EATH CALLS ON CAMPUS AGAIN

or the second time in exactly seven weeks, death called suddenly on campus last turday. Big, bustling Ed Pross, chairman of the Department of Speech-Theatre-Radio V in Fine Arts, was struck down at his home on Cockrell. On Saturday, Oct. 19, it is Irene Huber.

oth were young. Ed was only 49 on April 30. Once more the report brought dismay in distress to our Faculty Family. Although we all know we shall walk the same way in me, the loss of a warm personal friend and fellow worker is always hard to believe and cept.

e honored Ed as best we could. Two numbers of the Christmas concert by the Univerty Chorus were dedicated to his memory on Sunday. Funeral services were conducted beautiful Robert Carr Chapel on Monday. He was taken home to Ohio for burial.

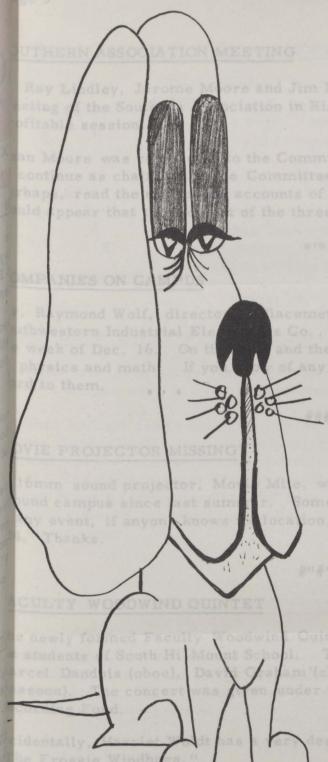

d Pross accomplished much at TCU. He came in September, 1947 as an associate ofessor of speech-drama. He became a full professor in 1950 and was given permant tenure in 1953. With Walther Volbach, Dorothy Bell and others, he built up a fine partment. Always searching for new ideas and methods, he was responsible for many irsts" on campus. He'll be so:ely missed. Now once more, we must close ranks and arry on the work. Ed would surely want it that way.

HE NOEL PARTY (SEE PAGE TWO)

Ithough deeply saddened by the loss of Ed Pross, we'll hold our annual Faculty Christlas Party next Thursday night, Dec. 19, in the ballroom of Brown-Lupton Student enter. It is hoped that all who can will attend.

iss Elizabeth Youngblood, who rormally does her "socializing" with the students, is lairman of the committee this year. The gals have done a lot of planning and work and should be a top affair. Food, the fillin' type, will be served from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. here will be games--scrabble, dominoes, postoffice--and music for dancing (for the Junger set). Tickets will be $1.75 each and will be one of the big bargains of the eason.

Il faculty families will be called for reservations. Should there be a slip and no conct made, just call Mary Beth Scott (Ext. 229) and she'll be delighted to hear from you.
Ouallcome.

ulty Balletin - Dec. 11.

Rembrandt Titian Keith, The-Strong-Man-Of-Undergrad-Religion, went and got himself all inspired in the dread December of 1957. Bemused by his muse, he fell down and knocked out the great masterpiece seen left.

Rescued from the floor of a certain room in the basement of Ad Bldg. (man it gets drafty down there), the work has been carefully preserved and is hereby reproduced for posterity.

Scholarly research discloses the immortal effort to be dedicated to: "Amos The Prophet," signed "My Music!" and the name of the artist. Which proves its authenticity--if nothing else.

Legend has it the painting was inspired by a note in the TCU Faculty Bulletin under date of Nov. 26, 1957, reporting there would be dancing at the annual Noel Party the night of Dec. 19. 'Twas pointed out that most folks wanted very slow waltzes* but that R. T. (Rembrandt Titian) went boldly for 'Hound Dawg.'

Full of strange urges and robust animal spirits, R. T. is said to have executed this picture with verve (and a sly sense of retaliation). And, tradition says, he actually showed up at the party with sideburns and geetar to execute said "Dawg" if nobody else would. There is one hint that he himself was, instead, executed. **

It is unfortunate that official records of the Faculty Noel Party of 1957 have been lost--or is it? In any event, it must have been a notable affair with all members of the TCU Family on hand. All that remains is the enigma of the Keith masterpiece. So be it.

EASON'S GREETINGS FROM RAYMOND AND GRACE SMITH

E R R Y Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Smith, that grand young couple of 2625 Cockrell, take this means of wishing their thousands of warm friends a very happy Christmas and a wonderful New Year. This is their card to everyone!

X M A S (Editor's Note: Raymond and Grace find it too great a task to address letters this year. So take this as a personal greeting. The Dean Emeritus of Education, who saw his first Christmas in 1875, has been a member of the TCU family since 1920. The entire campus joins with the Bulletin in wishing the Smiths the fondest of holiday greetings!)

f you haven't seen Little Theatre's new offering, "The Fischbeck Tapestry," try to make it ere the week is out. Performances are due each night through Saturday.

Valther Volbach really came up with an unusual play this time. There are only four ctors (Linda Nevitt, Joyce Nicholson, Edmond DeLatte and Douglas Gray); the stage is are except for four chairs; the action jumps back and forth from the tenth century to oday. The performances are outstanding. Ditto the fine lighting effects. The play has deep religious undertone that will have you thinking. While no critic of repute, Ye bulletin gives "Fischbeck" four bells. Congrats Dr. Walther on a daring and success-ul experiment.

ONDERFUL CHORAL PROGRAM

Wonderful" is the word to describe Sunday afternoon's Christmas concert by our inging groups in Ed Landreth Auditorium. The decorations were striking and the stage all of fine young singers and musicians a sight to behold.

Pean Hull conducted the 100-voice University Chorus and the 30-voice TCU Singers ike the master he is. And John Woldt's 10-voice Madrigal Singers were a real highight. A fairly full auditorium enjoyed the hour-and-a-half program. It should have een jammed for such a top performance. Congrats to everyone who had a part in he event.

OTES ON FOLKS OF NOTE

The Bulletin has just heard (slow reporting) of the auto accident that caused some njuries to LES EVANS and his family. Happened two or three weeks ago and while hey were banged up a bit, we hear that everyone is doing well now. Sure hope so. Be areful Les.

OR. and MRS WILLIAM PAUL BARNDS attended the meeting of the Texas Classical ssociation in Dallas recently. He took his MA in Latin back there in college days. An acrease in enrollment in Latin at TCU was noted by the Association.

ARREN AGEE did a fine job of meeting and introuding Bennet Cert for the Select veries event last week. Our visitor made Page One stories in the papers on what Fort orth needs--and has. His program was good too. All seats downstairs were taken.

ITA McAlister was reporting in Faculty Center the other day about how one of her tudents was continuously "verbally assaulting" her. MARY BETH SCOTT, arriving ite, missed the adjective and became quite excited. Of course nobody, aside from IM FARRAR, L. C. WHITE, ESTUS POLK, CO.L. SANDERS and a few others, idded her a little.

MMET SMITH, University organist, spoke to the Music Study Club and the choir of niversity Christian Church last week. To the church group he discussed "Construction" and Make-up of the Pipe Organ." UCC, as you may know, is to have a wonderful new rgan one of these days--if Rev. GRANVILLE T. WALKER is successful in his uncamaigning campaign. He needs only some $18,000 on the $40,000 project and hopes to anounce full success by Christmas eve.

EITH MIXSON is again being honored this year in his capacity as accompanist for ational known artists on tour. Dec. 12 he appears in Plainview and will accompany etropolitan Opera tenor, Albert Da Costa. He will also give a piano solo. Nice ork Keith.

ISTORICAL CHRISTMAS NOTE: Dr. E. M. (Prexy) WAITS, the kindly scholarly and seply-loved president of TCU (1916-1941), used to always give "himself" a Christmas esent. Daughter MARY BETH SCOTT recalls how he would wrap it up, address it refully to himself and have a lot of fun. Usually, it turned out to be something for ary Beth but Prexy always "wanted to make sure there was something for me." What grand man he was!

DE BRATCHER presented an unusual recital at the Fort Worth Art Center Monday. The program was made up exclusively of works by Russian composers.
