READY! SET! GO.....Almost!

The inauguration of Dr. James M. Moudy as the University's chancellor on Friday will be a most impressive and highly meaningful event in the lives of all members of the TCU family. The first formal installation of a chief executive officer here in 49 years has been skillfully planned and scheduled.

To facilitate everyone being at the right spot at the right time, here are a few last-minute reminders:

- ...TCU faculty will assemble along the corridor adjoining the Ex-Lettermen's Club Room on the north side, lining up against the outside wall. The faculty should assemble as soon after 9 a.m. as possible; the processional will start promptly at 10 a.m.
- ...Drs. Malcolm Arnoult and Paul Wassenich will serve as marshals for the processional, assisting in the arranging of two lines of TCU faculty. They will be wearing identifying badges.
- ...ALL campus offices will be closed from 9:30-11:30 a.m. on Friday so that all employees may attend this significant event in the University's history.
- ...The elevator in the Student Center will be in fulltime use Friday and faculty members are asked NOT to use it that day only.
- ...NO classes will be held Friday so that students, along with faculty and all TCU employees, can overflow Daniel-Meyer Coliseum in a mass demonstration (a popular trend) of the truly important aspect of the event.
- ...The inaugural luncheon will be attended by the representatives of colleges, universities, learned societies and organizations and chief administrative personnel. Although the persons involved in planning would like to have extended invitations to the entire TCU faculty, such was not possible for an on-campus luncheon that has the ballroom bulging literally with more than 700 diners.

BIBLE SCHOLARS CONSULT HERE

The TCU campus was the meeting place Friday for the American executive committee of the International Greek New Testament Project, with Brite's Jack Suggs chairing the patristics section.

Headed by Dr. E. C. Caldwell, president of Claremont School of Theology in California, the entire endeavor is the work of American and British scholars in collecting all evidence that bears on the New Testament. Dr. Kenneth W. Clark of Duke U. and Dr. Bruce M. Metzger of Princeton Theological Seminary joined in the all-day session of considering forms and schedules as well as comments from German, French and English scholars on the soon-to-be-published volume of Luke.

Of vital importance to the religious work and all the persons subsequently touched, the project's outgrowths will be of interest and concern to all.

ANYONE FOR SOCCER???

The newly-organized soccer team, composed mainly of TCU's foreign students, will be competing in a two-day champion-consolation tournament this weekend at the University of Texas. Their first game will be against Trinity University on Saturday morning.

The team, part of the intramural program of the University's supervision, will be practising this afternoon (Nov. 17) on the Bellaire Drive West side of Worth Hills if you'd like to watch them. They'll be posing for photographers at 5 p.m. in their "official" uniforms.

These students, who work out with an enthusiasm unsurpassed, gained familiarity with the sport in their native countries and formed the team for their mutual pleasure.

SIGNATURE DRIVE PROGRESSES

In non-partisan support of the actions of American Armed Forces in Vietnam, the Young Republicans are compiling a telegram to be sent directly to Viet Nam. Lynn Witherspoon, YR prexy, has expressed the hope that at least 100 students and faculty members would sign.

Those who would like to have their names on the telegram will find it available in the lobby of the Student Center through Nov. 20. The fee of 20 cents per person covers the cost of the individual signature at telegram rates.

FORTHCOMING FROM FINE ARTS

If jazz is your cup 'o tea, the concert set for 3 p.m. today in Ed Landreth is something you will want to clear the schedule for. Under the direction of Curtis Wilson, the 18-piece TCU Stage Band will testify to the fact that this is "where the action is". It's for free, too!

The Schola Cantorum, under the direction of B. R. Henson, will present its first campus concert on Nov. 22 in Ed Landreth auditorium. Starting at 8:15 p.m., the choral offerings will include works of Hindemith, Debussy, Ravel, Bartok and Brahms. Roger Melone, senior from Tulsa, will be the accompanist. No admission charge for an evening of inspiring vocal accomplishment.

Taking over the Ed Landreth stage on November 23 will be the TCU Symphony Orchestra featuring Prof. James Burton playing solo in "Bassoon Concerto in B Flat Major" by Mozart. According to Director Ralph Guenther, this will probably be the first performance of this composition in Fort Worth. Beethoven's "Symphony No. 8 in F Major" will be a part of the event, set to begin at 8:15 p.m.

For those who plan ahead, John Obetz, lecturer and organist, will be presented in concert on Nov. 30 by the American Guild of Organists. Time: 8:15 p.m. Place: Ed Landreth.

DISPLAY ON BACH IN S.C.

An exhibition of documents, books, music and photographs on the life and work of the composer Johann Sebastian Bach is now being viewed on the second-floor of the student center. Staged by the music department, the display will remain there until the Thanksgiving recess.

FIRST OF SPEECH ASSEMBLIES HELD

The first of three speech department assemblies planned for this academic year as a means of acquainting the public with developments in the areas of speech featured Lic. Jose Garza of Mexico City last week

The speaker, a former associate of Dr. R. C. Norris on television research projects in Mexico, discussed "The Role of Educational Television in Latin America." A Rice University grad, where he made Phi Beta Kappa, Garza worked with the BBC in London in 1940-47 and with UNESCO in France before joining the UNESCO staff in Mexico's Instituto Latinoamericano de Cinematografia Educativa as an expert for educational radio and television.

FACULTY BULLETIN/4

"JUST FANTASTIC" DESCRIBES "FANTASTICKS"

The overwhelming success of the theatre department's first musical production...and the first of two planned for the 1965-66 season... points up the need and the appreciation for such a fine showcase for outstanding talents within the University's ranks. "The Fantasticks" was an almost immediate sellout for the three scheduled performances...so two matinees were added to the run. Then the disappointed folks who still couldn't get seats were allowed to watch the dress rehearsal.

From the opening curtain through 15 professionally-performed musical numbers to the thunderous applause at the final curtain, the comedy made TCU theatre history and added the exclamation of "A Must!" to more evenings of such fine University entertainment.

SECOND GRANT FROM FOUNDATION

Announcement has been made of a $3,000 grant to Dr. Charles Blount of the physics department by the Research Corporation of New York. The grant, coming close on the heels of a grant to Dr. Joe Hodgkins in chemistry, will support the TCU physicist's research on "Determination of the Electronic Structure of F Aggregate Centers in Alkali Halides from Their Spectra".

The project, which Dr. Blount is conducting in working with several doctoral students in physics, will aid in understanding the effects of imperfections on the electrical/mechanical property of solids.

COUNT YOUR BLESSINGS, CONTRIBUTE YOUR $

During the season when we oft take stock of the everyday blessings we enjoy that make us millionaires indeed, most would agree that the blessing of good health competes for top spot. When something does begin to "ail us", it's nice to know that we're thought of...and the faculty-sent flowers are most welcome cheerer-uppers. If you haven't added to the kitty yet, just send Ina Rivers Jarman your $1 by inter-office mail today...Thanks!!!

SIGNS OF THE TIMES...

The ADPi's banner across the student center was one of the cleverest we've seen this season. Its proclamation was: TCU 25, Texas 10. Happiness is being a Frog!

INVITATION EXTENDED TO ALL

Lew Fay, assistant prof of journalism, will don a familiar, but long unused, hat on Tuesday evening, Nov. 23, when he presents a Hammond organ lecture-demonstration for the Fort Worth Hammond Organ Society. Long a Hammond jazz-thumper (his own description), Fay offered many such concerts across the South Texas area over the last 10 years for the organ company and local dealers. 'Twill be a very "alive" program at the Gause-Ware 1879 Room, Pennsylvania and Henderson. The local Hammond folks assure us that any and all are welcome.

RESEARCH GEOLOGIST TO SPEAK

Dr. Glenn Roe, senior research geologist for Atlantic Research Laboratories in Dallas, will address the physics graduate colloquium Friday at 4:30 p.m. in Room 151 of Winton-Scott Hall. "Rubidium-Strontium Analyses of Ultramafic Rocks and the Origin of Peridotite." The free coffee will be served at 4 p.m. in Room 145.

HOMECOMING HULLABALOO

From the Thursday night spirit march and torch-light parade leading to the 7:30 p.m. pep rally at the Coliseum to the last hand-shaking and reminiscing contest late Saturday, this '65 Homecoming promises to be a large scale extravaganza. Whatever clubs you may have been in, you can find coffee, a dinner or similar meeting of its former members. If you're in the lively set and sitting is a capital offense against good (?) music, you can take your pick of the dances planned. For the sit 'n eat folks, your schedule will be full. Add the big-name entertainment of Peter, Paul and Mary on Friday and the Frog-Owl fray on Saturday afternoon, and you have the biggest package of fun 'n frolic that these parts have witnessed in quite a spell.

AND AROUND THAT CORNER...

.....is Thanksgiving, which will be noted in a special way with the annual Thanksgiving convocation on Nov. 23 at 11 a.m. in Ed Landreth. Dr. Gaston Foote of Fort Worth's First Methodist Church has chosen "Three Thank You's" as his topic.

.....Thanksgiving recess for students begins at 10 p.m. on Wednesday and ends at 8 a.m. on Nov. 29. For TCU personnel, offices will be closed on Thursday, Nov. 25.

FOCUS ON FROG FOLKS

Attractively representing TCU at a symposium and dinner held Nov. 12 at the University of Pennsylvania as part of its bi-centennial celebration were LUCY HARRIS and ANN LANE of Harris College of Nursing. The duo attended a meeting of representatives from collegiate nursing schools in Philadelphia Nov. 9-12.

After all his precise planning for the ever-growing number of persons expected at inaugural activities, JIM WHITSETT certainly must have felt at home in the crowd of 5,000 at last week's annual meeting of the United States Savings and Loan League in Dallas.

JOE SGRO, who completed his Ph. D. requirements, couldn't wait on the U.S. Mail to deliver his "new baby" news last week so he called BEATRICE RAMSEY of Graduate School office to proudly proclaim the birth of Anthony Huston on Oct. 29. The proud papa is a faculty member at Old Dominion College in Norfolk, Va.

Those attending the meeting of the North Texas chapter of the Council of Exceptional Children recently heard DOROTHY BELL discuss "Effective Speaking" in a most effective way.

MORE NOTES ON FROG FOLKS

DAVE MATHENY, whose efficient handling of the recent collegiate debate tourney on campus was enhanced by splendid results in terms of quality and quantity of folks participating, has been elected executive secretary of the South Central Debate Conference. Schools included are NTSU, Southwest Missouri State, Abilene Christian, Baylor, Central State College, Kansas State Teachers College and Kansas State.

ARTHUR EHLMANN, LEO HENDRICKS and three students took part in the Nov. 4-6 annual meeting of the Geological Society of America, held in Kansas City. Sessions afforded lots of opportunities for hearing papers and conversing with authorities in geology's varied aspects.

DESIRE LIGETI, professor of music, exercised his judging skills on Sunday and Monday as a judge of student auditions and "Singer of the Year" competition of the annual regional conference of the National Association of Teachers of Singing.

About 150 4th, 5th and 6th grade teachers from Arlington's elementary schools, are participating in an art workshop being conducted by CHUCK ISOLINE. Held Monday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week, the session included presentation of 44 art projects.

ALEX HOFFMAN of Computer Center attended an international session of the Data Processing Management Assn. in Dallas recently. He's editor of the professional publication Geoscience Electronics and took part in an editor's conference in N.Y. City a week ago. He's the only editor from west of the Mississippi.

BILL GARDNER was invited to attend a high-level conference on planning cholera research proposed by the U.S.-Japanese Cooperative Medical Sciences Program. The session was in Dallas Nov. 13.

MALCOLM McLEAN sends a clip from the Daily Texan in which Dr. C. L. Cline, English head at UofT, strikes out at all the problems the faculty has in their relationships with students, administration and each other. The biggest fear is "bigness" and the comments are interesting. "I nominate Dr. Cline for our faculty--just as soon as he is fired from UofT", Malcolm comments. Shouldn't be long now.

MARGUERITE POTTER will give the Honors Day Convocation address at Western Kentucky State College December 8.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS OF NOTE

TELETE LAWRENCE was guest speaker for Mu Chapter of Phi Eta National Sorority here recently. Topic: "Texas...Linguistically Speaking".

DR. MOUDY's talent with words has not gone unheard by many folks in many places lately. He's on tap to address the Downtown Kiwanians at Hotel Texas on Nov. 24 for their annual Turkey talk.

Testing specialists, including TCU's C. J. FIRKINS, attended a one-day workshop on Nov. 15 at SMU for those from the Fort Worth/Dallas area who will supervise Educational Testing Service exams.

Don't call Ye Ole Editor AMOS MELTON "Salty" 'cause the doctors at Scott and White in Temple where he sojourned last week, said nix to that sort of seasoning. Back in town only an hour or so, he was back in the office Monday afternoon.

MARY CHARLOTTE FARIS and DENNIS SCHICK deserve congratulations on the fine job they did on exhibits for Inauguration. Hers on all the TCU head men, on display in the library, and his on the inauguration replies in the foyer of Reed Hall were fine pieces of work. Don't fail to see 'em if you haven't already!
