Mailboxes Charred In Post Office Fire

Fire erupted in TCU's post substation Wednesday night, charring about 14 mailboxes, and adding still another complication to the seasonal mail crush.

Students, presumably from the Evening College, discovered flames in one of the mailboxes, and immediately informed the telephone operator on duty at the nearby switchboard. Kay Holmes, the operator, relayed the alert to Campus Security.

Concerned students told Miss Holmes the blaze was spreading to other boxes and she again telephoned security, in addition to calling the Fort Worth Fire Department.

Firemen received the call at 8:40 p.m., but when they arrived at the post office the fire was out.

Someone had thrown sand from a nearby cigarette receptacle onto the fire, thereby extinguishing it.

S. S. Robnett, fire department investigator, said the sand probably kept the fire from spreading more than it did.

The floor inside the substation in front of the mailboxes involved was strewn with mail as well as ashes, but Charles H. Richardson, TCU's chief accountant, explained the strewn mail was probably not due to the fire, but rather to students who shove junk mail back into the mailbox and onto the post office floor.

Mail in surrounding mailboxes was not damaged.

R. Thornburg, the security officer called to the scene, said he found one of the closed post office windows unlocked.

Nothing was disturbed in the post office except for the area around the charred mailboxes and it appeared no one had entered the substation.

Asked if the fire had been deliberately started, Fire District Chief G. T. Morris said, "It looks like it, doesn't it?"

Besides Robnett, Thornburg, and Richardson, Postal Inspector Tom Weaver and Raymond Nunn of the downtown post office observed the damage.

Richardson said the people who are renting those boxes involved would probably be contacted.

Three fire engines from the Fort Worth Fire Department answered the alarm.

"Neither rain nor sleet nor hail nor snow will stop the U. S. mail" —maybe fire too?

Second Kent State Petition To Be Circulated Dec. 6-8

The haunting memories of May 1970, when four Kent State University students were killed by National Guard bullets, has spurred students across the nation to attempt to refresh the memory of President Nixon.

A petition signed by 10,380 KSU students has been presented to Nixon by Dr. Glenn Olds, President of Kent State. The petition requests that a Federal grand jury be convened to hold another investigation of the killings.

TCU students, as well as students on 200 campuses across the nation, will be given the opportunity to express their support of the cause by means of a second petition. The TCU petition will be in the student center Dec. 6-8 from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

To date, only a local grand jury has weighed the evidence. The jury's report, upheld on Oct. 22 by the U. S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals, was considered so biased that a Federal District Court Judge ordered it expunged from the record and physically destroyed.

The petition is a result of the announced decision of Attorney General John Mitchell not to convene a federal grand jury. Innumerable persons, including former Governor William Scranton, the chairman of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest, have long urged the convening.

In the quest for the change of jury KSU students have utilized only peaceful means. Many students feel that through their pacific efforts they will convince the Justice Department of their sincerity and the necessity of an extended investigation.

Dr. Olds in addition to sponsors of the petition, Greg Rambo and Paul Keane, have requested a reply by the end of the term. Rambo says he has a "strong intuition" that there will be "something done" about the grand jury request.

If the petition request is vetoed, Rambo says he will ask that a meeting be held with a Justice Department representative to explain the decision and answer questions.

New Century Grant Contested

Wright Residents Resent Funding

By RUDY PURIFICATO

An emergency meeting of the Pete Wright Hall Council was convened at 11 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 1 to hear dissident views regarding a bill allocating funds to the New Century Singers (NCS).

The Pete Wright Hall Council approved a bill Nov. 30 allocating $100 to the singing group with the stipulation that NCS would obtain a matching sum from another source. In return, the NCS would perform free at two Pete Wright parties.

A similar stipulation was present in a bill recently passed in the House, funding the New Century Singers with $600, provided that NCS match the Permanent Improvements Committee's fund.

Residents and certain wing representatives of Pete Wright were infuriated over the Hall Council bill. The bill was not announced to the dorm, and gave money to an outside organization without informing or asking the consent of the populace.

Ignited Spark

Dick Cassavant, treasurer and Social Committee Hall Council chairman, announced the bill the next day, which ignited the spark of rebellion against it and forced a Hall Council meeting to review the passed bill.

A small contingent of wing representatives were opposed to the NCS allocation and proposed a rescinding bill at the meeting. However, their proposal was defeated by not polling the required two-thirds majority.

The only abstention was cast by Ken King. King said "I abstained because my section wanted me to vote against NCS, but I personally was in favor of giving NCS the money because it would reflect favorably on Pete Wright, and that Pete Wright could use this donation as a lever in negotiations with the administration."

Following the defeat of the rescinding bill, a proposal for a petition of the pros and cons of the bill to be circulated among the residents, was passed. The results of the petition will be presented to the Hall Council next Tuesday for a re-vote on the NCS allocation.

Christmas Fete Sunday

Christmas is traditionally celebrated with song, lights, food, and good friends, and in this spirit, the Ceremony of Lights and Carols hopes to draw TCU students together for joyous singing, and to worship in solemn beauty.

The ceremony will begin at 7:30 p.m. Sunday on the Student Center steps with a devotion by Dr. George Fowler of the Religion Department. Vickie Preusse, a member of Kappa Delta, traditional sponsor of the event, will introduce the guest speaker, Clyde Foltz, Director of Development.

As the carols are sung, Miss Preusse will initiate the lighting of candles through the crowd, (bring your own candle.)

The ceremony ends with the lighting of holiday lights on the Christmas tree and around the Student Center quadrangle.

A reception follows in the Student Lounge where Pledge-Panhellenic will serve cookies and hot chocolate.

assistant director for Upward Bound, said, "I went before the Council to urge their support of a recognized university organization. I did not expect a negative response from many residents who represent a part of the student body, for which my organization has been established."

Martinez had earlier gone to the Student Programming Board, asking for $800 for the New Century Singers, who need to purchase a sound system costing $1,600. He was turned down because they felt NCS should go before the administration for money. Martinez along with Tom C. Purdy, alumni director, did succeed in appropriating funds from the House, and has been promised money by the administration provided they match the funds given them from another source.

Martinez said, "I went to Pete Wright first for funds, because I live there. I plan to go before other dorms if I am successful here."

James M. Cady, Pete Wright dorm president, said, "I feel the situation is unfortunate in regard to negative attitudes toward the bill, but it has reduced apathy in Pete Wright."

Dave Tucker, secretary of the Hall Council, who voted against the allocation bill said, "It is the first time in the dorm's history that the residents within have become involved with dorm policy, and how that policy should be carried out."

Dead Week Workload May Be 'Death' of Students

By ROSALIND ROUTH

Editor-in-Chief

Dear First Semester Freshman:
 You mentioned that you didn't understand the purpose of Dead Week.

ROUTH

Week. You said something about it being a time for review. Oh, surely you jest? We realize that it is impossible to review for final exams when you have to study for three tests, to write a term project which was just assigned last week, and to make up an exercise routine for P.E. But the problem is your teachers don't realize that.

'Skiff' Job Forms Due Noon Dec. 6

Applications for Editor and Business Manager of The Daily Skiff are now available in the Journalism Department Office.

Deadline for the applications is noon, Mon. Dec. 6.

There will be a meeting of the Student Publications Committee on Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. to review the applications and interview the prospective candidates.

Prospective Daily Skiff photographers are welcome to submit samples of their work to the paper or the Journalism Department photo lab in Dan Rogers 116.

Tell-A-Friend

God can't put you first;
 Unless you put Him first.
 dial 293-5636

Yes, suddenly you are beginning to discover one of the cruel realities of TCU life. It's not that we lied to you about Dead Week. Something was just lost in the translation.

Let us ask you this. Did you really think Dead Week was a time when there would be no classes, when no new assignments would be made and when you would have time to get your head together before finals? Come now, you're more naive than we thought.

We hate to be the one to break it to you but Dead Week is that time set aside for professors to cover the last 30 chapters in the book and to give a major test because they don't have enough grades. During Dead Week ask a professor what to study for the final exam and you'll get the most priceless answer: "Everything!"

So what's a mother to do? In the first place get a large pot of coffee and a pack of cigarettes or gum to be used after you run out of nails to bite. In the second place stop crying, you'll make the ink on your notes run.

Chin up, Bunky, you'll make it through—eventually.

WHISKEY-NOSED COMEDIAN: One of the all-time greats, W. C. Fields, appears in the final film of the semester, "International House."

Friday Flick To Star W.C.

This Friday the Films Committee is presenting its seventeenth and final film of the semester, "International House" (1933) with W. C. Fields, George Burns, Gracie Allen and Bella Lugosi.

The film is mainly a forum for Fields' comedy with appearances by numerous radio personalities of the day such as Rudy Vallee, Colonel Stognagle and Budd, Baby Rose Marie and Cab Calloway and his Harlem Maniacs singing "That Funny Reeferman." Short subjects of a newsreel and Calloway and his orchestra will also be shown.

The film and shorts will be shown at both 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom. Admission is 50 cents.

'Headhunters' Parts Typecast?

Deciding who to cast for what in theater productions is often one of the hardest chores of directing, but Dr. Robert Britton, Theater Department chairman, has made his choices for the first offering this spring. "The Headhunters" is the play and Feb. 7-12 the date.

"The Headhunters," a new play by Henry Denker, will have six around-the-country previews on college campuses. TCU is one of the chosen.

The cast, already in rehearsal, includes Mike Kiibler, Laura Beard, Linda Lee, Dale Mitchell, William Stalsworth, David Murphy, Daniel Medina, Lee Ritchey and Lawrence Heptig. The play will be performed in the Scott Theatre.

The play, set in the Soviet Union during Stalin's rule, is based on the experiences of Alexander Solzhenitsyn, noted Soviet author who was a political prisoner in labor camps and whose works have been suppressed by Soviet authorities.

The central character of Denker's play, Pavel Andreyev, played by Mike Kiibler, is an author returning from a seven-year prison term to face a conflict of literary ethics versus State control of literature.

Paralleling Solzhenitsyn's life, Andreyev discovers his works have been smuggled out of the Soviet Union and published in the West. The play includes the author's conflict with the Union of Soviet Writers.

Denker's play is due to open in New York about the time it will be here, but still TCU is in for a special treat.

In fact, Denker himself may be here to see it. According to Mrs. Dorothy Faucett, Theater Department secretary, the playwright has been invited, but it is not yet known whether he can come.

Recital Features Bach, Mulet

Friday, Dec. 3, Lew Williams will present an organ recital including selections from Bach, Mulet and Karg-Elert. The recital is part of the TCU Music Department's student recital series.

Williams, a freshman from Lafayette, La., is a student of Associate Professor Emmet Smith of the School of Fine Arts.

The recital begins at 8:15 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium. Admission is free.

Political Scientists To Initiate 11

The Beta Lambda chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha (National honorary fraternity in political science) will initiate eleven new members Friday at 7 p.m. in room 207 of the student center.

The initiates are: David Ammons, Charlotte Bedford, Elizabeth Bergman, Doris Brady, Carolyn Carter, Daniel Carter, Linda Ewen, Walter Fenoglio, Carl Mallory, Samuel McNeill, and Marsha Mettscher.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be Dr. Constantinos Beros, Director of the Master of Public Administration program at TCU, who will deliver his address on "Reflections of a Returning American." Dr. Beros has spent a great deal of time in the Middle East.

Dr. August O. Spain is the Faculty Advisor of Pi Sigma Alpha, and invites everyone to attend.

Frogs Find New Cage Star

The TCU Horned Frogs unleashed a new basketball super star Wednesday night against Oklahoma City in the person of Evans "Big E" Royal.

Royal, the only member of the Frog lineup who was not a starter last year, led the Purples to an 87-78 win in their season opener.

The Frogs had to come from behind after being down nine points at halftime. In fact Oklahoma City scored nine points before the Frogs started in the first period.

Royal was the biggest surprise of the night, ably filling the vacancy at center left by the graduation of Eugene "Goo" Kennedy, last year's most valuable player in the Southwest Conference.

Royal was the game's leading rebounder with 13 as the Frogs took a surprising edge in controlling the boards against the much taller OC team.

Royal held 7'-0" Norman Russell to just seven points and contributed 13 himself.

TCU's Jim Ferguson turned in an outstanding performance with 22 points and Ricky Hall had 18. Snake Williams scored 10 while Simpson Degrate had 12.

The Frogs play next against Lamar University in Beaumont Tuesday night.

Pittman SWC Coach of Year

The late Jim Pittman, who shaped the TCU Horned Frogs into a solid football team and started them toward their first winning season in six years, was named Southwest Conference Coach of the Year earlier this week.

At the same time, five TCU Horned Frog players were named to the All-SWC team chosen by the Associated Press poll.

Ronnie Peoples, a junior tight end from Odessa and squad co-captain was the only first team selection from TCU.

Quarterback Steve Judy and fullback Bobby Davis made the second team offense and end Gary Martinec and halfback Lyle Blackwood were named to the second team defense.

"They all worked real hard and we believe they deserved the honors," said assistant coach Gerry Boudreaux Thursday afternoon. "We're real proud of them."

Peoples and Blackwood will be back next year to pace the 1972 Frogs. What's next for the seniors?

"We've got some guys that want to try the pros," said Boudreaux. "Judy and Davis want to give it a go. And I think Bob Schobel and a few others would like to try and make it."

It is filled with imagination and hilarious comedy, but it also says much about ignorance and prejudice. # Records Weren't His Goal

By JERRY MCADAMS
 Sports Editor

Steve Judy's college football career at TCU came to an end last week in Dallas where he quarterbacked his team to a come-from-behind win against SMU in the season's final game.

Four years ago, every school in the SWC was trying to recruit the Longview product. There were also a lot of offers from other top schools around the country, like Missouri and Nebraska.

"I wanted to go somewhere where I could start as a sophomore," Judy says in explaining the reason he chose TCU. "And I liked the school."

Judy did start as a sophomore and in his first season led the Southwest Conference in total offense. Judy passed for 1,677 yards and 12 touchdowns in his first varsity year and has since broken practically every quarterbacking record in the school's history.

But when Judy came to TCU, individual records were not his goal. He was looking for a team to contribute to.

"When I came to TCU, it never dawned on me that I'd be breaking records," Judy says. "I just wanted to help build a winner here."

"I could have gone to Texas or somewhere where they always win a lot," Judy says. "But down there, when you win, you're just one of the guys that won."

"I felt like if I could help build a winner at TCU, where they hadn't been winning for a while, people would remember who quarterbacked them that year, the year they won."

No Regrets

In the past two seasons, the Frogs' highest SWC finish has been a tie for third, while many of the schools Judy passed up are enjoying national prominence. Judy says he's never regretted his decision to come to TCU, though.

"I've gotten everything I expected from TCU," he says. "It's a good school and it's developing a winning program. I've had some good games here, and some bad ones. I guess I just have to try to forget the bad ones. I just wish I had another year because TCU is on the way up and I think we're gonna be winners."

In the three years Judy has been the Horned Frogs' field general, he's played under three different head coaches and has piloted the Frogs in a variety of offensive sets.

Judy says he doesn't feel the changes in coaches and offenses has hurt him. "All our coaches were here to win, and that's why I play the game."

"I think I've been able to run all the offenses pretty well," Judy continues. "It took a while for me to get used to the wishbone (the Frogs' current attack), but now that I've seen what it can do, I like it the best."

"I feel like I've been able to move the ball better this year and, even though my individual statistics aren't as good, we've scored a lot more points."

"I like to throw the ball, but over the past couple of years, my arm has gotten a little weaker," Judy said, explaining that he suffers from a form of arthritis. "It's sort of like a 'tennis elbow'. I had to have an operation on it my junior year in high school and it gets a little weaker every year."

Faced Tough Foes

Looking back over his career as a Horned Frog, Judy rates the 1969 Baylor and Arkansas games as his best performances. He passed for 245 yards against the Razorbacks that year and accounted for 364 yards of total offense against the Bears.

Judy feels he faced his toughest opponents ever that season, too, in Ohio State and Texas.

Of his passing records, Judy says, "It's good to know you've accomplished something, but I wish I'd had a few more wins or maybe a bowl game to go along with them."

The Frogs finished this year with a 6-4-1 record, their first winning season in six years. Their 5-2 SWC showing was good enough for third place and left them only one game out of first.

In 1971 the Horned Frogs were winners. And Steve Judy will be remembered at TCU.
