Dear Sir:

I remember the name Walter J. Williams but I think I never met him. I appreciate your efforts in checking with him. Also, I recently checked with Dr. Abram McCall, and got a prompt and courteous reply but he just did not know anything. Under the circumstances I surely agree with you that we have gone as far as we can go, so just forget the school paper idea. I really didn't expect such results from it except perhaps an incidental lead to some other meteorite!

I had in mind writing a simple note to record this meteorite and having it published in "Meteoritics", which is put out by The Meteoritical Society (horrible name, isn't it?). We shall have to confer on what to name it, as a locality is commonly assigned to each meteorite, but this one is a puzzle. I had tentatively labeled my file "Turkey, Texas" since the early references were to that town. Maybe it should be "Unknown", Texas! I have the same strong feeling that Dr. Hawkins did not find it, but got it from some collector.

If you can submit some suitable dates in November maybe we can get together on a time for a talk. Tuesdays are always good for me because our orders are light that day, but any week day is all right.

Sincerely,
