Dear Oscar:

Enclosed are two photomicrographs of the Moab iron specimen but, unfortunately, the magnification was not recorded. The main mass, which was packed and ready to go, has been recovered from the shipping room and is again in the cutting laboratory awaiting its turn on the saw. I am happy you suggested letting us remove an additional piece.

I am expecting to go to the Los Angeles meetings and hope to see you there. By the way, keep me informed of your address because you may relocate before the Moab iron is returned.

Cordially,

E. P. Henderson
Associate Curator
