"THANKSGIVING"--BY A SUBSTITUTE COMMENTATOR

At a time like Thanksgiving we particularly miss our editor, Amos Melton. He always comes through with a thoughtful and appropriate homily at times of special joy or sadness on the campus. Were he able, we know he would have written something to help us observe Thanksgiving meaningfully.

At this writing it is unclear whether Amos will get home by Thanksgiving from his period of hospitalization. He is impatient to get home--as who wouldn't be! Keeping him quiet seems to be the biggest problem. From our posts on the campus, our advice to him is to relax, enjoy the attention and the pretty nurses, and be thankful he doesn't have to turn out this issue of the Faculty Bulletin.

Amos shares our wish that all faculty and staff have a meaningful Thanksgiving. The day represents the finest combination of religious and civic consciousness. Whatever else happens on the day, don't let the day pass without acknowledging its true meaning.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Richard Bouchett of New York will be presented in an organ concert Monday (Nov. 30) at 8:15 p.m. in Ed Landreth. A TCU student from 1955-57, he is currently organist for the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in NYC. Holder of an artists diploma from the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia, Bouchett will appear here under the sponsorship of the School of Fine Arts and the local chapter of the American Guild of Organists. It's an evening of free entertainment.

MORE ENTERTAINMENT

Little Theatre performances of "Murder in the Cathedral" are set for Dec. 4, 5, 9-12. You won't want to miss this, the season's second presentation.

The National Players in "Hamlet" on December 8 for No. 4 in the Select Series.

HCN ENROLLMENT MAY CLIMB

Harris College of Nursing will reap benefits in the Spring from the new Nurse Training Act's provisions for student loans. Allowing students to borrow up to $1,000 per academic year, the act has an attractive cancellation clause for up to 50 per cent of the loan. The new provision authorizes the appropriation of $3,100,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1965, to the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. More details on TCU's portion and arrangements will be forthcoming.

ADD A GIANT PLUME TO THIS CAP

If the old saying of "adding a feather to a cap" really denotes accomplishment, then Ina Rivers Jarman's cap needs a Texas-size plume of royal purple for the hospitality that abounds in the Faculty Center and especially for the grace and dignity of the Faculty Woman's Club guest program dealing with the Mills Glass Collection.

Sunday's open house was a delight to boot! Approximately 300 persons viewed the collection during the Sunday hours. One couple from New York state saw a story about the collection in a paper at a downtown hotel and decided to come out and see for themselves. They were highly complimentary of the pieces and indulged themselves in TCU hospitality. Other visitors were from New Orleans, North Carolina and spots throughout Texas.

CONFUCIUS SAY: ONE IN ERROR NEED FORGIVENESS

And in error we were in reporting the alumni meeting for the TCU Management Seminars set for Tuesday (Nov. 24). The session was held Nov. 17 at the Fort Worth Club.

"FREEDOM"...JAPANESE-STYLE

For something different in reading, you may want to try your hand (and your linguistic memory, too) at Dr. Warren Agee's latest publication in a foreign language. The Evening College dean has received a Japanese translation of his co-authored work, "Freedom and Responsibility in Broadcasting". His "Mass Communications" text is available in Korean as well as English.

Reporting a TV panel discussion from Northwestern University in 1960, the book explores the "vast wasteland" charge against TV and the pros and cons of governmental control of broadcasting.

Makes the journalistically curious wonder how Japanese proofreaders operate!

THE VIEW FROM THE SHOW WINDOW

Thanks to Jim Jacobsen, Curtis Wilson and the Horned Frog Band, more and more folks are getting first-hand look at TCU's "show window" by its appearances in towns en route to away-from-home games. Last week the band performed during halftime at La Porte's game with Alvin. The 121-member band was housed with LaPorte bandsters. En route to the game at A&M, TCU's musical ambassadors played and stayed in Rockdale.

RAGS TO RICHES 'N BACK IN REVERSE

Emmet Smith of the music department will be the guest in Tuesday's (Dec. 1) Prof Series in Room 204 of the Student Center. His topic will be "From Riches to Rags to Riches" or "The Pipe Organ and Its Enigma". The no-charge program begins at 3:30 p.m.

JUST AS WE EXPECTED!

The Nov. 17 concert by the University's symphony conducted by Ralph Guenther and the solos by Prof Désiré Ligeti drew raves from those who attended.

For many it was the first opportunity to hear Newcomer Ligeti, whose performance of "Kindertotenlieder" was brilliant.

BUSTER'S BOYS BEGIN DEC. 1

TCU's hoopsters (not to be confused with "hipsters") make their '64-65 debut Dec. 1 in Daniel-Meyer against Austin College. Game time is 8:05 p.m. and the boys heartily approve of "faculty fans".

THEY HEARD ABOUT US, TOO

Good news travels far and wide...and Willis Hewatt has proof to offer. As pre-med adviser at TCU, Doc Hewatt was given a letter and request from the Education Committee of the New Haven Heart Association in Connecticut. Seems they were interested in organizing a program to better acquaint high schoolers with career opportunities in the health sciences. Some of the members pointed out that such a program was already in progress in Fort Worth.

We can all be proud of the letter's answer telling of TCU's "Citizenship and Career Conference", now in its 12th year, with a special session conducted for students interested in the medical and ancillary medical sciences. This meeting is attended each year by 35-80 seniors and their teachers, who hear outstanding members of the Tarrant County Medical Society.

A tip of the hat to Dr. Hewatt..and to Amos Melton who inaugurated the annual Career Conference at Frogland!

PRAISE WHERE IT'S DUE

After saying it publicly, Dr. J. M. Moudy has repeated his statement that "the Nov. 19 faculty meeting was one of our very best". In a note of thanks to Marguerite Potter, who chairs the foreign study committee responsible for last week's program, he expressed appreciation to the committee, participants and the chairman.

VERDI TO MEET SHAKESPEARE

Today at 3 p.m. in Ed Landreth this "meeting" will take place in a lecture by Harold Rosenthal of England. The well-known writer and critic is editor of "Opera," a London publication.

ONLY 23 SHOPPING DAYS.....

A reminder of the approaching season is the publication of a poem, "What the Christmas Story Means to Me", by Margaret Crawford Potter in the December edition of a publication by the Unitarian Universalist Association in Boston.

Written in 1959 by the geology department secretary who "doubles" as a graduate student in guidance, the poem is in the "Twelve Celebrations" issue. 'Tis a tranquil and dignified approach to a time too often marred by rushing to and fro.

THAT WAS THE WEEK THAT WAS

International Relations Week '64 is history now, but the Activities Council and its forums committee can wrap their memories in pride at a week well-planned and well-received in spite of disappointing weather. The effective execution of ambitious plans by alert and interested students can be offered as another testimony to maturing that takes place on a university campus when a few folks still view collegiate life in far less than its proper setting. We can be justly proud of "our family".

GROWTH OF HONORS PROGRAM

The list of Pre-Honors and Honors participants issued by Director Paul Wassenich last week defined even more definitely the growth of this program, which was inaugurated in 1962. The listing reveals 72 freshmen and 84 sophomores in the pre-Honors plan, while 34 juniors and 44 seniors are enrolled in the Honors Program.

The challenge and achievement of this effort light the academic sky in a sunburst of promise for the students, the University and all the lives that will ultimately be brightened.

TEXTS, REFERENCE BOOKS NEEDED

Librarian C. G. Sparks passes the word along that Paul Hooper, ex-student and now vice consul in the American Embassy in Brazil, has written seeking books for the library of the American School in Brasilia.

The most pressing need is for reading texts and reference books for Grades 1-6. If you wish to donate some volumes to this very worthy cause, just take your books to the librarian's office.

"WE NEED TOYS"....AF ROTC SAYS

A toy drive has been undertaken in conjunction with the annual Christmas Orphans Party by members of the Air Force ROTC Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight. Serviceable toys no longer used by your youngsters could well brighten the gift-giving season for less fortunate little fellas. Toys may be brought to Room 16, Sadler Hall, or call WA6-2461, Ext. 309, for arrangements for them to be picked up.

ANYONE GOING TO HOUSTON TODAY?

If you are and would like a theatrical treat, you might avail yourself of the opening of Euripides' play "The Trojan Women" at the Alley Theatre as it begins its 18th season. We feel justified in this little commercial since the theatre's founder is one of the Frog family, Nina Vance, who received the "distinguished alumna" award at Homecoming.

WHO'S NEWS FROM TCU

Drs. KEN HERRICK and BURTON PATTERSON from the School of Business spent Nov. 13-14 in "Big D" attending an educational conference co-sponsored by the American Institute for Property and Liability Underwriters and the Insurance Institute of America. Sounds pretty impressive.

Music Prof TULLY MOSELEY may soon adopt the title "Music Man" if his calendar of appearances gets much fuller. He gave a guest recital Monday at Weatherford College. We'll get to hear him Dec. 7, but more anon....

Students in ELEANOR ANDERSON's printmaking class had a treat yesterday in seeing a demonstration by Krishna Reddy, well-known artist and printmaker from India. An exhibition of his works are currently on display at the Fort Worth Art Center.

DR. W. C. NUNN was the official flag waver for TCU, so to speak, at Friday's inaugural ceremonies for Dr. James Henry McCrocklin as the fourth prexy of Southwest Texas State College. The trek to San Marcos took the history prof back to his ole stompin' grounds. He was on the SWTC faculty three years before coming to Cowtown in 1946.

TCU was represented over the weekend by W. O. MILLIGAN at the University of Texas Science Conference. This research authority got back just in time to leave again for a meeting in Chicago.

"Collegiate Centers for Economic Education" was the title of ALLEN SELF's thought-provoking talk at the Social Science Division meeting on campus Thursday.

Austin was the site of the National Association Teachers of Singing, Student Auditions on Nov. 8-11 when our ARLENE SOLLENBERGER served as accompanist for five students. She also carried out her duties as lieutenant governor for the northern half of Texas in the association.

Organist EMMET SMITH speaks about the organ about as often as he performs on it these days. He was guest at the Hurst Sonata Club recently, speaking on "The Rewards of Foreign Study for the Organist". He met several exes at his recital in St. Louis, Mo. on Nov. 15. Dr. and Mrs. McAllister from Webster Groves Church were present and sent greetings to friends here.

"Simm's Porgy as National Hero" was the title of a paper given by MOFFITT CECIL at the meeting of South Central Modern Language Assn. held Nov. 13-14 at Texas Tech. This work has been accepted for publication in an early issue of American Literature Journal.

MORE NAMES MAKE NEWS AT TCU

IKE HARRISON got another "high-sounding, low-paying job", so he confesses about his election to the executive committee of the Southern Business Administration at its conference in Atlanta. The election to office in this regional division of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business came on Friday, the 13th. That's how it goes!

Thanks to MICHAEL WINESANKER for keeping us informed on former Frog folks. He reports that the DAVID GRAHAMS (he's on leave from Fine Arts) are nicely settled at 427 E. Seneca St. in Ithaca, N.Y. They did arrive two weeks before their furniture, but, having overcome that obstacle, they are overcome by the beauty of the Cornell campus. He's teaching some music appreciation classes and has outstanding profs for several seminars.

VC LAURENCE SMITH was the speaker at today's Thanksgiving Convocation at McLean Junior High. He neglected telling us whether a free meal was the payola involved.

The JIM LEHMANS, WAYNE ROWLANDS, PORTER CROWS and other Select Series committee folks got acquainted with Sander Vanocur at dinner prior to the former White House correspondent's appearance on campus. Back with NBC now after some haggling (reportedly about a $50,000 contract), he has been granted a six-month leave to complete a second book about JFK.

COPIES OF LETTER AVAILABLE:

A limited number of copies of the monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada entitled "The Discipline of Language" are available in Amos Melton's office.

In reply to a recent letter, the bank's monthly letter department wrote: "We believe that the greatest failure in human development is in the area of communication. In our international affairs--just as in our private lives--the ability to exchange ideas meaningfully and correctly would go far toward avoiding tension. This is why we do an essay every year on the communication of ideas".

Should our supply be exhausted before you get a copy, you may send your requests direct to the bank's head office, Box 6001, Montreal, P. Q.
