House gets rights bill

By NANCY CAMPBELL

The Student Bill of Rights, approved by the student body but not the administration last semester, has reached its final stages of revision and was submitted for approval to the House of Student Representatives at its regular meeting, Tuesday afternoon. The bill is scheduled to be voted on at the next session.

Dick Price, Revision Committee chairman, said current technical revisions have been made in conjunction with representatives from the faculty and the administration. The bill is currently passing through administrative channels for approval also.

In the only legislative action taking place during the House session, the Permanent Improvements Committee introduced a bill allocating $200 for the Students for Advancement of Afro-American Culture (SAAC) to fund a mural for the black culture center.

Eli Madison, speaking for SAAC, said the organization had been loaned the money for the painting of the mural by the city-wide chapter of Omega Psi Phi, a black fraternity.

After considerable debate concerning the nature of the organization and establishing the Culture Center would be open to all students, the House passed the measure.

The Activities Council bylaws were released from the Student Regulations Committee after some wording changes and passed unanimously by the House.

Only two new measures were introduced to the House and sent to investigating committees. One of these proposed to keep the library open until 11:00 p.m. every night.

The other proposal, introduced by David Davis, town student representative, advocated the establishment of a minor in general studies for all schools of the University. This bill would provide a large number of courses which could be taken with no requirements for a particular number of hours in any certain department.

Aid fund set up by donor

Mrs. B.A. Skipper of Longview has established an endowed scholarship fund which will aid young men and women who give promise of becoming leaders in their chosen fields.

The initial grant for the Mrs. B.A. Skipper scholarship will provide full tuition support for one upperclassman each year.

Attending the presentation was Longview judge Fred Erisman, member of the TCU Board of Trustees since 1956.

The well-known Texas philanthropist has made gifts providing memorial buildings at Baylor University and LeTourneau College.

NEVER SAY DIE—was the attitude of several Brachman Hall residents at last week's Rice vs. TCU game. Even though the Owls were ahead at half-time 10-7 students gamely kept the "faith" at the sparsely crowded stadium. Final score was 25-21 over TCU.

Museum director to hold honors seat

Dr. Charles H. Sawyer, director of the University of Michigan Museum of Art since 1957, has accepted appointment to the Cecil H. and Ida Green Honors chair at Texas Christian University.

Currently in his sixteenth year at Michigan where he also is professor of art, he will fill the endowed position during the 1973 spring semester.

"Mr. Sawyer's coming to TCU gives to both the University and the community an impetus in art history studies that will benefit everybody," said Dr. James Newcomer, vice chancellor for academic affairs.

Granted leave by the University of Michigan to hold the prestige position, Dr. Sawyer, was dean of Yale University's School of Fine Arts and director of its art division during 1947-56.

Dr. Sawyer is a graduate of Yale University, Harvard Law School and Harvard Graduate School, and honorary degrees have been conferred on him by Yale, Amherst, Clark and the University of New Hampshire.

The Green Chair, established by a $600,000 endowment from the Dallas couple for whom it is named, is designed to bring to the TCU campus nationally known visiting scholars, scientists, writers and other career persons on a rotating basis.

News digest

WASHINGTON — Special Saigon envoy Nguyen Phu Duc was reported Wednesday seeking to arrange a face-to-face meeting between President Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

According to diplomatic sources in Saigon, Duc went to a scheduled hour-long meeting at the White House Wednesday with Nixon to propose a December summit session.

CAMP DAVID, Md.—President Nixon made a surprise announcement Wednesday he will nominate Peter J. Brennan, leader of "hardhat" union members in New York, to be Secretary of Labor.

Brennan, if confirmed by the Senate, would be the first labor secretary out of union ranks since Chicago plumber Martin Durkin held the post in the first months of the Eisenhower administration.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla.—Apollo 17's astronauts practiced simulated moon landings Wednesday as the launch crew prepared to start the final countdown Thursday for the last lunar mission.

Eugene A. Cernan and geologist Harrison H. Schmitt were in the lunar module simulator and Ronald E. Evans in the command ship trainer, as they rehearsed preparing the lunar vehicle for the landing, the separation of the two craft and the descent to the surface.

WASHINGTON — Father Philip Berrigan, serving a six-year sentence for damaging draft board records, was granted parole by the U.S. Parole Board effective Dec. 20, the board announced Wednesday.

The 49-year-old Jesuit priest, now in the Federal Correctional Institute at Danbury, Conn., has been in prison since July 5, 1968. He was sentenced May 24, 1968 for damaging draft board records at the Baltimore Selective Service office in 1967.

Library time limited

We are sure there are studious people on this campus who don't stop being studious just because it is Friday or Saturday night.

We are just as sure there are people on campus who would appreciate being able to do a little work in the library before their 8 a.m. class.

But alas, the facility closes at 6 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and doesn't open until 7:45 a.m.

According to Dr. Paul M. Parham, head librarian, library hours aren't dictated by the cost of keeping the building open, but by the availability of staff.

No Big Bills

"The cost of keeping the library open for additional hours would not be unreasonable," Dr. Parham said, noting that maintenance service goes on at night, so it wouldn't be a question of running up a larger light and heating bill.

Finding people willing to work the extra hours late at night, or early in the morning or on Friday or Saturday evening is the real obstacle to keeping the library open.

Through the efforts of the Student Programming Board, the library will probably be open later during review week and finals week.

Dr. Parham, trying to line up staff for those two weeks, checked with Security Office first, thinking some of the campus cops might be able to man the building enabling the facility to remain open although no reference information or check-out service would be offered. But the security people were not available.

Now, most staff members on duty from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. are students. Dr. Parham said he feels it would be unfair to ask them to work extra hours during those two critical weeks when they themselves have finals.

Dr. Parham added, "I will not leave the library in the hands of people who don't have the expertise we feel is necessary to smooth library operations."

We venture to say that a schedule could be worked out even among student workers—if the price were right.

Seems Willing

Dr. Parham seems willing to try opening the library at different times on a trial basis to ascertain the practicality of keeping the facility open for additional hours permanently.

Therefore, we would further urge SPB to investigate the possibility of initiating a test-run program.

Dr. Parham himself noted that when the decision was made a few years ago to keep the library open an additional hour, from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m., the same sort of staff problem had to be faced. "We worked it out once," he said, "We could probably work it out again." —S.A.S.

'Little Foxes' set in post-war South

A SPOONFUL OF SUGAR—With Jim Covault and Gini Ellett watching, Jeff Pate prepares to take his medicine in the University production of "Little Foxes." Under the direction of Dr. Gaylan Collier, the play will be staged Dec. 1-3 and Dec. 6-9.

The corrupt South of carpetbagger days is the setting for "Little Foxes," to be produced Dec. 1-3 and Dec. 6-9 by the Theatre Arts Department. Under the direction of Dr. Gaylan Collier, the Lillian Hellman "social drama," will be staged in University Theatre.

The third production of the 1972-73 season, "Little Foxes" deals with fortunes gained through exploitation of the war-ravaged South.

Graduate student Gini Ellett will play the leading part of Regina Giddens, a role made famous on Broadway by Tallulah Bankhead.Graduate student Jim Covault will play Regina's brother and Margo Price will play Birdie.

Others in the cast include Lee Ritchey, David Willingham, Sonia Williams, Grover Coulson and Jeff Pate.

Cheryl Kepp, graduate student and Theatre Department technical assistant, is designer of the set for "Little Foxes," one of the largest ever to be mounted on the University's stage. Graduate student Kurt Steinhauser is assistant to the director, and Theatre Arts instructor LaLonnie Lehman is costume coordinator for the production.

Tickets for the performances, set at $2 for adults and $1 for students, may be purchased at the University box office from 1-6 p.m. daily. Performances are at 8:15 p.m. with a 3:15 p.m. matinee performance Dec. 3.

Library displays Johnson, Boswell

An exhibit of 18th Century first editions of Dr. Samuel Johnson and his biographer, James Boswell, are on display throughout November in TCU's Mary Couts Burnett Library.

Including manuscripts, books and memorabilia of the great lexicographer, many of the materials are relatively rare, according to Librarian Hugh Macdonald who organized the exhibit.

District wool contest scheduled for Dec. 1

The District II annual Make It Yourself with Wool contest and fashion show will be Dec. 1 and 2 in Ed Landreth Auditorium. Five of 130 entrants will go on to the state contest in mid-December.

Dresses, coats and two-piece suits will be judged in the three age groups competing. Winners advance to state competition at Texas A&M Dec. 15 and 16. The national finals will be in Washington, D.C. on Jan. 23.

Grand prizes in each division will be a trip to Europe. Other prizes will be available at district, state and national levels.

Four Frogs All-SWC

Four TCU players have been named to the Associated Press All-Southwest Conference football team. They are offensive guard Guy Morriss, running back Mike Luttrell, defensive tackle Charlie Davis and defensive back Lyle Blackwood.

Morriss and Blackwood are senior co-captains while Davis, a junior, and Luttrell, only a sophomore will be returning next season. Another Frog sophomore, linebacker Dede Terveen was a second team selection.

Texas placed seven on the squad including quarterback Alan Lowry and fullback Roosevelt Leaks who was named Player of the Year. Tailback Dickie Morton was the only Arkansas player chosen.

Baylor's Grant Teaff was the AP's Coach of the Year.

Vigies merit I.M. crown

BY ROB CLIFFORD

For a team winning four games in eight days, a reward is fitting and just. In this case the prize was the school intramural football and the team was the Vigilantes.

First, they wrapped up the Monday league title with a convincing 26-0 clobbering of Brite. Then came a 14-7 over second-place Wednesday leaguers HMA, followed by a conquest over eternal champs, Canterbury, 12-6, two days later. The Canterbury win not only netted them the Independent League crown, but set up the all-school matchup with Lambda Chi Alpha, the Greek League victors.

In the Monday afternoon clash (only a weekend had passed since the Vigies demounted Canterbury) the Vigies built up a 20-7 lead based around the passing of John Blabe, and held on to wreck a spirited comeback effort of the Lambda Chis. A last quarter six and then seven turned the imaginary scoreboard to 20-14, but a last ditch drive ended with Ted Marchall's third interception of the day, assuring the Vigies of first prize.

In the third place joke, Canterbury and Sig Eps futilely struggled to a scoreless deadlock, each thwarting its own drives with mistakes deep in enemy territory.

Spirit pleases Swaim

BY JOHN FORSYTH

Gary Landers, a freshman from Dallas Carter, made himself well known to the few hundred faithful who showed up at Daniel-Meyer Coliseum Tuesday night to see the annual Amos Melton Scholarship basketball game.

His 12 points and 11 rebounds helped his Purple squad to a 79-62 victory over the Whites. Landers was not the sole perpetrator of the murder plot, however.

The game was a tight one most of the way, despite the implications of the final score. Freshman Wayne Wayman opened the scoring with the game's initial two-pointer, and it was neck and neck for the entire first half. A Herb Stephens layup gave the lead to the Whites at 10-9, a lead which was expanded to as much as seven points before the Purples closed in again.

In all, the lead changed hands 14 times in the initial half before resting at 36-35 at intermission, in favor of the Whites.

The rebounders toiled much harder than the shooters in the early going of the second half. Nearly a full minute passed before the Purples could regain the lead at 37-36, and another full minute passed before they expanded it. Slowly but surely, the Purples outscored their opponents by 12 points in the early moments of the second stanza.

From there on, it was just a matter of how much. The difference rose to as high as 19 points, at 79-60, before Stephens' final goal resulted in the final score of 79-62.

"No way I'm discouraged," said Swaim after the encounter. "This game helped us a lot."

Of the play of Landers, he said, "Gary Landers will be a tremendous guard someday. He's got the quickest hands I've ever seen on a 6'6" guy."

Reagan Finch led the Purple scorers with 14 points, followed by Landers and Eddy Fitzhugh with 12, Lynn Royal with 11 and senior Mark Stone, who came away with 10.

The Whites, likewise, had their heroes, including 6'10½" Bill Bozeat, who accounted for 14 points and eight rebounds. Herb Stephens scored 12 and juniors Lawrence Young and Carey Vann each had eight.

Soccer team ends season

The TCU soccer team finished its season last weekend with a 5-1 victory over Midwestern University.

The win gave the Frog squad a 6-2-2 record for the season and left them in second place in the North Texas Division.

Pacing last week's effort were Mario Quinones with two goals while Vince Sotomayor, Ed Kelley and Gary Suran scored one each.
