

Rogers Aiding 'Charity' Fund for Oil Heads

---

Will Rogers, famous humorist, missed the American Petroleum Institute convention in Fort Worth. He was extended an urgent invitation and instead of wiring his regrets, Rogers wires that he is glad that he wasn't here. He says he's busy in New York helping to raise a charity fund for needy presidents of oil companies. His wire, received Friday by Amon G. Carter, says:

"Just found your message about oil gathering. Glad I wasn't there. New York papers have charity drive on for hundred needy cases in city. See all of the big oil company presidents in the list. I still remain the only man in the world who owns no oil stock."

Star-Telegram

December 12, 1924.