CHANCELLOR REPORTS TO TRUSTEES

"Twenty-four Septembers ago I was extremely hopeful that something of significance might be done in connection with our institution. On the basis of what has happened here during these intervening years, I am far more optimistic and enthusiastic now than I have ever been before".

So began Dr. Sadler's report at the annual fall meeting of the Board of Trustees Friday morning. In citing reasons for his optimism, the Chancellor mentioned record-setting graduation of 992 persons in 1964, which is more than the total for University's first 53 years' existence; the 12.3 increase in Graduate School enrollment; representation of 42 religious groups, 27 foreign countries and 46 states other than Texas in current enrollment.

The Board took formal action in adopting a two-fold advisory board program which will include special meetings with administrative officers defining specific phases of TCU work and life and the selection of additional persons to serve two-year periods in an effort to acquaint more persons more completely with the University's role.

The recommendation that a doctoral program in history be started in the Fall of 1965, was approved. Chancellor Sadler recommended faculty salaries be increased as systematically and as substantially as possible.

Special attention was given the imperative building needs...including a research laboratory, communications building, home economics facilities and new gymnasium.

Dr. T. T. Swearingen, executive director of the Texas Association of Christian Churches, was elected to the Board. Seven trustees were re-elected for four-year terms, 13 persons were named to the Advisory Board, four honorary trustees were appointed, and officers were re-elected.

Dr. Sadler closed his report with the moving, emphatic statements of TCU's philosophy that climaxed his widely-acclaimed Newcomen address.

SUMMER SESSION ABROAD IN 1965

The Department of Foreign Languages, headed by Dr. John Hammond, is announcing its summer session at the University of Madrid in Spain in cooperation with the Institute of European Studies. Six semester hours' credit, traveling and living with selected Spanish families are elements that make it an exciting plan.

Dr. Hammond, who directed TCU's Monterrey Tech program 1951-58 and who has taught and studied on several occasions in Mexico, will be the director.

Leaving New York by air June 17, the group may take a field study trip, Plan I, beginning with a tour of Paris and other interest spots in France, an academic program of four weeks in Madrid and excursions to nearby sites of interest. Plan II will begin from Madrid July 31 with visits to European and English cities and return leaving London on Aug. 28.

Details of the scenic stops, academic highlights and program plans make even the confirmed "stay-at-homer" want to wander. Dr. John will be happy to supply all askers with additional information.

TONIGHT'S SCHEDULE OF SPEAKERS

For those wanting to know about "Politics in an Election Year," Sander Vanocur, former NBC White House Correspondent, will tell you about it in the Select Series program in Ed Landreth at 8:00 p.m. Tickets at $1.50 will be on sale at the door for your friends who didn't get season tickets.

Today at 4 p.m., in the Student Center Ballroom, Khalid I. Babaa will discuss "Developing Arab Nations: Economically, Politically and Socially" in the third guest lecture as part of International Relations Week now in progress. The Palestine native, currently director of the Arab Information Center for the Southwest, was a member of the Yemen delegation to the UN. An informal coffee session afterward will afford an opportunity to chat with this man of education and experience.

GULICK TO SPEAK THURSDAY

Dr. Clarence Gulick, chief of the policy planning division program coordination staff, Agency for International Development, will close the fourth annual International Relations Week. Joining the US foreign aid program during the Marshall Plan years, he will discuss it tomorrow night in the ballroom.

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION EXHIBIT HERE

"The Fabulous Decade," an exhibition of 60 prints by leading American and European printmakers, opened in the TCU Gallery in Ed Landreth Monday and will remain for public showing through Dec. 4. Open Mondays through Fridays, the show can be seen from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Being circulated throughout the US and Canada by the Smithsonian Institution, the exhibition illustrates the graphic arts renaissance that took place a decade ago both here and in Europe. McKie Trotter and our art department are responsible for our having something so "seeable" on display.

FOR THE MATERIALLY MINDED

"The ghost will walk," as some say, on Nov. 25. A check of the Faculty Handbook reveals that February will be the only other month this academic year when checks are available as early as the 25th. The big exception is, of course, December.

RETIREMENT PAPERS NEED ATTENTION

August Spain, who heads the retirement committee, advises that full-time faculty folks who are eligible as of the beginning of this school year to enter the University retirement program need to fill in the necessary papers "post haste" if they have not done so.

Delaying beyond Dec. 7 will cause active participation to begin only from the first of the month in which they sign up. Arrangements can be made now, however, for "back" premiums to be paid beginning with the date of eligibility. Don't put off 'till tomorrow.....

LITTLE THEATRE PLANS "MURDER"

"Murder in the Cathedral," T.S. Eliot's tragedy, is slated for a Dec. 4 opening by the Little Theatre under the direction of John L. Cogdill, a 1964 newcomer to the theatre arts department.

The plot of this production has become better known in recent years through the film "Becket".

The actors' skills will be complemented by a 19-voice chorus, which plays an important part. You'll want to keep Dec. 4 in mind.

DATES AND DOINGS TO BE REMEMBERED

TOMORROW (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m. in Rogers Hall will be the second faculty meeting of the year. The Foreign Study Committee will be in charge of the program.

TUESDAY, Nov. 24, is the date for the annual Thanksgiving Convocation in Ed Landreth Auditorium. To begin at 11 a.m., the program will have "We Offer Our Gratitude" as its theme. The A Cappella Choir, solos and selections by the verse choir will define the offerings of gratitude through awareness of the universe, community, failure, self and through an act of praise.

TO MEMBERS OF THE STAFF AND FACULTY:

"You could not possibly know how very grateful Mrs. Sadler and I are for your thoughtfulness in providing the remote control, color television for our home. This will mean more enjoyable relaxation for both of us and will be especially helpful to Mrs. Sadler as she looks at her various programs. It would be difficult to think of anything more appropriate which you could have done or anything we would appreciate more.

"You are such a grand group of people, and the association with you has made an exceedingly hard job very enjoyable throughout our years at TCU.

"Thank you very much."

Chancellor and Mrs. M. E. Sadler

PRIDE IN TCU'S "RELATIVES"

Dr. R. Lee Clark, Jr., grandson of TCU's co-founder, Randolph Clark, has received the $5,000 Albert Lasker Medical Research Award. The director and surgeon-in-chief of the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston also received the American Cancer Society's National Award, its highest.

Director of Anderson Hospital since 1946, he was honored with the Lasker award for promotion of fundamental biological and medical investigations which provide techniques, information and concepts necessary for eliminating major causes of death and disability.

OPEN HOUSE SCHEDULED ON SUNDAY

Just a reminder that the Faculty Center will have open house Sunday from 1:30 to 5 p.m. for the public to view the Mills Collection of Early American Glass.

The famed collection of 2,500 pieces tells the history of America in its splendor and dignity. Might proud we are to have it and to show it off publicly. Faculty and friends to attend after the Faculty Center open house.

MANAGEMENT SEMINARS ALUMNI TO MEET

The Fort Worth Club will be the scene of a meeting Tuesday of the alumni of the annual TCU Management Seminars. Approximately 40 top executives of the city will attend, reports Ike Harrison of the School of Business. Ben E. Boyd of Toledo, Ohio, vice-president-manufacturing of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., will be the evening's speaker. Responsible for the company's 10 domestic plants, supporting process and facilities engineering and the selection of sites for new location, he worked closely with Texas groups leading to the new plant in Waxahachie.

Harold Rosenthal, program director of the Edinburgh International Festival, will discuss "Verdi Operas" Nov. 25 in Ed Landreth. The Londoner is a recognized critic, editor and author in the field of music department folks for promising such a treat, which will start at 3 p.m. for us and the public.

"FOR CONTINUED ACHIEVEMENT" ...in attaining their goal in the annual United Fund campaign" TCU and her employees have been awarded a Certificate of Honor for 1964. 'Tis just another testimonial of what fine folks can do in a cooperative way for a worthwhile cause. Our third annual award "shingle" for outstanding citizenship makes a nice addition to the UF plaque.

The following students were absent from class ALL DAY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, in order to make a day field trip:

PLANNING AHEAD???

Then you'll be happy with Cecil White's announcement about Thanksgiving. Offices will be closed on Turkey Day, the 26th.

And the news gets better: Four days will be observed for Christmas, from Dec. 24 through Dec. 27. New Year's holidays will begin at noon Thursday, Dec. 31 and include Jan. 1 and 2.

NAMES IN THE NEWS...TCU-wise

WAYNE ROWLAND took wife, Maxine, along on a "busman's holiday" from his journalism department duties last week when he visited newspaper folks from here to Athens. Members and guests of the East Texas town's Kiwanis Club heard the prof expound on "Journalism and Your Freedoms" at noon.

This is the season for judging, or so it seems. CHANCELLOR SADLER shared opinions and cast his votes in the Miss Teenage America Contest in Dallas Friday night. Other notables aiding in the final selection from 52 contestants were the New York Yankees' Mickey Mantle, Abigail Van Buren of "Dear Abby" fame and Actor Gary Merrill.

"Keyboard Music of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance" was MICHAEL WINESANKER's topic when he spoke to the forum of Fort Worth piano teachers last week. Later in the week he was guest speaker at the William J. Marsh Young Artists Club. He's a pretty busy fella!

ARTHUR J. EHLMANN and JACK L. WALPER used their geology department know-how on Nov. 7 as judges in the mineral section of the Gem and Mineral Show in Dallas.

FACULTY BULLETIN/8

MORE NAMES IN THE NEWS

Art instructor ELEANOR ANDERSON has been notified that her article, "Max Beckmann's Carnival Triptych," will be published in the Art Journal soon. Such writings circulated far and near keep folks aware of the scope of TCU doings.

It's too early for spring cleaning, but the folks in the Audio-Visual Center have been cleaning and repairing films lately. JOHN STEWART, JR. relates that five miles of film was October's total.

IRA SCHANTZ, whose solo at Fall Convocation was both beautiful and inspiring, was guest soloist for both morning services Nov. 8 at the Highland Park Methodist Church in Dallas. On previous Sundays he appeared at two Fort Worth churches.

Business prof GENE LYNCH has been appointed to the Student Conduct Committee. This important assignment is a compliment indeed.

A. T. DEGROOT has been undergoing tests at Osteopathic Hospital. This alert fellow checks his office by phone.

'Twas pneumonia and a slow heart that sent AMOS MELTON to All Saints Hospital last week. He was doing fine as of Monday morning, but no visitors or phone calls, please! Doc will keep him there 'till end of week, at least.

GLENN ROUTH underwent surgery last week. His recovery report reads "A-OK".

PAULINE JONES, one of the friendly voices of the switchboard, is proof that it just ain't so when folks refer to ladies as the "weaker" sex. The PBX operator was back on the job Monday after having surgery less than a week before.

A pleasant surprise came to WAYNE ROWLAND recently when long distance operators called to arrange an appointment call from Willow Springs, Mo. It seems the prof was a young village editor there just after World War II. The town was launching its new dial phone system by calling "dignitaries" interested in its progress. Wayne talked 40 minutes in a toll-free, conference style chat with the mayor, a state representative and current editor. He admits "it was nice being remembered yea these 16 years later."

DÉSIRÉ LIGETI of the music department presented a program of arias and songs on the fifth anniversary of the Denton Unitarian Fellowship. He's to appear with the San Angelo Symphony Orchestra in Handel's "Messiah" on Nov. 30. IRA SCHANTZ will be the tenor soloist on that date. Désiré will return to San Angelo in late December to judge at scholarship auditions of the symphony.
