

Mr. Potter Visits Oil Fields During Southwestern Trip

MR. POTTER, in the company of Mr. George Whitney of J. P. Morgan & Co., and a group of officials of the Marland Oil Company recently made an inspection trip through the Marland oil properties in Texas. The purpose of the journey was to investigate in particular the possibilities of the new Reagan-Crockett-Upton-Crane field, and to review the position of the oil industry in general.

Upon the results of the investigation will rest the decision of the Marland Company to develop properties in several sections of the Southwest. According to newspaper reports, the party was very much impressed with the potentialities of the land in the Texas district.

Long service in mining engineering work enabled Mr. Potter to regard the locations with the eye of a technical expert as well as from the financial and business standpoint. Immediately after his visit, he was quoted by the Associated Press as being favorably impressed with the possibilities for development.
