

S. M. Swenson & Sons,

New York.

Feb. 19, 1924.

Dear Mr. Carter:

A day or two ago I received your letter of the 12th, and subsequently the package of pecans also came to hand, which stopped the wheels of commerce for a few moments in our office. They are I think the best I have ever tasted, and I sincerely thank you for remembering me in your distribution.

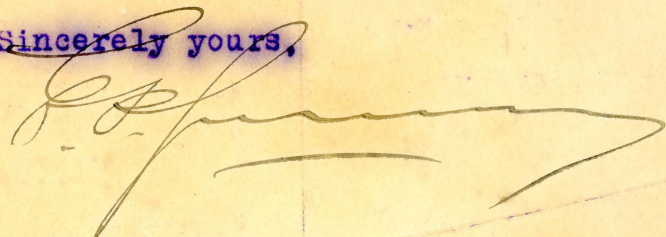

I note your humorous comparison between these nuts and the nuts in the "Ziegfeld Follies". I am in full agreement with you as to the wrapper, but my knowledge of the contents is confined to the pecans.

I note your figures that the cotton crop of Texas is worth $600,000,000.00, which is truly wonderful. It is of course secondary, however, to the pecans.

I am glad to be advised about Fort Worth's ambitions in respect to a Union Depot. I know nothing of the matter at the moment, except what you have told me. When it is more fully explained and is presented in some concrete proposition, I hope that I may have the pleasure of being of some real service.

Thanking you, my dear Mr. Carter, for your kind thought of me,

Sincerely yours,

A. G. Carter, Esq.,

Fort Worth, Texas.
