HISTORIC DECISIONS MARK SPRING BOARD MEETING

University trustees meeting on campus last Wednesday voted unanimous approval of a Faculty Assembly and an elected Faculty Senate and of changes in the institution's charter and by-laws. Though each meeting of the Board is a time of decision-making, the Spring 1968 meeting will be remembered as one of the most significant in TCU history. Passage of the above recommendations reflects the Board's continuing desire to give creative guidance in the development of the University.

In recommending approval of the faculty organizations, Chancellor Moudy told the Board, "When an institution's faculty becomes large and difficult to gather, the need for a smaller and representative group becomes apparent. In recent years there has been a growing desire on the part of our faculty for such bodies." Dr. Moudy added, "That the faculty should want to put itself under a constitution and that it should develop a document that manifests such great restraint and responsibility as this one deserves, in my opinion, not only the approval, but also the compliments of the Board of Trustees."

A faculty delegation composed of Dr. Paul Wassenich, who chaired the committee to draft the constitution, Dr. Comer Clay, Dr. Allen Self, and Dr. Bitia Mae Hall, appeared briefly before the Board to answer questions about the document and its intent. All members had studied the constitution prior to the meeting and discussed its provisions with great interest. Commenting on the need for an assembly and senate, Vice Chancellor James Newcomer said it was "in the spirit of the times, made in goodwill and a constructive effort to provide an orderly way for more effective communication between the faculty and administration."

In discussing the charter and by-laws change, Dr. Moudy advised board members of reasons behind the proposal of reducing the majority of trustees who are members of the Disciples of Christ from the now-required 75 per cent to a simple majority. "The goal here," he said, "is not to reduce the Disciple trustees, but to enlarge the number of persons from other constituencies who can serve on this board. Nor is this an attempt to lessen the church relationship of TCU with the Christian Churches. It is my hope to increase, not diminish, that relationship." The change received complete approval.

Honorary Doctor of Laws degrees were authorized by the trustees for six persons. Included were Dr. Jerome Moore, dean of AddRan College of Arts and Sciences since 1943; and Miss Lucy Harris, dean of Harris College of Nursing from its establishment in 1946 until her retirement in 1967. officer of Republic National Life Ins. Co.; Solomon Brachman of Fort Worth, president of Producers Supply and Tool Co.; Neville G. Penrose of Fort Worth, Penrose Production Co.; A. D. Weatherly, Amarillo businessman active in ranching, oil and banking.

Doctor of Divinity degrees were approved for Rev. Allan W. Lee, minister of the First Christian Church of Seattle, Wash., and Rev. Robert James Wright of Port Arthur's First Christian Church. Both are graduates of Brite Divinity School and have given distinguished leadership to their ministries and have been instrumental in the establishment of scholarship funds at TCU.

Recipient of the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, rarely conferred by TCU, will be Dr. John William Gardner, retiring secretary of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching in 1955-65.

Authorization to begin construction immediately on the long-awaited new Science Research Center was given by the trustees. Though cost estimates indicate an additional $500,000 must be raised, both Dr. Moudy and Building and Grounds committee chairman M. J. Neeley expressed satisfaction at the bids received. With about $7.1 million in funds firmly committed to the project, construction is expected to start in about two weeks. Low bid of $2,579,752 for general construction was made by Albert L. Smith Co. A bid of $1,428,500 for mechanical work was made by Broyles and Broyles, and Schotts Electric bid $736,125 for the electrical work. All are Fort Worth firms. The entire project will cost about $7,675,000 when contracts are fixed and moveable special equipment contracts are let and after architects' fees and the costs are computed. First phase of construction will be the Sid W. Richardson Physical Sciences Building, with completion scheduled for June, 1970. Afterward, the present Winton-Scott Science Hall will be converted for the life and behavioral sciences. The additional half-million dollars needed to complete the project was caused by design refinements and escalation of costs in recent months.

Commenting on other building plans, Dr. Moudy told the trustees that he hoped sufficient commitments would be in hand to allow completion of planning and beginning of construction by mid-1969 of the proposed Cyrus K. and Ann C. Rickel Health and Physical Education Building. The building is one of the most urgently needed facilities on campus.

$11,973,948 BUDGET APPROVED; ENROLLMENT DISCUSSED

A budget for the 1968-69 academic session of nearly $12 million was approved by trustees. The amount represents continued growth and expansion of the University's academic program and facilities and an increase of approximately $300,000 over the current budget. The approved figure covers all operating units of the University and includes cost-of-living salary increases for faculty and administrative staff. Personnel and staff additions, cost of graduate fellowships and increase in library acquisitions and equipment were among the reasons given for the budget increase.

Commenting on TCU's enrollment picture, Dr. Moudy said, "Gone are the days when TCU will fill up automatically, without effort." The Chancellor said it would take about two years for the new Tarrant County Junior College and name change at UT at Arlington to stabilize before we could determine what real effect these would have on TCU enrollment. He emphasized that we must continue to take positive steps to attract new students. "We can more easily adjust our enrollment upward," Dr. Moudy said, "than we can adjust our program downward."

REPORT MADE ON PROGRESS OF FUTURE PLANNING COMMISSION

Reporting on the progress-to-date of the Future Planning Commission, Dr. Moudy said TCU must be more "market conscious;" determine the needs of those we seek to serve and then "reckon with the market place." He stated that in addition to seeking a comprehensive set of goals, the Commission is giving particular attention to the best size for the University as a whole, to discover the optimum proportion between undergraduate and graduate enrollments at TCU and to quality of students, faculty and instructional programs. The Chancellor said that TCU should continue to admit and meet the needs of the "average" student, though our recruitment efforts should aim at upper level students.

The report included the Commission's desire to formulate a statement of centennial goals and general goals to reach beyond the 1972-73 anniversary year. It is intended that this statement would be ready for submitting to the trustees at their next meeting in November.

PRAISE GIVEN ATHLETICS AND FINE YEAR FOR TCU

The Board was unanimous in its praise of the TCU athletic program and passed a motion commending basketball coach Johnny Swaim and his team for their Southwest Conference title victory.

Before adjourning, the trustees also passed a motion in praise of the University, its faculty and administration, for a fine year completed. The length of the meeting caused the trustees to arrive a little late--and hungry--at the Faculty Luncheon in the Student Center ballroom. A number of faculty and staff members had been asked to serve as hosts for the board members and to introduce them at the luncheon. It was a fine occasion, reflecting the pride and esteem in which the trustees are held by their University. We welcome them "home" anytime!

TCU's TV FORUM PROGRAM RE-SET FOR MARCH 17

"Are Today's Young People Really Different?," the 30-minute television program originally scheduled for Feb. 4, will be shown March 17 at 12:30 p.m. on WBAP-TV, Channel 5. Produced by the University's division of radio-television-film under the direction of Instructor Larry Lauer, the program presents a forum where people in the academic community can bring their training and insights to the analysis of current problems.

Providing answers to questions on Sunday's show will be Dr. Richard Douthit of speech, Dr. John Hoyle of education and Homer Kluck, Methodist campus minister. Viewing today's young people, the panel will discuss ways in which the TV-oriented child differs from those reared prior to the advent of television, to the nature of rebellion, the social re-organization of the family and other related points.

MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP ESTABLISHED ✓

A piano scholarship in memory of the late Miss Jeannette Tillet, long-time faculty member at TCU and owner-director of the Fort Worth Conservatory of Music, has been established by friends of the late piano pedagogue. Announced by Dr. Michael Winesanker, the award will be given for the first time for the 1968-69 academic year to a music major who exhibits outstanding talent.

Miss Tillet, graduate of Kidd College in Sherman and holder of a diploma from Juilliard School of Music in New York, joined the TCU faculty in 1938 as part-time instructor. She was granted a leave of absence in 1964 due to illness and died in July, 1965. The assistant professor was author of a state course of applied music for public schools published by the State Department of Education in 1948. She had earned awards for her compositions, including a first prize in 1959 competition for a TCU Alma Mater.

Trimble, holder of a B.S. degree in aeronautical engineering from MIT and author of many published articles, assumed his current position in late 1967 after serving as director of the Advanced Manned Missions Program of NASA in Washington. Prior to joining NASA, he was vice president of advanced programs for the Martin Company of Baltimore, an aircraft manufacturer for whom he had been design engineer, research engineer, manager of aerodynamics and propulsion and advanced design vice president since joint the company in 1937.

DR. DURWARD SMITH NAMED BIOLOGY CHAIRMAN

Dr. J. Durward Smith, a 35-year-old scientist who joined TCU 18 months ago, will become chairman of the University's Department of Biology in September. Commenting on the appointment, Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs James Newcomer said, "TCU is fortunate to have on the biology staff a young man who early in his career has given evidence of the capability to serve a major department in a major university as chairman. He is a man of vitality, ability and high character. It is important that he was endorsed for the chairmanship by members of the department." Most members of the biology department faculty hold higher academic ranks than does Dr. Smith, who is an assistant professor.

Dr. Smith will succeed Dr. Willis Hewatt who has asked to be relieved of the chairmanship so that he can return to full-time teaching and research. Dr. Smith's research is on the frontier of studies in DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid), the "master chemical of life" which controls all growth. He earned his master's degree and his doctorate from the University of Wisconsin doing research in this field. His earlier ambitions were to be a high school coach and he earned his B.S. degree from Hardin-Simmons University with a major in physical education and a minor in biology.

After two years of Army service in Europe he returned to Hardin-Simmons to earn a B.A. degree in chemistry with a minor in math. After a year as a process control engineer at General Dynamics, Dr. Smith joined Decatur Baptist College as a teacher of chemistry and mathematics and as athletic coach for basketball and track. He was chairman of the college's arts and sciences for two of his four years there. At the same time he took courses for an advanced degree in chemistry and biology at North Texas State U. A research fellowship at the U. of Wisconsin followed. His wife (the former Darla Bunch) had received her degree in medical technology from TCU and knew Dr. Hewatt. They came back to Texas to talk with him about locating in the state. "I had no idea, at that time," said Dr. Smith, "that I'd want to come to TCU--or that TCU would want me."

Durward sees the Dallas-Fort Worth region as an excellent place to study the two areas of biology in which TCU is likely to concentrate: The very small of molecular biology, such as work with DNA, and the very large of environmental biology, such as work with pollution control. "The Southwest, and the nation as a whole, desperately need more scientists trained in these fields," he said.

BALLET PLANNED FOR MARCH 22-23

TCU's famed division of ballet will present its annual production sponsored by the Fine Arts Guild of TCU in Ed Landreth Auditorium next week. The program is scheduled for Friday, March 22, at 8:15 p.m. and Saturday, March 23, at 2:30 and 8:15 p.m. Included in the presentation will be "Fantasia and Fugue," an abstract ballet on the music of Bach; "Pas de Quatre," based on the dancing of the four great ballerinas of the 19th century, Marie Taglioni, Lucile Grahn, Carlotta Grisi and Fanny Gerrito; "Prometheus," a dramatic ballet based on the Greek myth; and "Aurora's Wedding," the third act of the "Sleeping Beauty" ballet, a colorful number with sumptuous costumes and scenery. Tickets at $1 for students and $2 for adults are available from the Fine Arts office and from Fine Arts Guild members. There are no reserved seats.

TCU ASKED TO SUPPORT ARTS COUNCIL DRIVE

The Arts Council of Fort Worth is asking the support of all Fort Worth schools and colleges in its Community Pride Campaign. The goal for the education division of the campaign is $5,000. Many of our faculty and staff are involved in conducting the fund drive and many more have contributed--this year and in past years.

The drive is an appeal of six organizations represented by the Arts Council: Fort Worth Ballet, Community Theatre, Opera, Symphony, Texas Boys Choir and Van Cliburn Piano Competition. Each has added significantly to the culture and pride of Fort Worth and we must all do our share to insure their continued success. The TCU contribution, when totalled, should be sufficient to qualify the faculty and staff to be listed as a "Guarantor" of the arts. This will take a total minimum of $1,000.

Make your checks payable to: Community Pride Campaign and mail to Arts Council of Greater Fort Worth, Inc., 3505 West Lancaster, Fort Worth, Texas 76107. You may pay your pledge in three equal payments (March 1, May 1, July 1), in five monthly payments beginning April 1, or in some other convenient manner. Blank pledge cards may be obtained in the TCU Public Relations Office, Ext. 212.
