Skiff Gets AP News Service

TCU's Department of Journalism has recently installed an Associated Press (AP) Wire News Service. The state teletypewriter (TTS) wire will be leased for one year.

The 236 News Editing and Presentation journalism course, offered on the junior level, will edit and process copy and news dispatches.

Although the primary reason for the machine is for instructional purposes, The Skiff may use it for any purpose, according to Dr. D. Wayne Rowland, professor of journalism and chairman of the department.

"While the semi-weekly campus newspaper probably will not use any great amount of what we commonly call wire copy, still it is quite likely that The Skiff editors will choose to run certain AP news features of special interest to their readers, as well as some kind of a summary of the top of the AP news," said Dr. Rowland.

WINNING RUN

Frog second baseman Billy McAdams races across the plate with the winning run in Tuesday's 14-inning, 11-10 victory over Sam Houston State. TCU whipped the Bearkats, 6-1, in a rematch Wednesday. Defending Southwest Conference champion Texas moves into Fort Worth Saturday for a league bout with the Frogs. Starting time is 2:30 p.m.

100 Enter Science Fair

More than 500 exhibits are entered in the 12th annual Fort Worth Regional Science Fair in the Meyer Coliseum this week.

The formal awards program will begin Friday at 8 p.m. Friday will climax the week's events of judging entries from junior and senior high school students from Tarrant, Johnson, Parker, Palo Pinto and Wise counties.

Awards will go to outstanding exhibits, junior and senior level, physics, biology and math.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NSA) will send two senior high school students to the National Science Fair-International at Albuquerque. Another winner will go to the Bell Telephone Laboratories at Neward, N.J.; and another winner will be sent on a U.S. Navy Cruise at the end of the school term.

Exhibits are open to the public from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Student's Art Selected

The paintings and sculpture of some university students have been chosen for showing in the Spring Junior-Senior Qualifying Exhibition now on display in the second floor gallery of Ed Landreth Hall.

Congress Approves Extra Election Cash

Student Congress spent only 45 minutes in its regular weekly meeting Tuesday in the Student Center, the shortest session of the school year.

President Galen Hull gavelled the meeting to order just after 5:30 p.m. Adjournment came a little after 6:15 p.m.

The main business was a request from the Elections Committee for an additional $300 to pay for the spring elections pamphlet. Congress already had appropriated $350 for the booklet.

Committee member Ray Reece explained that candidates turned in 72 platforms and 92 photos, many more than expected. He said the booklet would contain 40 pages, instead of the 20 to 24 originally planned.

Reece said that 3,000 copies would cost $550, 4,000, $600 and 5,000, $650. He asked for an extra $300 so that 5,000 booklets could be purchased.

The pamphlets are to be handed out today in classes at 9 a.m. and at 10 a.m.

Congress members also: —Heard a report on three appointments by President Hull for next year. David Stevenson, Abilene junior, was named Leadership Retreat chairman; Anna Sickles, Jacksboro junior, Homecoming chairman and Jim Lane, Fort Worth freshman, student trip chairman.

Hull has yet to name a Howdy Week chairman. No congressional approval was needed for the three appointments.

—Witnessed the swearing in of John Matheny and Ron Johnson as congress members. The two were appointed by Hull to fill vacancies in the AddRan College of Arts and Sciences representation.

—Heard from Congresswoman Linda Pilcher, Congressional Relations Committee Chairman, that four schools, Arlington State College, the University of Texas, SMU and Texas A&M — have asked the University to send representatives to spring social events. Congress will name delegates later.

Research Material Made Available in New Center

College students may view the new Federal Records Center being opened in Fort Worth with mixed feelings of admiration and chagrin, said Dr. Nevin Neal, associate professor of history.

The new depository of federal records will contain a superabundance of material valuable to research but much of it will be inaccessible without tedious searching because of the stupendous problems of filing it.

The material is filed according to time of occurrence, which complicates things for students searching for a specific document, he said.

"It will be of great help to students preparing masters theses and Ph.D. dissertations if they have the patience to wade through the vast quantity of documents."

Dr. Neal felt that undergraduate students could profit from the new center, but warned that perseverance will be needed in using it.

"It will be particularly helpful to history, economics, sociology, psychology, government and business students," he said.

Of special interest to historians is the wealth of records dating back to the early 19th century migration of several North American Indian tribes. These records contain valuable information on more than 110,000 Indians. The documents tell of the land distribution to the Indians in Oklahoma.

Among the 72 federal agencies represented in the center are: the Federal Communications Commission, Federal Land Bank, Federal Prisons Bureau, Bureau of Narcotics, Department of Health, Education and Welfare and all federal courts in a four-state area.

The Center is a regional division, with the main office at Washington, D.C., and contains material from Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

The documents are filed, and will be tabulated, with the results being sent to Washington for evaluation, since some of them will be destroyed. This process won't be completed, however, for several years.

A top secret security vault with an accurately maintained climate is part of the 174,941 square feet of storage space.

The Center will be open to the public April 5.

Standing Ovation

'Cockerel' Ballet-Opera Receives Rave Notices In San Antonio Papers

TCU students who performed in the recent ballet-opera, "The Golden Cockerel," returned in jubilation after the show's debut in San Antonio as part of the city's recent Grand Opera Festival.

The opera-ballet produced by the School of Fine Arts and the festival, was labeled "splendid" by the critics and the audience gave the group a standing ovation "for the first time in many years."

The success of the show helped enhance the University's reputation, since TCU is one of three universities in the United States which offers a degree in ballet.

The Associated Press picked up a story about the success of the show from the San Antonio newspapers and sent it to newspapers throughout the country.

Gerard Ashford of the San Antonio Express News, wrote: "A splendid, glittering performance...so well presented it would be a topic of world-wide discussion had it been staged in New York, Paris, or Moscow."

Other critics who gave the show "rave" notices, included

John Rosenfield of the Dallas Morning News and E. Clyde Whitlock of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Especially cheered for their performances in the show were Johnny Simons, Fort Worth special student, as King Dodon and Miss Nathalie Krassovska of Dallas, as Queen Shemakha. Miss Krassovska, the show's prima ballerina, was cast especially for the role.

The show's choreography, originally designed by David Preston, director of ballet, was acclaimed highly by the critics, as were the colorful sets and costumes designed by Lew Stone Greenleaf III, Greenwich, Conn., special student.

Opinions From Readers

EMBARRASSING BOTTLES

As a student at TCU, I would like for our school to have a good reputation. One infraction has been the dumping of beer bottles, wine bottles and empty whiskey bottles which have been scattered on our overcrowded parking lots.

Everyone should agree that it is embarrassing to have our parents trip over an empty six pack of beer bottles. The presence of these bottles does not allow TCU to live up to the reputation as a church supported school.

The broken glass can cause one to encounter a flat tire and possibly an injury to fellow students.

I think we should have enough pride in ourselves and our university to try and correct this situation.

FRIEND INDEED

P. T. Barnum once said "There is a sucker born every minute." It is easy to believe that humanity is beginning to use that statement as its motto. As you read the newspaper it seems that mistrust has become a common factor in human relations. We even find ourselves accepting it as our own guide.

This was the point I had reached and probably would have remained there if I hadn't run out of gas. It was late at night and the only service station that was open would not cash my personal check. I was disgusted, to say the least, but then a total stranger walked up and handed me a dollar bill. In that fraction of time my faith in humanity was bolstered considerably.

My thanks go to Dr. Dan E. Feray of the TCU Geology Department and my congratulations to the University for having this "friend indeed" on its staff. It wasn't so much the dollar as it was the reassurance that the "good guys" are still around.

CRITICIZES TCU

Out of no particular impulse but that of paying very often to visit the TCU campus, I would like to offer some realistic criticisms. One cannot advocate that any large university be duplicated here, for some things come only with large numbers and in some aspects it is good to be different, but I expect to find a university spirit and certain modern interests in all university communities irregardless of the surrounding society and the dominating dogma.

The following conditions reveal a lack of maturity here: the absence of good bars or any serious meeting places around the campus, especially at least one mature jazz club; the clothing worn on campus; the operating hours of the library; the size and accommodations of the faculty center; the protective and petty pride of some in the beachhead the "cultural" activities have made here; and if this is published, ironically, the content of The Skiff.

In spite of the progress enshrined in its buildings—Parthenon to Pentagon—and many scattered efforts, TCU still lacks a certain glandular substance without which it is impossible to mature.

Platforms of SC Candidates

Here are the platforms of the three presidential candidates in Wednesday's spring election primary:

JIM CORY

With a major in business and a minor in history, I plan to go to Princeton and become a Presbyterian minister. I have received a political background as president of the Presbyterian Student Association for two years, as a member of the Summer Student Congress, as co-chairman of Religious Emphasis Week, as a member of the United Religious Council, as assistant treasurer of Sigma Chi fraternity and as a member of the Greek Council of Chaplains.

As a delegate to the National Sigma Chi Convention and the Leadership Retreat this fall, I have gained further leadership training. Through these activities, I have gotten to know the administration and will be able to present your views. A few of the problems I hope to amend are:

The parking problem—Why do we have to be assessed $10? Aren't we paying enough for books, tuition and room and board already? I'm sure that the parking problem can be solved without assessing a fee from the students, and I will seek to find a solution to present to the administration.

The vacation dates—Why do we have to come back to school on New Year's Day and Easter Sunday? The answer is poor planning! I feel congress should take action and prevent such injustices!

Football seats—Why isn't something done? I have expressed both views on this issue and I feel that it should be investigated and worked out now for next fall. Sections of block seats could be limited to a certain area.

The library problem—Why didn't the Student Congress finish what it started? As usual the issue got bogged down and slowly faded away. This constant bogging down in congress should be stopped. A time schedule or deadline dates greatly would increase the congress' efficiency.

The lack of student interest—Why isn't there more participation in student government? There can be! In addition to the regular representatives, I feel the dorm council presidents should be included in congress. Also the Toad Talk should be distributed regularly to all the dorms and class buildings.

If I'm elected, I will strive to correct these problems and all others that arise by maintaining a congress that is efficient, active and that truly represents you, the student body.

JOHN HEARNE

Desiring to be your Student Congress president, I respectfully announce my candidacy. My major is secondary education with fields in history and government. I have compiled a 2.84 overall average and a 3.2 average in government.

JIM CORY

JOHN HEARNE

MARK WASSENICH

My political experience includes terms as alumni secretary and treasurer of my fraternity. I have served on the TCU Campus Chest Committee and as president of the TCU Circle K Club. I am, presently, an international trustee for Circle K International.

If elected Student Congress president, I will work for:

A. A larger voice for students in school-wide policy decisions.

1. Revitalizing the Student-Faculty Forum.

2. Meetings between student leaders and the Board of Trustees.

3. Urging the administration to plan better school holidays to avoid travel on holidays, such as this year on New Year's Day and on Easter Sunday.

B. A continued close tie between The Skiff and the Student Congress

1. The inauguration of a president's column, designed to explain to the campus issues and problems and to answer questions about congress.

2. Encouraging of a reporter to attend each meeting of congress.

C. A public relations campaign for the Activities Council, so that students will understand and appreciate the council and its workings.

D. Better co-ordination and communications between the Executive Committee (officers).

E. The encouraging of Dorm Councils and their work.

F. The establishment of class constitutions.

G. The promotion of a true spirit of loyalty for all school activities.

The office of Student Congress president is one of responsibility and hard work. I believe that the office is one primarily, of co-ordination, not of dictating my own ideas but of executing those which the students' representatives enact. However, I do reserve the right to express myself freely on any subject at any time. I will attend TCU this summer and enroll for a minimum number of hours next year. This will enable me to devote as much time as is necessary to the office. If elected, I pledge myself to a course of genuine enthusiasm and hard work for the student body and TCU.

MARK WASSENICH

Since entering TCU in 1960, I have been active in several areas of campus life. I am a geography major and a sociology minor, with a 3.1 grade point index this past semester. My experience in campus activities includes membership in two Activities Council committees, chairman of the Forums Committee, treasurer of the student congregation of the University Christian Church and junior representative on Student Congress.

I also have worked with three Student Congress committees and have attended three Texas-wide and regional student conferences representing TCU. With this experience and concern for student government and activities, I announce my candidacy.

If elected student body president, I will work responsibly for the students' interest in the following areas:

1. I will work to get student representatives on University policy committees, such as the Library, Organizations and Calendar Committees. By this action student opinion will be better represented in University policies.

2. Through the office of Student Congress president, I will work in the students' interest to get fair prices in the bookstore and a more reasonable policy concerning the new parking regulations.

3. I will continue the policy protecting the academic freedom of the student and of supporting academic honesty in all areas of campus life.

4. I will welcome suggestions, criticisms and new ideas and make every effort to represent the students' opinions both to the congress and school authorities.

5. As president of Student Congress:

I will continue to fight against waste of students' money on such things as TISA, beer mugs for congress members, etc.

I will adopt the policy of making all congress actions public.

I will encourage congress representatives to vote as representatives, rather than simply as they feel personally.

I will try to set up a fund of $1,500 for supporting opportunities to get big name entertainment and speakers.

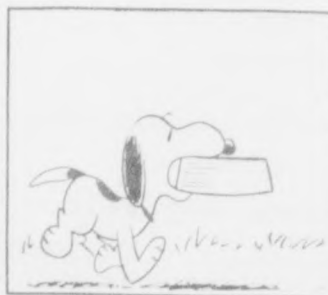

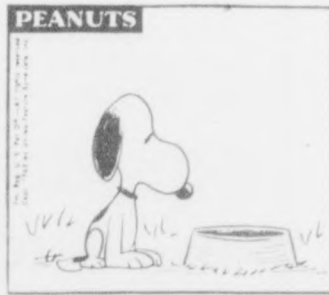

I will work for improvement in congressional procedures to gain greater efficiency in carrying out congress' functions both in committees and in general session.

As TCU moves toward academic excellence, student activities, school spirit and student government must develop new dimensions of excellence. If elected, I will strive toward dynamic student government to meet the needs of TCU students.

Prof's Historical Paper Result of 24-Year Work

BY SANDRA HAWK

Dr. Malcolm D. McLean, associate professor of Spanish and director of TCU's summer school in Mexico, has been invited to present a paper at the Texas State Historical Association meeting in Austin April 26-27.

The paper, "Tenoxtitlan, Dream Capital of Texas," will describe a study Dr. McLean has conducted since 1939.

While a graduate student at the University of Texas, Dr. McLean began research on the Robertson Colony in Texas, founded by his great-great-grandfather Sterling C. Robertson. The area, 100 miles long and 50 miles wide along the Brazos River, takes in a large portion of present-day Burleson County.

During his research, McLean discovered that Tenoxtitlan was one of a string of settlements founded in the Robertson Colony area by the Mexican government before the Texas Revolution.

Dr. McLean began publishing articles about Tenoxtitlan in Texas Parade while still doing his graduate work. Sixteen of his articles were published before he finished his doctoral dissertation.

Aztec Name

Tenoxtitlan, named after the Aztec name for Mexico City, was settled by Mexican troops in 1830. The settlement was established to enforce the law of April 6, 1830, which prohibited further immigration from the United States except into two colonies. Other towns in this area (Anahuac and Lipantitan) were built for a similar purpose; however, Tenoxtitlan was to be the capital.

I'M EMBARRASSED to mention it again, but we'll be moved to our JUNIOR SHOP, 4700 Camp Bowie after Easter and you'll miss our BIG REMOVAL SALE if you don't rush down to the corner of University and Berry right away.

RUSH to THE JUNIOR SHOP, University and Berry, before it's too late!

(Adv.) . . . Breathless Bettye!

Later in the same year, Mier y Teran, the Mexican general who had the 1830 law passed, became despondent over the political situation in Texas and committed suicide. The nationalist movement was abandoned and Tenoxtitlan was deserted by the Mexican troops.

Considered for Capital

Following the Texas revolution in 1836, Anglo-Americans considered the abandoned settlement as a possible site for the state capital.

"That is why I refer to Tenoxtitlan as the 'Dream Capital,'" explains Dr. McLean.

The completed paper contains more than 60 typewritten pages, Dr. McLean reports. It includes a list of all the families settled there in 1830 with detailed information on their names and ages. The document deals with a number of topics, including a section on the General Merchandise Store in Tenoxtitlan, its first Protestant minister, first school teacher and vivid accounts of Indian raids.

Owens Documents

In his 24-year search for information about the settlement, Dr. McLean has acquired several documents, deeds and other papers. Some he has received from officials in Burleson County, the General Land Office in Austin, University of Texas archives, National Archives in Washington, D.C. and others he inherited from his great-great-grandfather.

"I've been to about every library of any importance in Texas," says McLean.

In his quest for research material, however, he did not visit the actual site of the settlement.

"Quite often you find that these ghost towns are in the middle of someone's land—you may have to go through pastures, barbed-wire fences, weeds and mud to get to them."

Dr. McLean would like to see his article published in a pamphlet so that people may learn of a little known phase of Texas history "without having to tramp through the Brazos River bottom."

Easter Convocation Scheduled April 2

Dr. John W. Drakeford, professor of psychology at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, will speak at the TCU Easter Convocation at 11 a.m. April 2, in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Dr. Drakeford, a native of Sydney, Australia, recently became an American citizen.

He was graduated from the University of Sydney with a B.A. degree. Since coming to this country in 1954, he has received an M.A. in psychology from TCU, a Th.M. in pastoral psychology from Brite College of the Bible and was graduated with honors from Southwestern Seminary. He received a Doctor of Religious Education degree.

Before coming to the United States, Dr. Drakeford held several pastorates in Australia and for three years was a chaplain in the Australian Army, serving in the Pacific Islands.

During this time he served one year as chaplain of the largest army psychiatric hospital in Australia.

Besides his work at the seminary, Dr. Drakeford is a regular speaker on the Southern Baptist radio program "Master Control." He also appears on a weekly television show, "Planning for Tomorrow," on station WBAP-TV in Fort Worth.

Dr. Drakeford and his wife, Robina, have two sons: Brenton, 12, and Warwick, 19, a University junior.

Also on the program for the convocation is the University Symphony, directed by Dr. Ralph Guenther. The orchestra will play "A Manx Overture" and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

The Singing Seminarians, a Brite College group directed by Dr. Gentry A. Shelton, professor of religious education, will provide choral arrangements for the program.

Student Reaction Mixed On Campus Panty Raid

Student reaction to last Sunday's campus panty raid varied from complete distaste to hearty approval.

Many students viewed the raid as a healthy way to let off built-up steam in the hectic scholastic grind toward the spring recess.

Some students called it a lot of fun, exciting and a good monotony breaker.

"IT WAS a lot of fun, but once a semester was enough," said one sleepy coed.

One student said he thought the affair made the school look like a university instead of a high school.

Asked what disciplinary action would be taken against coeds accused of "cheering" the raiders on, Dr. JoAnn James, dean of women, said that the case would be handled first by the students.

Dean James said that she was talking with the women to determine the full circumstances and that appropriate action would be taken.

DR. LAURENCE C. Smith, vice chancellor for student life, said that his office was still in the process of determining who took part in the raid.

Dr. Smith said that in cases where students were unusually aggressive and hostile, there probably would be disciplinary probation.

He also said that some rioters would be put on strict probation, some on limited probation and others let off with verbal reprimands.

Language Lab Aids Student In Knowledge of Dialects

BY MARY MARTIN

"Here are two blackboards," says the instructor. "Bot dba docku." (pronounced vote dva doskee) repeats the Russian language student.

Russian, German, French, Italian and Spanish are practiced daily in language lab sessions used to help correct students' pronunciation of foreign words, as well as to emphasize grammatical construction.

TCU's $13,500 language laboratory is used from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, said Nelson Arana, language lab supervisor.

The first language lab, started in 1947 with $250 worth of equipment, was located in the old Jarvis Hall.

The old lab had a single wire recorder with eight sets of earphones. Conducted on a voluntary basis, the lab was available whenever the office was open.

STUDENTS soon showed interest and the old recorder was replaced and an additional one added. Before long TCU had become one of the first universities to have a language laboratory.

In 1958 the lab was moved to the old Administration Building, now Dave C. Reed Hall. Twenty listening and recording booths were installed. Students, for the first time, could record their own voices, listen to recorded lessons and converse with the instructor.

With an increasing number of foreign language students, a more complete laboratory was installed in Sadler Hall in 1960.

The present lab has 40 booths—20 new booths and 20 which were moved from the old lab. Space has been left for the installation of 20 more booths when they are needed, Arana said.

The lab is presently using a system of dual track tapes. The upper master tape is recorded permanently by the instructor. The lower tape records the student's voice.

THE PROFESSOR asks a question on the master track, then a pause follows allowing the student to answer. When the tape is finished, the student may play it again and hear the questions, followed by his own answer.

One-hour language labs are required of all first-year language students. Labs are optional for second-year students with one-hour credit given for their meeting two hours a week.

Students enrolled in foreign language courses may use the lab at any time during the day. Students not enrolled, but wishing to use the lab may pay $5 and receive "lab card privileges."

Students have a wonderful opportunity to learn a foreign language in these lab sessions, Arana said. "Even if the student doesn't understand everything on the tape, he should listen for ear training."

In addition to the recording and listening area in the laboratory, Arana mentioned the lab's reading area. Magazines and books in foreign languages are available for language students.

Zoning Hearing Reset

The third of a series of zoning complaints filed against the Rev. Gordon Miltenberger, Episcopal minister in charge of Canterbury House, was dismissed in County Criminal Court recently.

The complaints were filed by the next door neighbor at 2713 Cockrell, who contends Canterbury House is violating city zoning ordinances.

"He seems to have the assumption that we are running a club," said Rev. Mr. Miltenberger. The house should be classified as a church, according to Rev. Mr. Miltenberger, because worship services are held there.

Judge J. C. Duvall dismissed the appeal because the wrong complaint was brought to the courthouse. Parties in the case seem to agree the paper was lost.

The appeal will be heard sometime in the future, depending on when it is placed on the court docket.

Missed A.F.R.O.T.C.?

Go A.F.O.T.S!

These letters stand for Air Force Officer Training School—a three-month course for those who realize they want to become Air Force officers, but don't have enough school time left to enroll in AFROTC.

We prefer our officers to start their training as freshmen, so we can commission them directly upon graduation. But right now we're accepting applications for another fine way to become an Air Force officer—OTS. We can't guarantee that this program will still be open a year or so from now.

As an Air Force officer, you'll be a leader on the Aerospace Team, serving your country while you get a flying headstart on the technology of the future. The U.S. Air Force sponsors one of the world's most advanced research and development programs—and you can be part of it.

If you're within 210 days of graduation, get more information on OTS from the Professor of Air Science.

ASW Plan Considered

The Presidents Council, composed of a president and representative from each women's dormitory, is considering plans for expansion into an Association of Women Students (AWS). A committee, headed by Ruth Hedland, Kerrville senior, recently submitted a constitution and by-laws for the proposed organization.

According to the constitution, all women enrolled in TCU would be members of AWS.

An Executive Council, composed of representatives of both dorm and town women, would have the power to pass and administer regulations which concern University women as a whole.

The Judicial Board and dorm councils would still operate as they do now.

"AWS will not change the present dormitory framework, but it will give all women better representation," Miss Dorothy Shuler, assistant dean of women, explained.

One purpose of the proposed AWS is to provide adequate opportunity for discussion of all matters affecting TCU women, not just dorm students.

Promotion of scholarship and campus leadership as preparation for community leadership after college is another purpose.

A service organization, AWS also proposes to help maintain high cultural, educational and social standards for University women.

Miss Shuler said that the role of the educated woman has changed in the last few years and AWS would assist college women in preparing for this role.

Committees on service, finance, orientation, scholarship, program entertainment and publicity-news would be established through the Executive Council.

Observers from TCU are to attend the national convention of AWS March 24-28 at Norman, Okla. They will include Miss Shuler; Jan Haley, New Orleans, La., sophomore; Martha Winston, Chattanooga, Tenn., freshman; and Carol Kennedy, Hobbs, N.M., junior.

About 800 university women from all over the country are expected to attend, said Miss Shuler.

The theme of the convention is "Education—Dynamic or Static."

TCU catcher Freddy Jones readies the tag for Sam Houston State second baseman Jimmy Dodd in action during Tuesday's tilt. The Frogs won, 11-10, in the 14-inning non-conference game. Saturday TCU plays host to the Texas Longhorns in a showdown battle for SWC lead.

Frogs Meet UT

Bolstered by a two-game series sweep over Sam Houston State this week, the Frogs take on defending conference champion Texas here Saturday.

Game time is 2:30 p.m.

The victories over the Bearkats earned TCU recognition as a contender in the SWC baseball title race.

Tuesday's win came in a 14-inning marathon which was sparked by a nine-run TCU rally in the bottom of the ninth. Don Reynolds drove in four runs in the big frame.

Wednesday, big John Serben put down the visitors with only five hits to lead his mates to a 6-1 triumph. Offensively, the Frogs were paced by Bob Bigley who was three-for-three at the plate, including a triple.

TCU will carry a 10-1 season's record into the fray with the Longhorns. The only blemish on the Frog slate is a loss to Baylor in the second outing of the spring. Since then Coach Frank Windegger's squad has defeated nine opponents in a row.

The victor in the Texas-TCU match will own sole possession of the Southwest Conference lead. Both teams have 1-0 league marks with single victories over Southern Methodist University.

Lasater Gets Coaching Job At Alvarado

ALVARADO, Tex. (AP)—Marvin Lasater, co-captain of TCU's championship football team in 1959, has been named head coach and athletic director at Alvarado High School.

An All-State halfback at San Angelo, Lasater played on two Southwest Conference champion teams at TCU. He started every game for three seasons.

After receiving his B. A. in 1960, he coached at Weatherford Junior High for two years. He returned to TCU the past season as a student and freshman baseball coach while working on his master's degree.

An Editorial

Support Frog Nine

The cliché is so old and overworked it's usually not worth repeating.

But the baseball team's spirited 14-inning effort Tuesday makes it worth saying at least once more: "The game's never over till that last man's out."

And that last man gave the Frogs an 11-10 victory Tuesday over previously unbeaten Sam Houston State in the last possible minute before the game was to be called because of darkness.

During that hectic extra-inning affair, the Frogs found themselves behind 0-9 going into the bottom of the ninth inning.

While the fans in the stands joked among themselves about a "big" rally, the Frogs proceeded to create one.

They tied the game in the ninth, again in the tenth and finally won after two were out in the fourteenth.

Their incredible come-from-behind victory gave them nine wins against only one loss.

(Wednesday they again defeated the Bearkats to increase their record to 10-1.)

But more than just increasing their season record, the victory shows that the Frogs possess a vital spirit which should help them win the Southwest Conference championship.

Other teams have scored more than nine runs in one inning. Other teams have come from behind more than once to win a game in extra innings.

These same other teams are the ones who usually go on to win championships.

Winning a title entails more than just skillful playing; a team needs spirit—that certain attitude which makes them keen competitors no matter what the situation.

The Frogs displayed this spirit Tuesday; they have constantly shown their skill on the diamond.

This skill and spirit plus the support of students should combine to give TCU a championship ball club.

So far, crowds at the game have been good. If they continue and the spirit doesn't fail, look for a new trophy in the Student Center glass case next fall.

TCU Rodeo Scheduled Saturday

Thrills and spills will highlight the annual All-University Rodeo which gets under way at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the North Fort Worth Arena.

Participation in the rodeo, sponsored by the TCU Rodeo Club, is open to all students. Entry fee is $5 for each event and $3 for the girls' barrel racing event.

Students may register in the lobby of the Student Center. Deadline for entries is 1:30 today.

The rodeo will be televised by KTVT-TV, Channel 11.

"As far as we can find out, this is the first all-college rodeo ever to be televised," indicated Richard Kiker, Allison junior, president.

Winners of the regular events, including bareback riding, bull riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, and barrel racing, will receive a gold and silver belt buckle.

A sorority and fraternity goat-sacking contest will be an added feature with a trophy going to the winner. Rodeo stock will be furnished by Roland Reed Stock Contractors.

Karen Tyson, Fort Worth junior, is rodeo sweetheart.

Senior To Shoot In Archery Meet

Gary Wistrand will represent TCU at an archery meet March 30 in Shreveport. Wistrand, Fort Worth senior, took up archery last year.

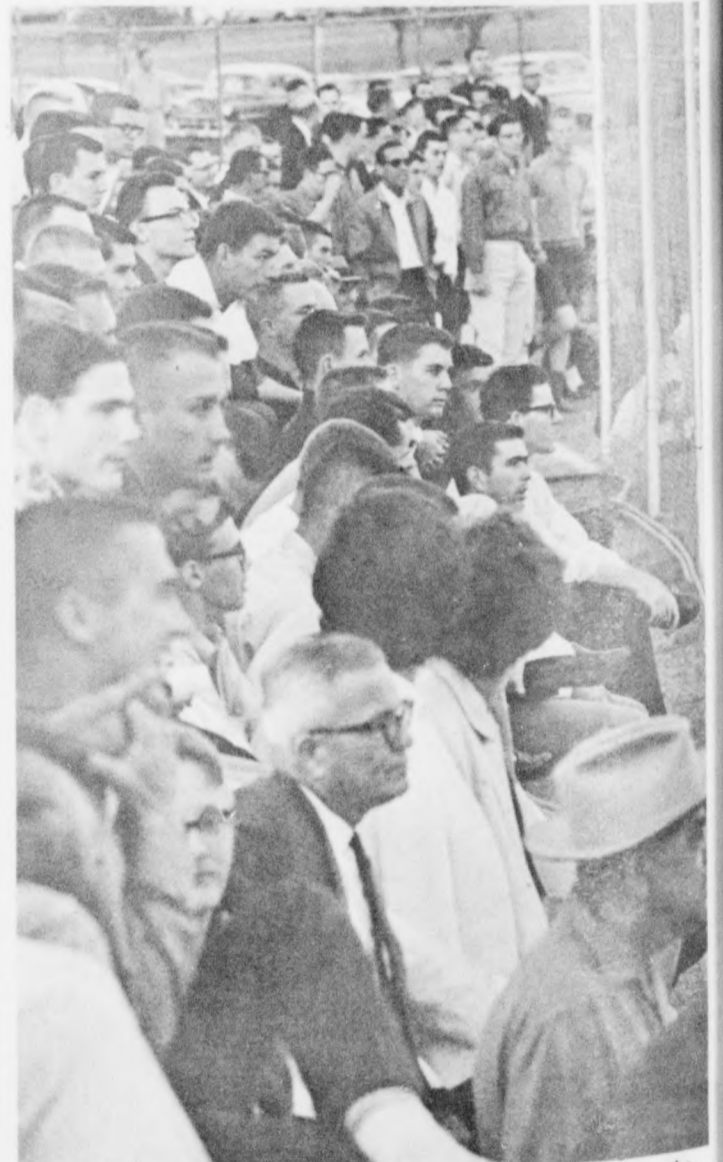

In the recent third annual Louisiana Tech Archery Meet at Ruston, La., he won second place in a target event and third place in a field event.

Wistrand took second place by scoring 391 of a possible 610 points. The targets were placed from 10 to 80 yards from the archers.

He won the third place title by scoring 656 points of a possible 810. He had 96 arrows to shoot at a 16-inch target 20 yards away.

Claton Named To Phi Kap Team

Archie Clayton, Fort Worth sophomore, was recently selected to the third squad all Phi Kap basketball team, according to Phi Kappa Sigma national headquarters.

Part of the capacity crowd at Tuesday's game looks on as the Frogs stage a ninth-inning rally to pull even with Sam Houston State. TCU won Tuesday and again Wednesday to bring its season mark to 10-1. The Purples have notched nine victories in a row.
