

Court Upholds Runoff Results

Congress' Action Unconstitutional

By ALICE BUFORD

Student Court, in a unanimous decision Tuesday, denied Student Congress the right to void all runoff election results except the junior representative race.

The justices declared that Congress did not have the power under the Student Association constitution to throw out an entire election as long as valid votes remained.

Provisions exist, the court's opinion said, "for disqualification of individuals but none for the handling of an allegedly corrupt election."

The runoff for junior representatives will be held again because John Kollman's name was left off the ballot. Other contestants are Miss Marihelen Miller, Paul Youngdale and John Tyson.

Voting will be held Wednesday and Thursday in the Student Center, Fine Arts Building and Business Building. Students will be required both to sign a list and to print their names on it. Ballots will be numbered.

No campaigning will be allowed. Publicity will be given to the days of the elections and to voting procedures.

As a result of the court action winners were as follows:

George Depee defeated Ronny Coleman, 667 to 543, for president of the Student Association.

Cheerleaders will be Misses Joan Mouser (624), Barbara Sullivan (739) and Jan Goodman (661) and Joel Hurley (509), Jimmy Davis (607) and Buddy Blake (727).

BULLETIN

A group of students buried an effigy on the campus Thursday afternoon symbolizing death of "student honesty" at TCU.

The effigy was in protest of Student Court's decision Tuesday that Congress could not void the runoff elections because of suspected "repeat" voting.

"Military honors" for the burial were provided by the Gelden Kreiger, Army ROTC drill team.

The effigy had been hanged Wednesday night in front of Clark Hall. It was garbed in white shirt, tie and slacks.

The dummy bore signs reading:

"Poor Honesty . . . Died April 23, 1957 . . . Killed By Student Court."

'CHRISTENING'—Workmen put up the name atop the new Dan D. Rogers Hall. The building, set for completion early this summer, will house the School of Business and Journalism department.

New Business Building To Be Finished in June

Dan D. Rogers Hall, the new School of Business building, is expected to be completed by June 15, a representative of Cain, Brogdon and Cain, contractors, has estimated.

This is much sooner than the original Aug. 31 deadline.

The exterior is completed except for a small portion of the roof, rain gutters, sidewalks and some trim.

Carter Brogdon, general contractor, said the first floor is nearing completion.

The Reading Room has been panelled. The colorful Flame Room, student coffee center, is finished except for some ceiling board. One wall is painted a rich orange tone while the other three are pastels of green, brown and gray.

The 275-seat auditorium and lecture room is painted three shades of green.

In spite of the progress being made, the building will not be used until the fall semester, the interior architect said. Furniture installation probably will not be completed until August.

5 Departments To Have Displays At Science Show

Visitors and guests at the Science Open House will see exhibits and demonstrations in the Science Building today at 6:30 p.m.

Each of the four science departments, physics, chemistry, biology, and geology and Harris College of Nursing will participate in the event.

The physics exhibit will include an astronomy display and a do-it-yourself explanation of how to build a telescope.

The exhibit demonstrates the procedure used in grinding a lens for the telescope.

Dr. Sanders T. Lyles, assistant professor of biology, will conduct a tour of his cholera research laboratory and explain his work.

Ex-Hungarian Official To Talk Here Thursday

Dr. Nicholas Nyaradi, former Hungarian minister of finance, will deliver a Select Series lecture at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center Ballroom.

Nyaradi spent four post-war years as a leader in the Hungarian Small Farmers Party.

He served first as under-secretary of the treasury, and later as minister of finance in the Cabinet.

During his Cabinet tenure Nyaradi spent seven months in Moscow. While there he became rather closely and, as he put it, "unpleasantly" associated with numerous "higher-ups" in the Stalin regime.

Nyaradi has written articles for the Saturday Evening Post, Fortune, The Reporter, The Freeman, United Nations World, the Chicago Tribune and Scripps-Howard newspapers.

He left Hungary when Soviet pressure and occupation threats became unbearable. He is now a U.S. citizen and chairman of the department of economics at Bradley University, Peoria, Ill.

Nyaradi predicted both the development of the Russian A-bomb and Communist aggression in Korea.

Dr. Walker Will Speak At Chapel Next Week

A man who has been closely associated with the spiritual life of TCU for the past 10 years will occupy the chapel pulpit Tuesday.

Dr. Granville T. Walker, minister of the University Christian Church, will make his first chapel appearance of the school year at that time.

Sig Sweetheart To Be Presented

The sweetheart of Sigma Chi will be presented at the annual Sweetheart Dance at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Colonial Country Club.

Finalists for sweetheart are Misses Maudie Harral, Abernathy sophomore; Carol Paxson, Pampa sophomore, and Sabra Lackland, San Antonio sophomore.

New officers of Sigma Chi also will be presented. A breakfast will follow.

Dr. Walker is currently working on a book of prayers to be published by Bethany Press and has published a book entitled, "Preaching in the Thought of Alexander Campbell."

Dr. Walker is vice-president of the Fort Worth Area Council of Churches and past president of the Texas State Convention of Christian Churches.

The lasting effect the Resurrection on Christ's disciples was discussed by Dr. James M. Moudy at last Tuesday's chapel service.

"Christ's resurrection brought a new outlook to the disciples — an after-joy," he remarked.

"And joy," he continued, "is a most fitting tribute to a God that redeemed us."

Jerre Todd wrote the first Ricky Bresneham filler ever published. Or was it him?

Dowell (481) and Charlie Robinson (488).

Miss Joan Leatherman was chosen TCU Sweetheart for 1957-58, with 482 votes. Others in the runoff were Misses Pat Miller (185), Glenda Moses (225), Barbara Sullivan (111) and Nita Webb (206).

Elected senior representatives were Miss Luann Dyché (101) and John Moore (110) over Roland Jary (78) and Miss Nyla Baker (74).

Arts and Sciences representatives will be Bill Austin (152) and Miss Anne Glascock (154). Unsuccessful in their bids were Herman Young (120) and Miss Carol Kitchens (148).

Miss Catherine Davis defeated Jack King, 52 to 49, for Fine Arts representative.

A Congress committee headed by Miss Toni Fairley, Fort Worth freshman, will study suggestions for making election decisions a part of the constitution or by-laws.

The committee began work on new election rules last week when Congress declared the election invalid.

Bobby Coleman, Student Association vice president, contested the election. His reasons were as follows:

- 1) Failure to include the name of one junior representative candidate on the ballot.
- 2) Passing out of extra voting cards and the discovery of two write-in votes for "Bobby Coleman" written in the same handwriting.
- 3) Finding of three discarded ballots.
- 4) Limiting of Brite College voting to one day.
- 5) The statement that voting cards could be obtained in the Student Center.

Gary Gafford, Fort Worth junior, appealed Congress' decision in casting out the votes. He argued that Congress had taken action of a judicial nature.

TOP QUARTET—Four of the five top 1957-58 student officers who won victories in the spring elections get together for some "cooperation planning." Left to right, they are Robert Roch, vice president; George Depee, president; Miss Linda Major, Horned Frog editor; and Frank Perkins, Skiff editor. But there's another "string" attached to this fabulous situation: A man can only accept one job offer.

How can the graduate make up his mind wisely about his vital decision?

We're not going to try to tell you. And we're going to resist the temptation to point out the many advantages of working for IBM—much as our company, like every other, needs top-notch engineering and scientific talent.

We're merely going to leave you with one thought that may help you make your decision:

Development Staff Keeps Busy Traveling

No one has spring fever at the University Development Office. It is a scene of bustling activity. Calendars are full of names and crowded itineraries and staff members are working feverishly to bring the Library and campaign to an end by May 30.

Allen Watson, field director, has planned a breakfast meeting in Austin today. Hiram, prominent business man, worked with Watson in planning the program.

President M. E. Sadler will be guest speaker. He will discuss "TCU of the Future."

Jay Smith, development board member, is coordinating the breakfast meeting with the Christian Churches of Austin.

Dr. O. James Sowell, University development director, will speak at the Joint Board of Christian Churches at Pampa April 26. He will be speaking on behalf of the Library program.

May 9, the Development

Board will be host to the Fort Worth Ministers at luncheon. J. Allen Watson is soliciting support of the Christian church group for the Library.

Dr. Lee Pierce, director of church relations, will be in Alexandria, Amarillo and Palestine securing wider support of ministerial education and the University next week.

The following week he will be the University's representative at the Louisiana Christian Church convention.

Dr. Sowell will address a "Christian Church Men's Retreat in Brownwood, May 4-5. May 17 will find him making a speech at a joint dinner meeting of all the Christian Churches in Lubbock.

TCU has been part of Miss Laura Lisle's life since she was 9 years old.

Daughter of Dr. Floyd M. Lisle, assistant professor of chemistry, she has been studying piano, violin and voice at the University since she was a child.

"Music is almost my whole life," the brown-haired Fort Worth senior declared.

"It's my vocation and avocation."

She is minoring in music and plans to teach choral music next fall.

The secondary education major is a student teacher at Paschal High school this spring.

Her brother, Floyd, received his bachelor of music degree from TCU in 1950.

He is studying for his B.D. at Berkeley Divinity School in New Haven, Conn.

Miss Lisle, who plans to be married in June, explains that she and her fiancé, Duane Sanner, share a common interest in music, especially jazz.

"My family and I have been associated closely with TCU for about 14 years," she remarked.

"Only my mother has never attended or taught at TCU; she was a student at North Texas State College."

Social Science Faculty Schedules Final Meeting

Editorial Comment

The old saying that crime doesn't pay received a severe jolt at TCU during the past two weeks.

A dishonest election—which seems to be a crime if ever there was one—sailed right past the Student Court as though it were a paragon of purity.

Election Mess Blows Apart

The mess began, you'll remember, before the Easter holidays, when at least one person and presumably a number of others, voted more than once.

Student Congress, acting wisely, but unconstitutionally, threw out the results of the election and ordered it run over.

Then someone found out that only Student Court had the power to order an election voided.

But, Student Court members didn't throw out the election. They let it stand, in all its smelly, well-publicized glory.

The justices gave three reasons for doing so:

- 1) No student had protested the election, as required by the constitution.
- 2) The time limit for such protests had expired by the time the case was brought before the court.
- 3) The court cannot invalidate elections, only individual races.

The court's ruling seems not entirely in keeping with its powers as outlined in the constitution.

Someone obviously protested, because the case went first before Congress and later before the court. One student was willing to testify that he voted more than once, just to prove it could be done.

The time limit for protests had undoubtedly passed. This limit was drawn up by Congress in the election code it passed. Congress was justified in doing this, since the constitution specifically gives that body the power to "supervise . . . all elections for positions in the Student Association," and to "enact legislation to carry out the power."

But, the constitution also gives the court power to judge with finality the legality and procedure of all elections.

The constitution says nothing about this power being subject to a time limit.

In view of these facts, it is apparent that the court could have voided the results of the runoff election, if it had so desired. The court members did not choose to elaborate on their reasons for failing to do so.

Thus, TCU's 1957 spring election becomes a slightly smutty entry in the record books. In all fairness this cannot be attributed entirely to Congress or to the court.

The real culprits, the handful of dishonest students who voted illegally and caused the whole trouble, must go scot free. Crime DID pay for these individuals, in that their votes were allowed to count.

The election mess is something that won't soon be forgotten, and it should influence student legislatures and judiciaries in the future to manage their elections more closely and, above all, to study the Student Association Constitution.

Success Is Where You Find It

Oohs and ahhs escaped from all who entered the ballroom for the recent Spring Formal.

All sorts of superlatives could be heard as students and faculty members danced, ogled the decorations and consumed free refreshments.

"This is the way all our big dances should be," they said.

This is the way all big dances in the future will be, Social Director Elizabeth Youngblood commented.

Art and Decorations and Dance Committee members should be commended, she said.

Work on the decorations had been going on for several months, and some committee members toiled 18 hours at a stretch dressing up the ballroom and Student Center.

The refreshments and the combo downstairs in the cafeteria helped make the Formal an exceptional affair.

"Although we didn't make ends meet financially, everyone seemed to have a good time, and that's what counts," Miss Youngblood remarked.

So it seems that everything went well, for a change, and TCU's dance devotees presumably can look forward to more of the same.

Sounding Board

Integration Will Come

By JIM HENDRICKS

The integration poll included on the primary ballot of two weeks ago has become almost lost amid the farce of this spring's student elections.

The results showed 729 students favoring continued segregation at the University, 405 backing gradual integration and 291 expressing a preference for immediate integration.

While the majority of those students who voted in the poll desired a maintenance of segregation, only 33 fewer indicated that they wanted the school to open its doors to Negroes—either immediately or at some time in the future.

The results of the poll thus seem to illustrate a change in student attitude at TCU in the past few years.

Had the same poll been taken three or four years ago, it probably would have shown a vast majority in favor of segregation. Since the Supreme Court rendered its famous decision in April, 1954, however, American citizens, college students included, have had to do some serious thinking on the subject.

Most of them realize that integration will come to the South within the next few years. Those who want to block it haven't hit upon a logical method yet. It's doubtful that they ever will.

When integration does come to the public schools, colleges and universities, the private institutions should become a temporary mecca for students and their parents who oppose the change.

Gradually, though, as the newness wears off integration, the non-public college or university will swing around to the idea as a way of increasing enrollment.

Right now, were TCU to announce plans to integrate, there undoubtedly would be a strong protest from a powerful faction of the student body. In another 15-20 years, opposition to the move will be almost negligible.

Whether this basic change in attitude can be laid to a broadening outlook on the social problem of the Negro in the South or to a gradual realization that segregation is on its way out is another question.

Whatever the reason, TCU must face the prospect of admitting Negroes to its undergraduate schools in the next decade or two.

The student body seems to be swinging around to an acceptance of the idea. The administration will make its own choice in the matter, of course, but it surely will take student attitude into consideration.

Quite probably, the decision, when it comes, will be to open the doors.

Squirrelly . . .
The staff of the Cougar running out of things to worry about. Undoubtedly, the University of Houston has a student congress that is capable of running an election.

Anyway, they're down worrying about squirrels. T campus variety, of course.

The Cougar wants us all consider the plight of the campus squirrel, who is being evicted from his woodland abode by the clearing of land for new UH buildings.

Look at it from the squirrel's point of view, they say. There he is, high in his tree home, enjoying a juicy peanut. Suddenly he finds himself on the ground, his home flattened by a huge blade propelled by a towering two-legged ant.

Looking up, he sees more of the two-legged ants scurrying from ant hill to ant hill with loads of building materials.

Others, also carrying loads (of a slightly different type) walk in two's and three's wearing worried frowns and clinging on white burning sticks. (These must be the students.)

The Cougar calls the squirrel a "symbol of freedom" and thankful that as long as the are trees on the campus the will be squirrels.

You'll have to admit that pretty profound.

We know some people who should have put a few more squirrels out on the street when they built our Student Center.

The big two-legged ants can hardly find a place to rest their antennae.

SMU—

There were some red faces over at Smudom recently, sunburned by the Rising Sun.

During the annual federal inspection of SMU's Air Force ROTC squadron, the dignitaries, including the president of the university, suffered a few embarrassing moments.

In the midst of the ceremonies, a small foreign-made car came barreling across the drill field toward the rows of khaki-clad students. Atop the speeding auto was a giant Japanese flag.

Weird bugle calls from tiny conveyance pierced the air mixed with manic screams which the SMU Campus described as "certainly not in English and probably not Japanese."

THE THUNDERING MARCH OF PROGRESS

Today, as everyone knows, is the forty-sixth anniversary of the founding of Gransmire College for Women which, as everyone knows, was the first Progressive Education college in the United States.

Well do I recollect the tizzy in the academic world when Gransmire first opened its portals! What a buzz there was, what a brouhaha in faculty common rooms, what a rattling of teacups, when Dr. Agnes Thudd Sigafos, first president of Gransmire, lifted her shaggy head and announced defiantly, "This here is no stuffy, old-fashioned college. This here, by gum, is Progressive Education. We will teach the student, not the course. There will be no marks, no exams, no requirements. We will break the iron mold of orthodoxy, hey."

Well sir, forward-looking maidens all over the country cast off their fetters and came rushing to New Hampshire to enroll at Gransmire. Here they found freedom. They broadened their vistas. They lengthened their horizons. They unstopped their bottled personalities. They roamed the campus in togas, leading ocelots on leashes.

And, of course, they smoked Philip Morris. (I say "of course." Why do I say "of course"? I say "of course" because it is a matter of course that anyone in search of freedom should naturally turn to Philip Morris, for Philip Morris is a natural smoke, with no filter to get in the way of its true tobacco taste.)

But all was not Philip Morris and ocelots. There was work and study too — not in the ordinary sense, for there were no formal classes. Instead there was a broad approach to enlarging each girl's potentials.

Take, for example, the course called B.M.S. (Basic Motor Skills). B.M.S. was divided into L.D. (Lying Down), S.U. (Standing Up) and W. (Walking). Once the student had mastered L.D. and S.U., she was taught to W. — but not just to W. any old way! No, sir! She was taught to W. with poise, dignity, bearing! To inculcate a sense of balance in the girl, she began her exercises by walking with a suitcase in each hand. (One girl, Mary Ellen Dorgenicht, got so good at it that today she is bell captain at the Dinkler-Plaza Hotel in Atlanta, Georgia.)

When the girls had walking under their belts, they were allowed to dance. Again no formality was imposed. They were simply told to fling themselves about in any way their impulses dictated, and believe you me, it was quite an impressive sight to see them go bounding into the woods with their togas flying. (Several later joined the U. S. Forestry Service.)

There was also a lot of finger painting and gourd rattling and sculpture with coat hangers and all like that, and soon the fresh wind of Progressivism came whistling out of Gransmire to blow the ancient dust of pedantry off curricula everywhere, and today, thanks to the pioneers at Gransmire, we are all free, every man-jack of us.

If you are ever in New Hampshire, be sure to visit the Gransmire campus. It is now a tannery.

© Max Shulman, 1957

And be sure to light a Philip Morris when you visit Gransmire, or anywhere else for that matter, because Philip Morris is always a naturally perfect companion and brings you this column each week and is ignitable at either end.

What's Spare Time?

Crying Over a Rough Schedule? Listen to Shirley Bryson's Routine

By FRANK PERKINS

Say, friend, you say you're overworked, misunderstood, don't have any spare time?

Well, be the dummy this hand and listen to one average day in the life of Miss Shirley Bryson, Grand Rapids, Mich., junior.

Shirley is an attractive, blue-eyed, brown-haired nursing major in Harris College of Nursing.

She is working for the coveted initials "RN", Registered Nurse.

To earn these initials after her name, Shirley is taking the four-year nursing course.

The program differs from most other liberal arts courses in that it compresses five years' work into four.

To do this, the student nurse usually starts her training during the summer of her graduating year from high school. She will continue her training until her senior year at TCU.

To give you an idea of what the Student nurses do, let's follow Shirley on her rounds on Monday.

Shirley's day begins at 5 a.m., an hour when the night's dreams are still dancing in most of our heads. By 5:30 a.m., Shirley is dressed and ready to leave Fannie B. Harris Hall for Harris Hospital.

She has breakfast at the hospital cafeteria at about 6 a.m., and reports to the floor division at 6:45 a.m.

At 7 a.m., she relieves the nurse who had the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift and gets her data together before making the floor rounds.

She receives an oral report from the nurse she has relieved, such as, how individual patients are acting, if the doctors have left any verbal orders and if there have been any unusual occurrences.

From 7 to 11 a.m., Shirley is a working nurse.

She administers medications, takes temperatures, pulse and respiration (she calls it "TPR's") and dispenses pills and comforting smiles in large quantities.

From 11 a.m. to 12 noon, if she is not too busy, Shirley eats lunch.

At 12 noon, Shirley and the nine other girls in her class have a clinic in medical nursing. It lasts until 4 p.m.

It may consist of a pharmacology lecture, a doctor's lecture, or talks on nursing problems.

In the realm of poetic justice, it may even be a seminar in the fine art of giving hypodermic shots, with budding Florence Nightingales sticking each other to improve their game with the needle.

Both of Shirley's arms have large, blue-black bruises in the bends of her elbows — her class had been improving their aim in the intravenous injection marksmanship program.

From 4 to 5:30 p.m., Shirley has free time.

At 5:30 p.m., Shirley, rush chairman for Alpha Delta Pi, goes to sorority meeting.

When the meeting is over, Shirley returns to Harris Hall to get caught up on her house-keeping and studying.

About 12 midnight, Shirley calls it a day and goes to bed.

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, her morning schedule is the same, but she has a night class in the evening.

She takes a psychology class and a course in business law, her elective.

One day each weekend, she works a full shift on the floor, usually from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m.

In addition to this full shift, Shirley also may work PRN, "as needed" if she wishes.

"When you work PRN," Shirley explained, "you usually 'float', that is, you may start your PRN shift in obstetrics, then you may be sent to prepare a critical patient for surgery, and then rushed down to the premature nursery to help give an RH baby an exchange transfusion."

An exchange transfusion is a process of removing the RH negative blood and replacing it with type "O", the "universal donor" blood type.

Generally, however, Shirley works a regular 40-hour week, 10-hour day, classes and clinics included.

This 40-hour week pays her room, board and linen service. She is paid $1 hour for all hours over 40 she works.

Even with this tight schedule, Shirley still finds time for social life.

"We don't have to be in the dorm until 12 midnight week-nights, and that helps some," she said. "We also get a chance to meet lots of boys at church, and we date the hospital personnel."

"We do a rousing business in blind dates here," she laughed.

Although Shirley's clinics last from four to 12 weeks, they are classified as "classes".

She will complete her course in medical nursing in May and in June, she will begin a clinic in psychiatric nursing at the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital.

In addition to these clinics, Shirley takes the regular liberal arts course.

The result? Graduation in June, 1958, with a B.S. in Nursing and the right to take the "State Board" test for her RN.

Does she think it's worth all this trouble? Let her answer that for you.

"All my life I've wanted to be just one thing: a nurse, and a good one. I have also always wanted to go to college, and here at Harris, I am able to do both.

"I will admit that the four-year program is a challenge but believe me, I think it is well worth it."

Mood Music, Classics Now Featured on KTCU

By BARRY STEPHENSON

"Compatible music" is the keynote of the new KTCU format.

Station Manager Norman Perry, Fort Worth, senior, announced the switch from popular records to semiclassical, mood music, show tunes and classical albums.

The new format, Perry said, will no longer have the "commercial sound" of local radio stations.

Bob Bruce, Fort Worth, junior, helped Perry with the new format and said it was necessary because "the music programming on local radio stations is for the 15-year-old and we believe this is an insult to the college student."

"Since KTCU must compete with the Fort Worth stations we have decided to give the student body a type of music which can not be heard on local stations."

"Requestfully Yours" will start the broadcasting day at 2 p.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m. The Latin American music of the "Crazy Rhythms" will follow until 4 p.m.

"Afternoon Music Festival" will fill out the format until "Baseball Scoreboard" at 5 p.m. with Bob Thomas, Hinsdale, Ill., senior, giving the results of the day's games.

From 6 until 7 p.m., "Strictly Instrumental" will feature the music of great instrumentalists. "KTCU Music" will follow until 8 p.m. featuring famous orchestras of the world playing the music of different countries. A new country will be featured each night.

Ten minutes of the latest sports will start the next hour. The remainder of the hour will be filled with the finer recorded music of American vocalists, bands and orchestras.

Continuing at 9 p.m. will be Miss Beverly Burmeister, Fort Worth freshman, as she plays "Music for Sweethearts."

"Career Hour" at 9:30 p.m. completes the broadcasting day with the latest in album music and information for senior on job opportunities after graduation.

On Saturday, the station will feature the best in music from Broadway and the operatic stage from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Five Nominated For Band Honors

Misses Vivian Moore, Janice Michener and Josie Bird have been nominated for election as sweetheart of the Horned Frog Band.

Bill Morgan and Ruben Fechner are in the runoffs for selection as outstanding band member.

Recently elected officers of the organization are: Jack King, president; Jimmy Davis, vice-president; Miss Janice Michener, secretary; Miss JoAnn Calcaterra, treasurer, and Bill Morgan, student conductor.

The band sweetheart and outstanding band member will be presented at the annual band banquet on May 18, when other awards will be made.

Students to Edit Gainesville Paper

Thirteen TCU journalism majors will spend next Monday editing the Gainesville Daily Register, in Gainesville.

Jim Hendricks, Fort Worth senior, will be editor for a day on the paper.

Other students making the trip are:

Sports editor, Dave Brown; society editor, Martha Haskell, advertising, Dave Champlin and wire editor, Lantz Feris.

Acting as reporters will be Jane Reddell, Joe Harvey, Bruce Neal, Alice Buford, Lois Anne Galloway, Dale Edmonds, Frank Perkins and Jay Crum.

Pool Tables Re-Covered During Easter Holidays

POOL TABLES The pool tables in the game area of the Student Center were re-covered and repaired during the Easter holidays.

SC Director Logan Ware said the cost of renovating the tables was in excess of $600.

Nebraska Minister To Join TCU Staff

Dr. Charles F. Kemp, nationally known author and authority in the field of pastoral counseling, will become distinguished professor of practical ministries in Brite College next fall.

The new professor comes from Lincoln, Neb., where he is now minister of the First Christian Church.

Dr. Kemp holds B. A. and M.A. degrees from Drake University, a B.D. from Colgate-Rochester Divinity School and a Ph.D. from the University of Nebraska.

He is author of several books some used as texts in leading seminaries. They include "Physician of the Soul" (1947); "Pastoral Triumph" (1948), and "Life Situation Preaching" (1957).

The minister also has written pamphlets and has contributed to many religious journals. He has a regular column, "In the Pastor's Study" in the Christian Evangelist.

Dr. and Mrs. Kemp have two sons, Frederick, 15, and James, 12. They will move to Fort Worth in the summer.

New Cinerama Wonder Wanders To Himalayas a la Raft, Jeep

By BRUCE NEAL

Written on the sand . . . In an effort to stretch the Easter bit to Playtex proportions we're writing this column from our old place of business, a theater office in San Angelo. Subject: Mo'om pitchers (naturally).

Sez here . . . the fourth Cincrama effort will bear the title "Search for Paradise." Concerns the rubber raft, jeep and pony powered meanderings of two American aviators as they search for "that certain way of life" in the Himalayas.

It will replace "Seven Wonders of the World" in the 20 U.S. Cinerama houses sometime this fall.

Producer Lowell Thomas is sparing no expense to give us our fourth migraine in as many years.

MOVIE MANIA . . . 20th Century-Fox officials have denied reports that their Movie-tone news series will be discontinued. One problem . . . where are they going to show them?

Two Texas movie men have patented a device designed to prevent the pilfering of drive-in speakers.

When the speaker decides to go home with a patron a bell rings and a light flashes on a central panel. At the same time a light goes on at the point of theft.

One nice point . . . a transformer gimmick prevents electrocution of the culprit. They'd rather do that later, legally.

Plans Made To Extend MS Degree

Six new Master of Science degrees will be offered by the University next September, President M. E. Sadler announced.

They are the M.S. in biology, geology, chemistry, physics, and mathematics, and the Master of Business Administration with a major in engineering management.

A M. S. in medical technology is being offered now.

The new offerings will provide an alternate plan to the Master of Arts degrees now offered in these fields, Graduate Dean James M. Moudy indicated.

The M. S. degrees in sciences will parallel existing M.A. programs but will differ in two respects:

1) Admission will be based on a bachelor's degree from regionally-accredited colleges and evidence of ability and experience so that a much undergraduate makeup work will not be necessary;

2) The foreign language requirement may be waived by the major department.

All will be 30-hour programs with theses expected except in math. The math program is 36 hours including six of problems and oral exam instead of thesis.

The new M.B.A. will require 36 hours, including four new courses. It is designed to help those who are trained in engineering and science who have moved into management and executive positions.

"Additional faculty members are being employed and meetings are being held to determine where the curriculum can be enriched and developed," Dr. Sadler said.

More advanced degree work will be offered after the Library expansion is completed.

"We urgently need to prepare teachers required in colleges in the Southwest," President Sadler stressed.

Offering more advanced work here will help alleviate the shortage, he commented.

Robot Date Machines?

Reminiscing Reporter Sees Scientific Future

By ROBBIE MARION

Some of the articles in The Skiff during the past year might well have been written to the tune of "Turn Back the Hands of Time."

They yearned for the days when the Shamrockers were bold and Dale Edmonds had more hair. (There's a rumor going about that he never did). This reminiscing probably reflects the unwillingness of the present generation to look to the future, so the older folks seem to think. Who the heck wouldn't prefer to look backward with the cold, cold draft facing most of the men, and quite a few of the women facing graduation without husbands?

But still, the future can't be so bad. In fact it looks downright cheery in some respects.

For example, say in about 20 years, Pat Kenney's understudies ought to have discovered enough plutonium (combination of platinum and uranium to be used in the XYZ-End Bomb) to supply enough grants to make TCU the richest university in the world. Lou Green, Athens freshman, might have been graduated and White Collie Dog probably will have established classes on how to win student elections.

Why, Splinter Village might even be demolished by then.

No more cramming for tests on the students' part either. Science will have invented knowledge pills. Just plop a couple in the mouth before going to bed and all problems are solved.

Then too, someone might have thought up a solution to the parking problem by that time. Collapsible cars, perhaps?

Of course, the girls will profit from increased scientific knowledge. Possibly there will be robot date machines located in every dorm. No more sitting at home nights because some dumb boy didn't ask them out. They could just walk down to the lobby, deposit two-bits and out steps a handsome, thought-sensitive robot loaded with loot.

Psychology will have advanced to the point where it has developed a surefire marital test for selecting the perfect mate for each woman and man. Think of all the time it'll save. Just take the test on entering college, take a look at the selected mate and start chasing right away —no more wasting time going out with first one prospect and then another. Darn science, anyway.

Food pills will have reached their zenith. Students can take their nourishment in capsule form. Not very exciting to the palate, but at least they won't have to eat in the Cafeteria.

Young college men won't be worried about the draft when they are graduated either. They'll do their time before coming to college.

Berlioz' Requiem Mass To End Music Festival

By JANE REDDELL
Everything from the tremor of 12 kettle drums to the tenderness of a tenor solo will be enhanced in the staging of Herbert Berlioz' Requiem Mass by the TCU music department at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, May 7, in Ed Landreth Auditorium.
The Requiem Mass will be the last event of the Fine Arts Festival of French art and music as well as a memorial program to the late T. Smith McCorkle, Fine Arts dean from 1942 to 1955.
Conducted by Dean Robert Hull, the program will be TCU's contribution to National Music Week.
The sacred concert was written for presentation by a chorus of hundreds, an over-sized symphony orchestra, four brass bands, 16 kettle drums and additional percussion instruments.
The entire TCU chorus plus singers from church choirs and the Fort Worth Opera Association will be accompanied by an orchestra of TCU students, townspeople, faculty members, and professional musicians.

Four brass ensembles from the Horned Frog Concert Band and 12 kettle drummers also will play.
"The music was written to be performed in an enormous Paris cathedral," Dean Hull explained. "So Berlioz quadrupled instrumental and vocal notes to fill the massive auditorium."
Due to the limited stage area, the Requiem will not be played with as many instruments as the original. But notes have been eliminated.
"The original score called for 20 viola and 50 violin players," Dean Hull said. "There aren't that many accomplished string players in the Dallas-Fort Worth area."
"As far as we know," he continued, "this is the first performance of this requiem in Texas."

Frogs' Severest Test Due In Texas Tilt This Afternoon

Balkum's Perfect Mark on Line, Wineburg Gets Call Tomorrow

By TONY CLARK
The TCU baseball team, unbeaten in six Southwest Conference starts, faces its greatest obstacle of the season, the University of Texas, at 2:30 p.m. today.

The Steers, who will meet the Christians for another game tomorrow, bring a 5-0 conference record into the series.

Doug Balkum will hurl the opener for the Frogs, says

Coach L. R. (Dutch) Meyer. The roly-poly righthander has six victories to his credit, three in conference action. He is undefeated.

Balkum leads the team in hitting with a .400 average, but he has only 10 at-bats. Carl Warwick, who is second, has been up 22 times and collected seven hits for a .318 mark.

Meyer will call on Ken Wineburg for the contest tomorrow. Wineburg has taken one conference decision against no losses.

A double victory over Texas would put the Frogs into the second half of conference play with a perfect record and an excellent chance to retain the SWC baseball crown that they now hold.

In conference competition, each club plays three games with every other conference member; since Arkansas doesn't participate in baseball, each team plays a fifteen-game schedule.

Batting has been TCU's weakest point thus far. The club average is a mere .235, and three regulars are hitting less than .200. They have achieved their record by getting hits when they were most needed; most games have been won by one or two-run margins.

Next week the Purples play Baylor in Waco Tuesday and SMU here Friday.

The Christians squeezed by SMU at Dallas, 3-2, in their last action before the Easter recess. Balkum held the Mustangs to three hits, two of which didn't get through the infield, while the Frogs cashed in on three timely singles and a wild pitch for the one-run victory.

Balkum struck out five batters and walked four in going the full nine innings. Charlie Quick, Jim Shofner and Harold Key got the three Frog hits.

Rain May Help the Spinach But It's Bad for Greens

If you think the rain has curtailed your activities, pity Golf Coach Tom Prouse.

Prouse and his charges have glumly watched the water spatter on the greens for the past two weeks.

Yesterday a match was scheduled with Rice.

The Rice team originally planned to play SMU, but the Pony's course was under water. So, the Owls sought a dry perch here.

At 2 p.m. Monday the Frogs tackle A&M at Glen Garden Country Club.

The Aggies are a strong contender for the loop title. Baylor now leads the conference with SMU in second place.

TCU has yet to win a conference match.

O'Neal Praises Ability Of All-Star Teammates

"Some of those guys are really great. Chet Forte and Lennie Rosenbluth are every bit as good as you've heard."

Those were the sentiments of TCU's center Dick O'Neal after a basketball series matching the College All-Americans and the Harlem Globetrotters.

The Trotters whacked the All-Stars unmercifully, winning 15 of the 19 contests on the tour.

Each college player participated in 12 games. Of the dozen in which Dick played, the All-Stars won 3, or 75 per cent of all their victories.

Each of the players received $100 per game, a wrist watch and a key chain with a diamond-studded basketball.

The trip eliminated O'Neal's final baseball season, but, as Dick described it, "I wouldn't have missed it for the world."

Seven Guards Signed As Prospective Wogs

Next year's freshman football team is sure to have plenty of strength at guard.

So far seven prospective Wogs have signed letters of intent at that position.

Three backs have signed. They are: Harry Moreland; Randall Wylie, Ennis; and R. E. Dobson, Mount Pleasant.

Guards will be: Hobart Buxton, Perryton; Dan Zucker, Corpus Christi; Clarence Young, Amarillo; Lanny Verner, Mount Pleasant; Pat Richardson, North Little Rock, Ark.; Dugan Millican, Carter, Fort Worth and Shelly Hearlean, Kilgore.

One end has inked a letter to TCU. He is Dale Glascock, from Temple.

George Lambert will vie for a tackle slot next fall. He is from Baird.

Roy Lee Rambo, Pascal center-linebacker, will also attend TCU.

Most of the guards and centers alternate at more than one position.

"We think they'll balance out fine," Coach Abe Martin said.

The recruiting season is about three-quarters complete. Coaches now on signing tours expect to complete their lists by May 15.

Batonmen Will Run At Drake

Tomorrow is the big test for the TCU two-mile relay team.

The Frog quartet is entered in the event at the Drake Relays in Des Moines, Iowa.

Ted Williams, Jerry Hutson, Clarence Culwell and James Livergood, along with Coach J. Eddie Weems and Trainer Elmer Brown, left Fort Worth by train late Wednesday night.

At the recent Texas Relays the Frog batonmen finished second behind Kansas with a time of 7:46.2—the nation's fourth best time although it was a non-winning effort.

At the Drake Relays the foursome will be running against Kansas and some of the stiffest competition in the world. Last month at the Kansas Relays the Jayhawks clicked off a 7:32.5 for the nation's best time of the year.

READY FOR 'HORNS—Frog captain Charles Quick, regular at second base three years, will lead the Christians in their biggest test of the season this weekend against the University of Texas.

Quick Is RBI Champ

The Man With Most When Needed Most

By PAT BECKHAM

Charlie Quick is the defending RBI champion at TCU.

The senior second baseman was awarded the Berry Bros. and Donohue trophy last year for being the Frog player with the most runs batted in, and he has led in this department most of the current season.

Quick was all-Southwest Conference at second base last year, and rated high in the batting percentages with a .306 mark.

In total season batting this year Charlie ranks high in the team standings with a .303 average. A recent slump at the plate has caused his rating to drop considerably in conference percentages.

As a Wog, Quick blasted out an average of .441 and at the same time, he showed the kibitzers he was destined to be one of the top glove men in his upcoming varsity years.

Charlie's sophomore season was uneventful, but last year he proved his worth in a number of ways.

In the summer of 1953 Charlie played semi-pro ball with the Sinton Plymouth Oilers, and the following summer the Jal New Mexico nine received his services.

The former Carter-Riverside star was all-city in both his junior and senior years of high school competition. Both seasons he finished with better than a .320 average.

The blond, crew-cut baseman is now married and has a six-month-old son.

Charlie, who stands 5-11 and weighs 150 pounds, says:

"On the program they have me listed at 160. Traver's weight is jacked up too, so I guess they just don't want people to know we're skinny.

The shy slugger, who grips the bat so easily, just may be difficult for Coach Dutch Meyer to replace in next year's infield.

Michigan Star Signs For Basketball Here

The outstanding high school basketball player in Michigan last year has signed a letter of intent to TCU.

Robert Isbell, a 6-4 all-stater from Birmingham, Mich., is the second basketballer to sign a letter to the University. Jerry Cobb, 6-3, of Dallas Summerfield was tagged earlier by Baylor.

Isbell is Brannon's nephew.
