COMMENCEMENT TONIGHT CONCLUDES SEMESTER

With Sunday's fine Baccalaureate Service behind us and last final exams completed today, we move inexorably toward Commencement. The climaxing event of the spring semester will begin this evening at 7:30 p. m. in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum. Faculty are again asked to assemble at 7 p. m. in the area between the Stadium and Coliseum to form the academic procession. For faculty who will not be in the procession, rows 5 through 7 in Sec. R. of the Coliseum have been reserved. Ushers will be on hand to direct you to these seats.

We'll graduate 759 students, 55 with honors. The Bachelor degree will be awarded to 55 students, the Master degree to 81, the Bachelor of Divinity to 15, and the Doctor of Philosophy to eight persons. This will bring to 46 the number of Ph. D. degrees awarded by TCU since the doctoral program was approved for selected fields in 1959. Two Ph. D. s will be given for work in chemistry, the first awarded in this field. Two also will be given in psychology and in mathematics and one each in physics and in English. This is the largest graduating class in the history of TCU. The previous record was 754, set last spring.

Six honorary degrees will be conferred this evening. The honorary Doctor of Laws degree will be awarded to Lorin Boswell, Joe A. Clarke, M. J. Neeley, and Douglas Tomlinson. Robert H. Widmer will receive the honorary Doctor of Science degree and Rev. Mr. William Howland, Jr., will receive the honorary Doctor of Divinity Degree.

ROTC COMMISSIONING TO BEGIN AT 2 P. M.

Col. Elmer W. Kretschmar, executive officer of the 19th Air Division, Carswell Air Force Base, will be guest speaker at the joint Air Force-Army ROTC commissioning ceremony at 2 p. m. today in the Student Center ballroom. The former public school principal and superintendent directed Air Force studies at the University of Illinois and North Dakota State College. He has been executive officer at Forbes AFB in Kansas and Vandenberg AFB, Calif., before coming to Carswell in 1965. He was deputy commander of the 556th Strategic Missile Squadron at Plattsburg AFB, New York.

During the event, recognition will be given to distinguished military graduates, and the oath of office will be administered by Maj. Kenneth L. Thompson of the AFROTC and Col. Donald G. Thompson of the Army Unit. Twenty-two TCU cadets will be commissioned. Parents and friends have been invited to the ceremony, which is open to the public.

HONOR DUE DEAN HARRIS

In addition to numerous, much-deserved honors bestowed on Miss Lucy Harris, the Harris College of Nursing dean has been selected for signal recognition as the second recipient of the Ella Goldthwaite Award of the University of Texas School of Nursing.

Retiring June 1 after 21 years' distinguished leadership of TCU's nursing college, Dean Harris will receive the award in formal presentation ceremonies during the Galveston school's graduation exercises on June 14 in Moody Center. She was notified of her selection for the distinct honor by Dr. Marilyn D. Willman, acting dean of the U of T division.

Initiated by the University of Texas School of Nursing in 1966 to honor persons who have given distinguished service to nursing education, the award simultaneously memorializes the name of Ella Goldthwaite, who, at the age of 7, sustained serious injury in a fall. After surgery by a New York hip specialist, she was accompanied to her Galveston home by Miss Dorothy Fick, graduate of the Mount Sinai School of Nursing, who remained a constant attendant until the child's death in 1890. At the request of several prominent Galvestonians, the nurse remained in that city to become head of a training school for nurses, later the John Sealy Hospital school and the first such training program in the western United States.

STUDENT WINS NATIONAL ART AWARD

Sophomore William R. Blakeley of Fort Worth was the only Texan to receive an award in the 8th Annual Collegiate Packaging Design Contest, sponsored by the St. Regis Paper Co. of Chicago. Named recipient of an award of merit, he became the first TCU art student to win national recognition. The 21-year-old commercial art major submitted an entry, done as a class project in commercial art under the direction of Associate Professor C. J. Isoline. More than 1,481 entries were submitted from 274 colleges, universities and schools of art from throughout the United States. Blakeley holds a Nordan Fine Arts Scholarship for commercial art study here.

GLASS CATALOGERS HONORED AT LUNCHEON

Mrs. Mary Cobb and Mrs. Julia Hartley of Lubbock, honorees at a recent luncheon given by home economics students, have completed a several months' project of marking each piece of the Mills Collection of Early American glass. In the process pattern designation and number identifying each piece has been noted, and they are now working on a catalog of the 2,500-piece collection. The two ladies lectured last week to the Fort Worth Altrusa Club regarding the collection.

A guest at the luncheon, planned by students Peggye Breazeale and Lolabeth Johnson, was Mrs. Granville Walker, personal friend of the donor of the collection and his late wife. She has been a frequent lecturer on the artistic glass pieces.

LIBRARY RECEIVES GIFT FROM STUDENT'S FATHER ✓

A six-volume set of Portugaliae Monumenta Cartographica, published in Lisbon in commemoration of the fifth centenary of the death of Henry the Navigator, has been given to the TCU library by CWO Clarence R. Warner of Fort Worth. Stationed here with the Air Force and the father of TCU sophomore Charles Warner, the donor formerly was associated with the U. S. Embassy in Lisbon.

The volumes were prepared by Armando Cortesao and Avelino Teixeira da Mota, both historians of cartography. The publication contains copies of numerous maps developed during the 15th and 16th Centuries by Prince Henry and his followers. The text, which in itself is a valuable history of cartography, is in both English and Portuguese. The gift volumes are significant contributions, Librarian Paul Parham says, not only in geography but also as primary source material for history.

ADDRAN CHAPTER ALUMNI GATHER

The annual meeting of the Add-Ran Chapter of the TCU Alumni Association, held Saturday in the Student Center, was a time for reminiscing about the University's earlier days and the activities of its students as well as an opportunity for observing physical changes now in progress on campus. Welcomed by Dr. Joseph L. Clark, of Huntsville, son of one of TCU's co-founders, those attending heard reports and discussion by committees and members. Clyde Foltz, director of Alumni Affairs, spoke briefly as did S. W. Hutton, former TCU registrar.

During the meeting, which adjourned after a 12:15 p.m. luncheon, holders of the Addison and Randolph Clark Ministerial Scholarships for 1967 were introduced by Walter Naff, director of TCU's field service education. The two are Bonnie Holt and Ted Cooley. About 20 persons attended the day's events.

SUMMER A GOOD TIME TO UPDATE FACULTY PHOTOS

Though summer provides fewer "leisure" moments each year, it might still provide a little extra time for faculty to have their photos updated for PR files. Through an arrangement with Orgain's Studio (705 1/2 Main, ED 6-0155) TCU faculty may have their picture made at no cost to the University. Simply make an appointment, visit the studio and ask them to send the prints you select to the Public Relations office. It it's been some time since you've been before the camera--why not do it this summer.

SIGMA XI ELECTS SECREST PRESIDENT

Dr. E. Leigh Secrest, dean of the Graduate School and president of the TCU Research Foundation, has been elected president of the University's chapter of Sigma Xi. The national organization is composed of persons who have made original contributions to scientific knowledge. Secrest succeeds Dr. Arthur Ehlmann, chairman of the geology department, who headed the group last year when it became a full chapter of the society. Dr. Manfred Reinecke was named vice-president and president-elect and Dr. Bobby Sanders as secretary-treasurer.

INSTITUTES, PROGRAMS PACK SUMMER MONTHS

Almost before the last graduate has left the coliseum after tonight's (Wed.) Commencement, we'll be getting ready for registration for the first six weeks summer session. Beginning at 7 a. m. Monday, June 5, students will start signing up for classes during the June 6-July 14 term. The second six weeks session will open with registration on July 17 and classes will start the next day through Aug. 25--the day of summer commencement exercises.

More than 475 classes will be offered during the day and over 50 classes in the evening. Evening College registration will be held June 5 from 6:30-8:30 p. m., also in the coliseum.

Special summer programs include a Fine Arts Institute for high school students (June 18-30, except Drama--June 11-July 14), a NSF-sponsored institute for science and mathematics teachers (June 5-July 14), a Project Head Start Orientation program through the home economics department (June 5-9 & June 12-16), a six-week study workshop for teachers of educationally deprived children (June 5-July 14), a Lay School of Theology through Brite Divinity School (July 9-15), a reading improvement program for students in Grades 4-6 and junior high school (beginning June 5), a graduate study program for reading teachers, a program for high school students who have completed their junior year and wish to take college courses on a delayed credit basis, and a home economics dept. Resource Seminar on Wheels (a series of field trips beginning July 31).

Other activities include TCU's 16th summer session in Mexico (July 10-Aug. 8) and a Fine Arts Foreign Study Tour to the cultural capitals of Western Europe during the second summer term.

"SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER" CONQUERED SCOTT AUDIENCES

Jack Cogdill, theatre arts chairman, reports that their production of "She Stoops to Conquer" was seen by more than 2,000 people at the William Edrington Scott Theatre. Attendance averaged about 340 persons for each performance. TCU's University Theatre seats 220. The play was delightful and very successful. Jack praised the excellent publicity given the production by local press and our News Bureau for its fine help.

INSTITUTE FOR TEACHERS OF EDUCATIONALLY DEPRIVED CHILDREN PLANNED

A program for school personnel directly associated with instructional programs for educationally deprived children in kindergarten through Grade 3 will be conducted at TCU from June 5-July 14. The institute, which is supported by the Elementary-Secondary Education Act of 1965, will be directed by Dr. John Hoyle, assistant professor of education. He will be assisted by Dr. Wyatt Stephens, director of TCU's programs in special education; Dolores Tanner, assistant professor of theatre arts; and specialists in the field of language development.

Forty persons, 39 of them from Fort Worth public schools, have been selected as participants in the institute. During the six-week program, emphasis will be placed on the nature of conceptual and linguistic skills in the developmental process of the disadvantaged child, as well as upon methods and techniques teachers can use to deal with these problems.

A similar institute was conducted on campus last summer by Dr. Jeff Horn of the School of Education.

DEGREE PROGRAM IN URBAN STUDIES ANNOUNCED ✓

An interdepartmental major in urban studies leading to a B.A. degree will be inaugurated by TCU next fall. The new program will be the first of its kind offered in the North Texas area. Course work will be offered primarily through the TCU Evening College and represents a significant cooperative effort between the departments of economics, geography, government, and sociology.

Dr. Robert Taylor, chairman of the geography department and of the urban studies degree program committee, said, "The TCU program will assist students in selecting and preparing for graduate work in urban and regional affairs while giving them the fundamentals for consideration as a career employee with agencies concerned with urban planning."

TCU, through the Evening College and Special Course Division, has conducted a 12-session Urban Policy Seminar program during the 1966-67 year in conjunction with the Brookings Institution of Washington, D. C. The program has been approved for renewal during 1967-68.

Students taking the urban studies major will be required to serve an internship equal to three months' full-time employment in some phase of urban planning.

A press conference, announcing the new program, was held on campus last Friday. Participating were Academic Vice Chancellor James Newcomer; Evening College Director Tom Palmer; Deans Jerome Moore and Ike Harrison; Drs. Robert Taylor (geog.), John Wortham (eco.), John Haltom (govt.), Bob Talbert (soc.-anthro.); plus part-time Evening College faculty members Mike Mahoney (Fort Worth director of city planning), Bob Wegner (regional planning director, North Central Texas Council of Governments), and Bill Sheveland (consultant, Harrell and Hamilton, Dallas).

FINAL URBAN POLICY SEMINAR THIS WEEK

The final seminar in TCU's 12-session Metropolitan Fort Worth Urban Policy Conference will be held June 1-2. Dr. Alan Altshuler, associate professor of political science at MIT, will discuss the theoretical analysis of the policy planning process during the two-day session. The first day's program is designed for community leaders. The June 2 meeting is planned for TCU faculty, students and professional persons and will begin at 10 a. m. in Weatherly Hall.

The series has been provided through a $48,000 federally assisted grant in conjunction with the Brookings Institution of Washington, D. C., as a means of improving understanding of forces and processes of growing urban centers.

BULLETIN TO APPEAR IRREGULARLY

As in past years, the Faculty Bulletin will be published about every two weeks during the hot summer months. We'll resume it on a weekly basis next fall. Remember to keep those cards and letters coming. Let us know of your summer projects, vacation experiences, research programs, articles written. Whatever is of interest to you will most likely be of interest to other readers. And, we'll continue to keep you posted on campus activities.

NOTES ON MOST NOTABLE FOLKS AT YEAR'S END

BEN GOLDBECK of math is indeed a proud parent. His daughter, Janne, will be TCU's top honor graduate at tonight's Commencement Service. She'll receive her BA degree in English and French--Summa Cum Laude, with a 4.000 grade point average. And that's hard to beat.

Physicist CHARLES BLOUNT has been awarded a $21,478 contract by the Office of Naval Research to do further study on spectra in crystals. He'll exchange ideas with other scientists at a national Molecular Electronics Structure Conference in New Hampshire beginning June 12.

Part-time Evening College history instructor A. E. GILLIGAN was one of the recipients of the President's Award given by General Dynamics President Frank Davis recently. Gilligan received a $500 U.S. Savings Bond and an engraved plaque. The award was earned because of a more economical system he devised for preparation of status data supplied to the Air Force. It resulted in savings of $1,860,000. Gilligan is also doing graduate study in history at TCU.

GENTRY SHELTON of Brite has an article in the May 21 issue of The Christian (national Disciple weekly magazine) on "What Hymns Are We Singing?"

JEFF HORN of education started his summer vacation laying down. He was in St. Joseph's Hospital for minor surgery May 26 and plans to take life easy at home during the first six-weeks term.

MORE YEAR END NOTES ON FOLKS OF NOTE

Congratulations to NEIL DANIEL on completion of his Ph.D. in English at Indiana University.

ALVIN NELSON of philosophy has signed a contract with the Christopher Publishing House of Boston for publication of the book, Primary Questions - Historical Answers. The book consists of a manuscript written by the late Dr. Albert E. Avey and edited by Dr. Nelson. Avey was a past president of the Western Division of the American Philosophical Association and for 12 years was chairman of the Department of Philosophy at Ohio State U.

BILL TUCKER, assistant dean of Brite, has written an article on the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) which is published in the latest issue of The Texas Catholic, official publication of the Diocese of Dallas-Fort Worth. The magazine is doing a series of articles on leading denominations in American Protestantism.

The Right Rev. WILLIAM PAUL BARNDS, adjunct professor of philosophy and Evening College instructor, will be awarded the honorary Doctor of Divinity Degree from the University of the South, June 4. Bishop Barnds received the honorary degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology from Seabury-Western Theological Seminary at Evanston, Ill., May 25, where he delivered the commencement address. Bishop Barnds is an alumni of the seminary.
