LEHMAN NAMED DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS

Jim Lehman, who had served as asst. director of public relations since coming to TCU in 1956, has been named director of the division formerly headed by the late Amos Melton. The appointment was made effective last week in an announcement by Chancellor Moudy. Jim will have supervision over University publications and advertising, news bureau, printing and mailing, and some special promotions and events. The public relations division is responsible for interpreting and promoting TCU's policies and programs to its many "publics," which include the faculty, students, parents, trustees, alumni, Disciple churches, the business and professional community, and others.

Born in Kansas City, Mo., Jim graduated from the University of Texas (shhh-h) and has taken some advanced work at TCU. Prior to coming to TCU he served as asst. advertising agent of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railroad then headquartered in Galveston. He is president of the Advertising Club of Fort Worth; a past president of the Fort Worth chapter of the Religious Public Relations Council; past director of the Southwest District of the American College Public Relations Assn.; co-adviser of the TCU chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising fraternity; an elder and vice-chairman of the board at South Hills Christian Church. He was named recently to a newly-formed public relations committee of the Texas Assn. of Christian Churches. Jim is married and has three daughters (all future frogettes, naturally.)

MINISTERS WEEK BEGINS NEXT MONDAY

TCU's annual Ministers Week, which should attract more than 450 Disciple ministers and their wives, will be held on campus beginning next Mon., Jan. 16 through Thurs. morning, Jan. 19. Highlight of the week is a series of three lectureships--the Wells Sermons, given by Dr. Roy Pearson, president of Andover Newton Theological School in Newton Center, Mass.; the McFadin Lectures, delivered by Dr. Robert A. Raines, minister of the First Methodist Church of Philadelphia, Pa.; the Oreon E. Scott Lectures, given by Dr. Harold L. Lunger, professor of Christian Ethics in TCU's Brite Divinity School.

FACULTY BULLETIN/2

In the Wells Sermons, Pearson will discuss "The Unangelic Mission," "To Walk at Liberty," and "A Given Life." They'll be presented at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium, Jan. 16-18. Granville Walker will preside at the services and Dr. Moudy will introduce the speaker. For the McFadin Lectures, which will be given at 9:10 a.m., Jan. 17-19, in Robert Carr Chapel, Rev. Raines will discuss "The Pietist, Secularist Controversy in the Church," "The mission of the Church: Secular Evangelism," and "The Nature of the Church: Secular Covenant." In his Oreor E. Scott Lectures, given at 11 a.m. Jan. 17-19 in Robert Carr Chapel, Dr. Lunger will discuss "The Church for the World," "The Church as the People of God," and "The Minister in a Ministering Congregation."

A special luncheon for ministers will be hosted by Brite Divinity School at 12:15 p.m., Jan. 17 in the Student Center Ballroom. Jeff Hassell, minister of South Hills Christian Church, will preside. Reservations are $2.00 each. Wives of the ministers will be honorees at a luncheon on Jan. 18 at Neiman-Marcus in Fort Worth. Ministers will be guests of the University at a complimentary luncheon at noon, Jan. 19, in the Student Center Ballroom. Chancellor Moudy will preside. Dr. John Knowles, director of TCU Church Relations, is making arrangements.

Registration for Ministers Week is scheduled for Jan. 16 from 2-5 p.m. in Brite Divinity School. Chairman of the event is Dr. Noel Keith, chairman of the department of undergraduate religion. Others on the committee include Kenneth M. Hay, Dr. Sloan Gentry, Dean Henson, and Granville Walker.

CONCELEBRATED MASS PLANNED TONIGHT

A Catholic mass using the new American liturgy, the first to be celebrated in the United States, will be held this evening (Jan. 11) in the Student Center Ballroom at 6 p.m. Sponsored by TCU's Newman Club, the service will include the singing of the Canon in English by 12 priests from the Fort Worth-Dallas area, a sermon by Father Richard Weaver of Fort Worth's Holy Family Church, and a commentary by Dr. Frank Reuter of the history dept. and sponsor of the Newman Club. Others participating are Father Ken Roberts and the student choir from St. Andrews Church. The new liturgy is the result of changes made recently by the Vatican Council. Faculty and students are invited to attend the unique service.

HOFFMAN AWARDED $50,000 NSF GRANT

Dr. Alexander A.J. Hoffman, assoc. professor of physics and mathematics and director of the TCU Computer Center, has been awarded a $50,000 grant for a third year of study concerning the Earth's magnetic waves and why they change. The new grant brings to $250,000 the amount awarded by the National Science Foundation to the research project. Scientists from several organizations will work on the project--graduate students from TCU assisting Dr. Hoffman; the magnetic observatory shared by Environmental Science Service Admin. (ESSA), located at the Southwest Center for Advanced Studies, formerly the Graduate Research Center of the Southwest; and Texas Instruments, Inc., a sub-contractor which will also provide a visiting scientist and technical help. The research project is entitled "Magnetotelluric field studies and the primary hydromagnetic spectrum."

SWIMMING CLASSES OFFERED "FOR FITNESS AND FOR FUN"

TCU's Special Course Division has made the dive into recreational swimming courses. Two courses will be offered--the first will begin Jan. 17 and end Feb. 21; the second session will run from March 7 to Apr. 11. Each will include six class meetings limited to 20 students each and planned for 6:30-8 p.m. on Tuesday evenings. The instructor will be Daniel Murphy, a teacher of competitive swimming and president of the board of directors of the Ridglea Pool Assn. Included in the instruction will be water safety methods, water skills, drown-proofing and stroke techniques. Tuition will be $10 per person. TCU faculty are invited to participate and to get in the swim of things. Call Leroy Lewis in the Special Course Division at Ext. 387 or 388 for details.

CHANGE IN GRADE REPORTING PROCEDURE ANNOUNCED

The registrar's office is notifying all faculty members of a change in grade reporting procedure effective for the final grade report for the Fall semester 1966. In this report it will no longer be required that an "I" Explanation Form accompany the grade sheet for each student assigned an incomplete ("I") grade. A brief comment in the remarks column of the grade sheet will be sufficient for a record of the reason the "I" grade is being assigned. However, teachers should continue to expect students to present "I Removal Permits" before offering work of any kind to make up the incomplete grade. The permit should indicate that the fee of $2.00 has been paid. Thesis and dissertation courses continue to be exceptions to the "I" grade procedures.

FORUMS COMMITTEE SCHEDULES TALK ON "RELATIVITY"

Dr. Jason Ellis, asst. professor of physics at Arlington State College and co-editor of Spacetime, a periodical for math and physics scholars, will bring Einstein's famous theory down to earth so lay people can understand it as he speaks on "Relativity for the Rest of Us." The program, which is open to the public, will begin at 3 p.m. today (Wed.) in Room 204 of the Student Center. Bring your relatives.

BILL WATSON RECEIVES A $45,000 GRANT

Dr. William Watson, professor of chemistry, has been awarded a $45,000 grant from the Robert A. Welch Foundation of Houston to continue his research concerning the structure of certain molecules--how and why the atoms of molecules are arranged as they are. The grant is to be spread over a three-year period and is for a project entitled "Metal Complexes and Anion Radicals," in which the structure will be studied by adding electrons to organic molecules, particularly those of transition metal complexes such as copper, nickel, and iron.

TITLE VI GRANT MAY BE APPROVED FOR TCU

The Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, has recommended a $40,784 matching grant from Title VI funds for TCU. The U.S. Office of Education is expected to approve the action soon. Approval will mean that most TCU departments will be able to obtain films, movie projectors, microscopes, cameras, calculators, musical instruments, barometers, listening response stations and other teaching aids which were requested under the Title VI program last year. TCU is one of eight private colleges and universities for which the funds were recommended. Another is Jarvis Christian College, with an expected grant of $41,575.

UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH OFFERS POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

Six or seven postdoctoral fellowships for advanced study and research in various fields of the humanities, the social sciences, and the natural sciences are being offered by the University of Pittsburgh. Known as the Andrew Mellon Postdoctoral Fellowships, the awards are intended to support the research and foster the professional development of young scholars who give promise of achieving distinction in their fields. The stipend is $7,000 and supplements. Applicants should submit an application form, a research proposal, a list of publications, and three letters of recommendation. Deadline is Jan. 15, 1967; awards will be made by March 1. Write to: Dean of the Graduate Faculty, Univ. of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15213.

WILLIAMS LIBRARY GIVEN TO TCU

A collection of more than 1,500 volumes of English materials from the personal library of the late Dr. Cecil B. Williams, former head of the English department, has been given to TCU's Mary Coats Burnett Library. The books, which include many 19th and early 20th Century novels, as well as many significant anthologies of literature, were presented to the library by his wife, March Beth. Commenting on the gift, Dr. Moudy said, "I am pleased that you (Mary Beth) were willing to make the sacrifice of such a fine collection for the larger benefit of our students." Paul Parham, librarian, said, "This probably represents the most useable collection on any single subject area ever received by the University's library." The volumes will be distinguished by a special bookplate identifying the gift.

WHERE DO MERIT SCHOLARS GO?

An article in the December News Letter of Phi Sigma Iota (Romance Language Honor Society) reports some interesting facts about National Merit Scholars. With about 2,000 colleges and universities in the United States and 5,837 Merit Scholars, this would average 2.9 Scholars per institution. However, there are 5,837 Scholars enrolled at 514 schools for an average of 11.3 Scholars per institution. Of the total number enrolled, 4,198 attend the 66 schools where there are 17 or more Scholars enrolled. Thus, 72.2% of the Scholars attend 3.30% of the colleges in the U. S. Only three Texas schools were listed among the 66--Rice, with 153 Merit Scholars enrolled; Univ. of Texas, with 59; and TCU, with 24. Tops on the list was Michigan State Univ., with 560. The report was based in 1965 figures.

JACK SUGGS RECEIVES AWARD

Dr. M. Jack Suggs, professor of New Testament in Brite Divinity School, has been awarded a $500 prize in a national manuscript competition. The contest, sponsored annually by the Christian Research Foundation, awards prizes for significant unpublished manuscripts of book length in the field of early Christian history. Jack's manuscript is entitled "Widsom, Christology, and Law in Matthew's Gospel." The entry was an expanded version of the Spring Lectures he delivered at Lexington Theological Seminary. Chapters of the manuscript have been presented independently at recent regional meetings of the Society of Biblical Literature. Dr. A. T. DeGroot, distinguished professor of Church History, received an award from the Foundation several years ago.

NOTES ON MOST NOTABLE FOLKS

WAYNE ROWLAND, journalism chairman, and his family spoke to the Faculty Woman's Club yesterday afternoon on "A Year in the Philippines." The Rowlands were in the country last year while Wayne was on a Fulbright Lectureship assigned to assist in establishing a school of journalism at Silliman University--the first in the Philippines. The Rowlands have five children (4 girls, 1 boy). Two of the girls, Leslie and April, are enrolled in TCU.

ALEX HOFFMAN, director of the Computer Center, visited the facilities and gave a colloquium lecture at the Sacramento Peak Observatory in Sunspot, New Mexico (appropriate name), recently. Sacramento Peak is part of the Air Force Cambridge Research Laboratories. The trip was sponsored by the Office of Aerospace Research, USAF.

MRS. EILENE RALL of the English dept. has a senator in her family. Her daughter, Kathleen, a sophomore at U. of New Mexico, was recently elected to the college's student senate. Last year Kathleen was chosen best-dressed girl on campus.

"Tectonics of Northern Honduras" was the subject of a talk given recently by JACK WALPER of geology to the Dallas-Fort Worth section of the Assn. of Engineering Geologists.

The Worm Runner's Digest carries an article by SELBY EVANS of psychology entitled "Support Drive in the Blueberry Pancake". The article spoofs certain approaches to motivation by showing that the same reasoning could infer a support drive from the fact that objects fall. The report, says Selby, is the second in a series produced by his Institute of Exopsychology.

KARL SNYDER of English was guest star last week on KFJZ-FM's "Hot Line" program. His subject was "Can There Be Total Academic Freedom?" He received some pretty hot questions from listeners.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS OF NOTE

It's great seeing Athletic Director ABE MARTIN back on the campus again. He's "lookin' good" and to get his daily exercise has been doing a few walking laps around the corridor of the coliseum. He was feeling pretty strong the other day and went for a third lap. It wore him out and his doctor told him that the next time he felt like walking around the coliseum to make it another "inch" instead of a mile.

Another familiar face on campus last week was that of OTTO NIELSEN, former education dean and now on assignment for the State Dept. in Guatemala developing the country's educational and human resources program.

EMMET SMITH, TCU organist, attended the National Conclave of the American Guild of Organists in Dallas during the holidays. He is being presented in a recital in Dallas by the AGO on Tues., Jan. 17. This is Emmet's second Dallas appearance under the sponsorship of the Guild.

Several members of the School of Business faculty attended the allied social sciences meetings in San Francisco last month. Dean IKE HARRISON attended the Academy of Management meetings and served as a national committeeman on a study of comparative administration; ALLEN SELF, Academy of Management and American Economics Assn. meetings; JIM WHITSETT and MARJORIE STANLEY, Amer. Finance Assn.; JOHN PERKINS and KEN HERRICK, Amer. Economics Assn. meetings.

CHARLES KEMP, distinguished professor of pastoral psychology in Brite, has an article entitled "Ministry in General Hospitals, 1930-1966" published in the Dec. issue of Pastoral Psychology. Charles is a member of the journal's Editorial Advisory Board.

RALPH GUENTHER of music was presented in a Guest Artist Recital Jan. 6 by the Dept. of Music of Northeast Louisiana State College at Monroe. Ralph played the flute and was assisted by FRITZ BERENS on the piano. Ralph says the concert went well, drew a good crowd and fine reviews.

A COMPLIMENTARY NOTE has been received from the directors of the Cotton Bowl Festival regarding Lynda Howard (Marfa senior) who represented TCU at the Festival and game, and John Tom Williams (Dallas junior), her escort. "They were delightful to work with, added much to the group...and TCU should be very proud of both of these fine young people," the letter said.

Our sympathies to JEDFORD (JEDDIE) MCFARLAND on the unexpected death of her husband last Monday evening. Jeddie has been employed at TCU for some 19 years and is a jovial friend to everyone at the Faculty Center coffee-counter. Her husband worked at General Dynamics.
