Dear Viagil.

I apprecited your interest in the Colomado City formation, and was happy to be able to bring it to you r attention. Considering that you have been almost everywhere in the state or looked at a map of such places as you havent s en in person, I felt I had achieved something by showing you something new!

WE never really s thought it was a meteorite formation and on our last trip we fully assured of its terrestiral character becasue a pipe line was bring put right next to it, and we could see the normal explosed strata inall their proper sequence.

I still don't know how it was formed!

The last paragrph in your most recent letter ( mentioned a possible circular formation near Juncion. Can I trouble hou' to tell me what quarangle this would be onor tell me how many miles from Junction it was, the best you remember? I would like to prowl into it a little, with only the desire of some self-fatisfaction.
I hope you had a good hadday season and that all is well.

Sincerely,

P.S The meme "Meteor Mountain" was given to the Colorado City formation by local inhabitants. They told us that at onehouse we visted where we asked for perssion to go on the tract. They had called it that for some time, and no doubt the men who made the maps got that infomration from the same source.
