NCAA outdoor field and track championships. To date her longest jump outdoor is 21.255. The nation's No. 1 ranked woman is Olympian Carol Lewis. The senior is from Fort Worth.

For the UT-Austin meet, Ella qualified for the 200-meter run. Also a senior, she is from Marlin.

TRUSTEES ASK FOR 1990s OBJECTIVES

Chancellor Bill Tucker spoke of a new "surge of vitality" at TCU as he reported to the University's policy-setting board of trustees Friday. The board asked him to aim toward even higher goals by bringing to its next meeting a comprehensive listing of the objectives which must be accomplished to enhance TCU's service in the 1990s.

"It is time to determine our priorities, estimate the costs involved and agree on a plan for the University's development that can head us into the next decade as a vastly stronger University," said Fort Worth attorney Dee Kelly, chairman of the board's development committee. The trustees and Dr. Tucker agreed with him.

As an example of the new vitality he sees at TCU, the chancellor pointed to the growing number of students seeking admission to the University. He reminded trustees of the growing number of prestigious faculty positions which are being endowed at TCU.

Dr. Tucker told the board that by March 15 TCU had received 2,933 freshman applications--45 percent more than a year earlier--from students who want to enter next fall. TCU's objective had been to improve the academic quality of new students while enrolling about 1,100 entering freshmen each fall. The increase in applications means that TCU can be more selective in its admissions decisions. "We continue to find academic snobbery distasteful," Dr. Tucker said. "Even so, we are serious in wanting to attract young men and women who have both the ability and the background to succeed in a competitive environment."

Earlier Dr. Tucker had announced that the Neville G. Penrose Chair of Latin American Studies is being established through an anonymous gift of $750,000. It is the fifth such prestigious faculty position gained through similar-sized gifts within the last year. Searches for nationally-known persons to fill the posts are now under way.

Also during their meeting held on campus, the TCU trustees:

--Approved a budget calling for expenditures of almost $63 million next year, an increase of 6.9 percent over the current budget. An additional $5.3 million in mineral income from trusts left for TCU's benefit will be placed in the University's endowment fund. This year $7.2 million in mineral income is being added to endowment. The budget includes funds for merit-based compensation increases averaging 6 percent.

--Named two new members to the board: R. Bruce LaBoon of Houston and A.R. "Buddy" Dike of Fort Worth. Both are TCU graduates. LaBoon is a partner in the law firm of Liddell, Sapp, Zivley, Brown and LaBoon. Dike, a member of TCU's Football Hall of Fame, is president of The Dike Company, an insurance brokerage firm. The board also re-elected as its chairman Bayard H. Friedman, who heads the Fort Worth Banking Division of InterFirst Corporation.

--Chose to honor two men by awarding them honorary doctorates, the highest tokens of esteem a university can confer: William A. Moncrief of Fort Worth, a pioneer in the oil and gas business who with his wife has supported many philanthropic causes, particularly in health care, and Donald Carl Johanson, the Berkeley, CA, paleo-anthropologist who discovered "Lucy," the oldest most complete skeleton known.

--Heard that funds are being sought to expand quarters for M.J. Neeley School of Business, with hopes that the more than $8 million needed will be in hand a year from now. The board also approved a fund drive to support the Ranch Management Program, now housed in a temporary metal building.

The chancellor pointed out that TCU's successes are coming about "at precisely the time spirits are sagging in many quarters of American higher education, public and independent." He said much of the credit is due to the leadership provided by the 50-member volunteer board.

Speaking for the board's development committee, Kelly said, "TCU has accomplished so much in the last five years that it makes what we do in the next five years vastly more important."

Discussion of future plans has been under way for some time. Two years ago the TCU faculty completed a thorough self-study of the University's programs. A year ago selected leaders from business and industry participating in the 1990s Project reported on their review of the University and made other suggestions. It is from these and other recommendations that Dr. Tucker and his staff are to choose top priorities.

"In the last five years we've raised more than $60 million for TCU," Kelly said. "Achieving some of the goals suggested would necessitate doubling that amount of giving over the next five years. This is an ambitious idea," he said, "but one that other universities have proved can be carried out."

The board also approved recommendations for faculty tenure and promotions. Tenure was granted to James Comer and Thomas Nute of computer science; Jean Giles-Sims of sociology; Grady McWhiney of history; David E. Minter of chemistry; Kirk Downey and David Finn of business; Marjorie Adkins, Lisa Fusillo and Ronald Watson of fine arts; Howard Stone of Brite; and Nancy Sayner and Carol Stephenson of nursing.

Promoted to the rank of professor were Bruce Miller of physics; Joseph Helmick, fine arts; and James Duke, Brite. Promoted to associate professor were Giles-Sims, sociology; Minter, chemistry; Nute, computer science; Fusillo, fine arts; Stephenson, nursing; and Toni Craven, Brite.

Granted emeritus status upon their upcoming retirements were Paul Bartlett of chemistry; Hunter Beckelhymer, Brite; Sara Coventry, home economics; Robert Demaree, psychology; Vera Phillips, nursing; Ira Schantz, fine arts; Jake Schrum, Ranch Management; and Vice Chancellor Howard Wible. The board also designated L. Cecil White as its emeritus secretary.
