

Figure 4. -- Johnstown, a coarsely crystalline brecciated hypersthene achondrite. Brecciation is common in the meteorites. This is a monomict (single class of material) breccia.