IT'S ONLY FEBRUARY, BUT SPRING IS HERE

Today is the last day for registration though students may register late through February 9. Tomorrow ushers in the first day of classes for the Spring Semester 1967. Even the weather has the aroma of Spring...at least while this is being written. But, knowing Texas, it could be snowing tomorrow. The lines at the coliseum were moving briskly and efficiently as registration began Monday—thanks to the Very fine planning of Associate Registrar Joe Enochs, assistant Marvin Keith and others in the registrar's and business offices. Departmental tables lined the corridor and faculty chatted with and registered the young people for their various classes. So, most students are now signed, stamped, sealed, and will deliver themselves tomorrow morning to their first classes of the spring term.

Enrollment figures will most likely exceed those of this time a year ago. Within a few days Calvin Cumbie and his crew will have digested most of the data and in next week's Faculty Bulletin we'll give a partial report. Complete information will be available after late registration concludes. Dormitories look to be filled to near capacity. Some of our girls who now have an opportunity to be only two to a room have found they've become such good friends that they prefer to remain "triplets"—three to a room.

Some 180 students completed their degree requirements by the end of the fall semester. They will receive their degrees at our commencement ceremony set for Wed., May 31. Of these, 162 were working toward bachelor's degrees, 17 toward master's and one for a Ph. D.--in chemistry, the first in this field at TCU.

FEBRUARY CALENDAR FULL

As is true most every month, the calendar remains brim-full of activities and events. Take note of the TCU Events folder enclosed which gives you the play-by-play through March. For the immediate week ahead there's a travel film on South America (Feb.2); French organist Jean Langlais in Ed Landreth, 8:15 p.m. (Feb. 3); Russian film "Bed and Sofa", Ballroom, 2:30 p.m.(Feb.5); University Theatre's "Death of a Salesman" (Feb. 6-11); Japanese film "The Baliff", "Ballroom 7:30 p.m.(Feb.7); and TCU vs Baylor in the coliseum at 8 p.m. (Feb. 7).

DONALD REYNOLDS NAMED DIRECTOR OF INSTRUCTIONAL SYSTEMS INSTITUTE

Dr. Donald Reynolds, formerly a human factors scientist with System Development Corp. of Los Angeles, has been named director of TCU's new Instructional Systems Institute which will operate within the School of Education. Don's appointment is effective today (Feb. 1). He has been working with programs in computer-assisted instruction, self-instructional systems and other innovations in education. A native of New York City, he received his BA cum laude from Long Island Univ. and his Ph. D., with a specialty in learning psychology, from Michigan State Univ.

According to Dean Herb LaGrone of the School of Education, the Institute's first function will be to carry out a program of research and study in computer-assisted instruction (CAI). Eventually it will take part in other much-needed research in teaching and learning. The Institute will draw on the talents of other disciplines in trying to develop new and better systems of instruction. It will be a service agency to help other University departments and other educational institutions as well. TCU will begin with a complete CAI system installed next fall and will become the second institution in the Southwest to do work in this field. The Univ. of Texas, which already has a program, will help by allowing a demonstration unit connected to its system to be installed at TCU this spring.

The system will be composed of the central computer and eight terminals, each of which will have:—a cathode ray tube, similar to a TV set, on which the computer places a message or illustration for the student;—earphones through which the student receives spoken messages or guestions;—a "light pen" with which the student can point out items on the TV-like screen in front of him;—a teletypewriter which allows the computer to converse with the student through written messages. The system will be used in research in "drill and practice" in which CAI supplements the regular curriculum taught by a teacher and in "tutorial" assistance in which CAI takes over the main responsibility for instruction, calling for a teacher when the student fails to meet specific criteria. TCU's education students will use the equipment as a research tool in planning school curriculums.

The August 1966 issue of Fortune Magazine states that "The computer's role (in education) could be as dramatic as that played by the book the invention of the printing press." In announcing the new program, Chancellor Moudy said: "We have the leadership in the School Education which can make us among the first to prepare teachers in puter-Assisted Instruction and to do research in the field."

SEVEN ADVERTISING FIELD DAY SET

Next Saturday morning TCU's Dept. of Journalism-Advertising will play host to about 200 or more high school and college students, teachers and counselors, who are interested in learning more about the advertising profession. The half-day program is co-sponsored by TCU and the Advertising Club of Fort Worth. Bob Carrell of journalism and Jim Lehman of PR are campus coordinators. Chairman is Jo Dulle, a TCU alumnus presently with Witherspoon & Assoc. advertising and PR firm. The students will get an "inside glimpse" of what advertising is and does and the role it plays in our free-enterprise system.

Morris Hite, president of Tracy-Locke agency in Dallas, will discuss three successful advertising campaigns. In addition, the students will try to beat local professionals in rating a number of ads. After the morning session they'll be guests at a luncheon in Weatherly Hall The Program will be held in Dan Rogers Hall auditorium with registration from 8:30-9 a.m.

EXPANDED PROGRAM IN PHYSICAL FITNESS OFFERED

Increased emphasis is being given to the physical education program at TCU. With $2,800 worth of new equipment, the University's gymnastics program is being expanded to include courses this spring in stunts and tumbling, apparatus and gymnastics and theory-practice of gymnastics. The new courses will be included in a degree program in physical education for men and women specializing in gymnastics. The equipment includes the side horse, two horizontal bars, a balance beam, rings, women's uneven parallel bars. Jim Standifer, professor of health and physical education; Carolyn Dixon, instructor; and George Harris, asst. professor, will be conducting the program. Harris is also director of TCU's intramural program and plans to organize a Gymnastic club composed of students interested in the sport. TCU will host an interstate, all-level gymnastic meet Mar. 31-Apr. 1 in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum. Co-sponsor will be the Fort Worth YMCA.

COURSES OFFERED BY EVENING COLLEGE THIS SPRING

At least eight to ten courses are being offered by the Evening College for the first time this spring. These include a class in karate, istican Literature of the Colonial and Early National Periods, Journal-Operations, Persuasion, Contemporary Moral Issues, Radio-TV of Acting, Interior Designing, Art-Sketching and Rendering. Registration for the courses continues through tonight from 6:30-8:30 p.m. in Suggest the course in friendly persuasion. But, just to be sure you half-safe?

MEET SOME OF OUR NEW FACULTY AND STAFF

With the coming of the spring semester a number of new faces will be seen around the campus. New to the government dept. is MAKOTO TAKIZAWA who was born in Shinonoi-shi, Nagano-ken, Japan, and earned his BA from Sophia Univ. in Tokyo, MA and Ph. D. from Florida State. Makoto is active in the American Political Science Assn. and the Assn. of Asian Studies. KENNETH GORDON assumes his duties as assistant dean of men today. From Marshall, Ken earned his BS in business at Centenary College and his MA in counseling from East Texas State U. Since Sept. 1965, he has been assistant dean of students at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau. Ken is active in the Jaycees, American Personnel & Guidance Assn. and American College Personnel Assn. He and his wife will reside in Clark Hall. Appointed new assistant basketball coach is HAL RATCLIFF who will assume his duties March 1. Hal is a 1964 graduate of TCU, a former all-state football and basketball player at Dimmitt. He enrolled at TCU, but injured both knees as a freshman. After undergoing surgery, he gave up the game as a sophomore and coached the Frog freshmen his final two years. Hal has been the basketball coach at Atkins Junior High in Lubbock. Also joining the faculty this spring is famed pianist LILI KRAUS. She was on campus last October as a judge for the Van Cliburn Competition and also gave a concert in Ed Landreth Auditorium. She'll be an artistin residence with the Fine Arts faculty. Named as News Bureau Assistant in the public relations division is REBECCA ANN GARDNER From Cleburne, Becky had been working as a journalism intern in the office for the past 2 and one-half years and held a Theta Sigma Phi (professional journalism sorority for women) scholarship. Becky will assist with the TCU magazine among other news bureau duties.

AND SOME OLD FACES WITH NEW JOBS ...

Though they had been performing their duties for some time as "Acting" Chairmen, they can now quit acting and play it for real. As most everyone knows, MALCOLM ARNOULT has been named chairman of the psychology department and JIM CORDER chairman of the English department. Both had been acting chairmen since Sept. Mal has a BA and MA from Inlane and a Ph. D. from the U. of Texas. He joined the TCU faculty and holds a NASA grant for research in visual perception of objects space.

Corder earned his BA and MA from TCU and his doctorate from Okla-home U. He joined our faculty in 1958, has received a number of awards his poetry, co-authored the text "A College Rhetoric", wrote 'Rhetoric: A Text-Reader," and edited "Shakespeare 1964" published last by the TCU Press.

Our sincere "welcome" to the newcomers and a well-earned "congratula-tions" to Jim and Mal!

LAST FRIDAY'S CAREER CONFERENCE TOPS

Congressman Olin Teague and his four mystery guests presented one of the best programs we've ever had for our annual Citizenship and Career Conference. At the general assembly in the coliseum Teague addressed about 2,000 high school seniors from Fort Worth and area schools. He began by telling them, 'I want you-just for a few minutes--to play God." He asked them what kind of world they would create: all people being beautiful, wealthy and intellectual, and every day being Spring. It sounds pretty wonderful at first," he remarked, "but, on reflection, I think most of us would decide upon a world pretty much as it is-a world that is thrilling and challenging because of its contrasts, a world that is magnificent because of its imperfections." He challenged them to aim as high as their mental, physical and spiritual ammunition would reach and to be sure that they choose and prepare for a career that will make them happy for the rest of their life. "It's your life;" he said, "you're the only one who can lead it."

Teague gave a brief biographical sketch of each of his guests and asked the students to guess which one he was talking about. He held his hand over their heads and they applauded for the one they thought matched the description. They guessed correctly every time, except when the Congressman asked them which man was his son. The guests were movie star Audie Murphy, astronaut Vance Brand, Mayor Ted Connell of killeen, and Jack Teague, a jet pilot. After a brief question-answer period, the students went to the more than 30 career sessions offered campus.

Our thanks again to all those who helped: the public relations staff; maintenance; greeters Libby Proffer, Jewel Potter, Nevin Neal, Jeff Horn, Betty Jean Stocker, Betty Knox; the grounds and parking personnel; food service; student ushers; Army and Air Force ROTC cadets; many of our faculty who planned the conferences; those from the community—including those representing the Fort Worth and West Texas Chambers of Commerce (co-sponsors of the event with TCU); and many others.

"DEATH OF A SALESMAN" TO START MONDAY

Arthur Miller's classic modern tragedy, "Death of A Salesman", will be presented by the University Theatre Feb. 6-11. The play is being directed by Jack Cogdill, Theatre Arts chairman. All seats are rebox office from 1:00-8:00 p.m., or by calling ext. 243.

NEW PUBLICATIONS OFF THE PRESSES

While deans and departments work hard getting catalog copy and proofs ready for the printers, other publications continue to roll from the presses. Included with this week's Faculty Bulletin is our bi-monthly TCU Events Calendar. Over 3,000 copies of this folder are distributed off campus. The Church-Related College and University: Is it here to stay?, reprinted from the winter issue of the TCU magazine, is now available in limited quantities from the Printing & Mailing Office in Sadler Hall. A Brief Look at TCU, the small envelope-size folder that highlights TCU's academic program, facilities and student life for prospective students, has been up-dated and is also available from Printing & Mailing. This is an especially good folder to distribute whenever you're speaking off campus. The 1967-68 issue of Scholarships and Financial Aid at TCU is off the presses, completely up-dated in line with the tuition increase effective next Sept.

Jim Brock, energetic sports information director, has just edited a handsome Basketball Facts for 1966-67. Though it's prepared especially for members of the press, radio and TV, you might be able to find an extra copy. The Summer Session 1967 class schedule is also available through the registrar's office.

WHILE SPEAKING OF PUBLICATIONS ...

A limited number of Faculty Handbooks for the 1966-67 academic year are available in the Public Relations office, Sadler Hall 326. If you have need of an extra copy, particularly for new faculty and staff, drop by PR or call ext. 212 and we'll send it to you through inter-Office mail.

NOTED FRENCH ORGANIST IN CONCERT FRIDAY

Jean Langlais, an internationally famous French organist, will present free concert in Ed Landreth Auditorium, Friday, Feb. 3, at 8:15 p.m. Langlais is blind and is currently on a 3-month transcontinental tour With Susan Ferre, former TCU student and daughter of philosophy chair-Gus Ferre, as his guide. Langlais is organist at Sainte Clotilde Church in Paris and plays on the same organ as the famed composer, Franck, used in the 19th century. The concert is sponsored by the American Guild of Organists and the School of Fine Arts. On Sat., Feb. Langlais will teach a class in organ for any interested persons. The charge will be $3 each.

ART COURSE OFFERED FOR FACULTY

Chuck Isoline, professor of art, is offering a private art course for interested faculty and staff and their wives or husbands. The course will cover design, drawing and painting (watercolor and oil) and will meet Thursday evenings from 7-10 p.m. at Chuck's home. If you'd like to "brush" up on your art technique this will be a very "pallet"able class. Oil you need to do is call Chuck at AX2-1639. Et tu Picasso?

NOTES ON MOST NOTABLE FOLKS

BEN GOLDBECK of math will head to the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas Feb. 17 to be a principal speaker for the mathematics section of the Texas Junior College Teachers Assn. meeting. Ben will discuss "Linear Algebra in the Junior College".

WELCOME BACK MARY BETH WILLIAMS! Mary Beth has accepted appointment as a part-time instructor in English for the spring semester. It's great to have you with us again.

NEIL HULINGS, director of research and personnel with the Smithsonian I..stitute's Oceanography Division effective Feb. 1, had a paper Published in the Publications of the Institute of Marine Science, Nov. 1966 edition, on "Recent Marine Ostracod Assemblages of Puerto Rico." The paper was co-authored by James Baker in partial fulfillment of the MS degree at TCU.

Church Relations Director JOHN KNOWLES is leading a World Outreach Institute at South Hills Christian Church Feb. 5-8.

Participating in a School of World Outreach at Central Christian Church in Galveston last Sunday was JEAN KNECHT. Jean spoke on "Your Outreach Dollars at Work in the Congo." Churches from Texas City, Dickinson and Alvin also participated.

PAUL WASSENICH has a very beautiful book, The Flowering of The Middle Ages, by nine British scholars which he will be happy to show anyone who is interested. It was presented to Paul by Rockefeller Brothers Foundation. Busy Paul will be speaking on six Sunday evenings in a lecture-discussion series at Northway Christian Church in Dallas. He'll speak on "Life and Letters of the Apostle Paul."

Vice Chancellor for External Affairs EARL WALDROP has been named head of the newly-created United Fund agency properties committee. The committee will survey and evaluate physical plants of 25 United Fund agencies and assist in bringing all buildings up to condition for necessary operations.

The Jan. 15 issue of The Quarter Racing Record, the magazine of quarter horse racing, carries a full-page story on MALCOLM McLEAN'S recent book, Fine Texas Horses.

The Texas State Historical Assn. has accepted two more articles by PROCTER for the third volume of the Handbook of Texas. One is biographical sketch of Sid Richardson; the other is on the White Citizens Council.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS OF NOTE

WAYNE LUDVIGSON of psychology and James McHose, a colleague at Southern Illinois Univ. are co-authors of a recent article in Psychonomic Science, titled "Differential Conditioning With Non-differential Reinforcement." The article reports that the behavior of a laboratory rat in an apparatus may be influenced by the type of behavior displayed by another animal in the apparatus a few minutes earlier. This is not too mysterious, but does raise some methodological problems. (Was it a girl or a boy?)

CLIPPED FROM THE SMALL SOCIETY by Brickman, the cartoon strip which appears each morning in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram: Two students are walking along the campus mall and the girl says, "I wonder why it's supposed to be so hard to get into a college today?" Her male companion replies, "The way I understand it, is that nobody can get in because everybody is going!"

E. R. ALEXANDER of chemistry received a painful facial injury last week while working in his back yard. He entered St. Joseph's Hospital for corrective surgery yesterday and will probably be hospitalized for about a week.

Spanish professor EGYDIO ROMANENGHI had a unique assignment over the Christmas holidays. He served as narrator for a Christmas program broadcast by the Southern Baptist Radio Commission over 650 Latin American stations. He recited "The Birth of Christ" by Amado Ansi, a Jesuit priest from Cordoba, Argentina. Egydio is also from Cordoba. The Baptist Commission reports that a number of letters have been received praising the program. Egydio narrated a similar program in 1965.

Wichita Falls two weeks ago where he lectured to the chemistry departments of Austin College and Midwestern U. on "Determination of Aromatic Character by Nuclear Magnetic Resonance." Bill was in Washington last week at the invitation of the National Academy of Sciences to sit on a review panel for NSF Postdoctoral Fellowships.
