FACULTY BULLETIN/2

NEW POLICY ON DEPARTMENT CHAIRMANSHIPS

The following statement from Vice Chancellor James Newcomer describes the University's new policy on department chairmanships:

"New appointments to departmental chairmanships, beginning in 1966-67, will come under a policy of periodical review. The new policy provides for the chairman and the administration, usually at intervals of five years, to review the departmental situation in all its aspects in relationship to the chairmanship. The review may involve a departmental self-study, to which all concerned contribute in an analysis of the present situation and a determination of the departmental future.

"One objective of the policy is to counteract the reluctance of some well qualified professors to assume the duties of the chairmanship in perpetuity. It happens sometimes that such a person is unwilling to commit himself to administering a department for an indefinite period at the possible expense of his teaching and research, but will willingly assume the chairmanship for a period of years. In situations that can benefit by a change of leadership, the plan provides for that change.

"Some expressions of apprehension have been frankly stated and discussed. But the assumption is that good will and an earnest desire for the welfare of the University will override any other considerations."

MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP ESTABLISHED

A $100,000 memorial trust, established by Fort Worth native John B. Hawley, Jr. of Minneapolis, Minn., will provide scholarships to graduates of Tarrant County high schools. The trust will be known as The John B. Hawley Memorial Scholarship in honor of Hawley's father, the late Major John Blackstock Hawley of Fort Worth. According to Chancellor Moudy, the "unsolicited and very generous gift will allow Tarrant County students of modest means to combine the economy of living at home with the challenging opportunity of attending a university." Recipients may study any areas except athletics and the ministry since these two are already better funded than general academic programs.

THEATRE TO PRESENT "THE CHILDREN'S HOUR"

The highly sensitive, delicate story of "The Children's Hour," Written by Lillian Hellman and filmed as a motion picture a few Years ago, will be presented by University theatre, starting Monday (April 3) and running for six performances. Under the direction of Henry Hammack of Fine Arts, the play will feature Susan Mix of Fort Worth and Diane Rowand of Dallas in the lead roles as Karen Wright and Martha Dobie, who convert an old farmhouse into a boarding school for young girls.

The drama, praised for its dramatic intensity and psychological insight, will call for the best of performances from the highly-trained and very capable young actors selected for parts. Others in the cast are Brent Williams of Oklahoma City; Sharon Garrison, Fort Worth; Laurie Alderdice of Bradenton, Fla.; and Judy Jones of Tyler.

Tickets, priced at $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for non-TCU students, may be reserved by calling University Theatre box office, Ext. 243, from 1 to 7 p.m. Following the opening night's performance, those Present will be invited to a reception in the Green Room of Ed Landreth Hall.

TIME 'S A-WASTIN'?

Would you believe it's already time for the listings of graduation hopefuls to be circulated? An impressive listing it is, too, with a total of 761 tabbed to complete degree requirements for May 31 Commencement. Actually, Associate Registrar Joe Enochs notes, 175 of the total finished their work in January.

The break-down so far shows 267 undergraduate degrees through AddRan College of Arts and Sciences; 159, Neeley School of Business; 118, School of Education; 53, School of Fine Arts; 38, Harris College of Mursing. Graduate degrees include 11 doctorates, 17 degrees through Brite Divinity School and 98 master's degrees.

The tentative count for Spring 1967 is identical with the early Spring 1966 count. Last year's May Commencement total was 754. We may be heading for another record:
