TCU, OPERA ANNOUNCE APPRENTICESHIPS

TCU and Fort Worth Opera Association announce an Apprentice Artist Program for Singers starting this fall, one of about half a dozen such internships in the United States. Selected candidates will enroll in TCU's Master of Music degree program in vocal performance pedagogy, and each will receive a $1,500 scholarship annually from Fort Worth Opera.

Arden Hopkin, director of opera, said the internship came about because TCU is looking for outstanding student singers for the new graduate program, a combination of intensive training in voice, opera and vocal pedagogy, while Fort Worth Opera seeks outstanding singers to perform secondary roles in its mainstage productions, appear in special community performances and sing with its chorus.

Mario Ramos, the opera's artistic director, explained, "The performing arts are of such a nature that one cannot learn except through performing practice.

You can write all you want about performing, but that is still not performing. The artist/apprentice in a large company today is the closest thing one can have to a real apprentice and master relationship. It gives the student an opportunity to learn from those who have had a great deal more experience under actual performance conditions."

Candidates must be accepted for graduate study and must set up auditions by contacting Arden at Ext. 7602. The apprentice artists may be eligible for additional financial aid from TCU.

"Of all the performing arts, opera with its synthesis of orchestra, voice, acting, spectacle and dance is the most demanding and comprehensive of art forms," said Dean George Tade. "It is important, therefore, for students to engage in one or more opera performances during their academic career." He pointed to the internship agreements with Fort Worth Opera, Casa Manana Musicals and Shakespeare in the Park as "but one indication of the enduring spirit of cooperation that exists between the University and the performing arts organizations of Fort Worth."

BRITE GETS LILLY GRANT FOR MINISTRY STUDY

Brite Divinity School is one of 40 religious organizations nationwide selected to initiate this year a plan for strengthening the quality of candidates for the ministry. The effort is being supported by $727,000 in grants from Lilly Endowment Inc., an Indianapolis-based charitable foundation with a long-standing interest in American religion.

Howard Stone, professor of pastoral care and psychology at Brite, will receive $19,828 to study changes in seminary students over the last 25 years. The obvious examples of changes in the types of persons attracted to the ministry are the large numbers of women and of second-career people in seminary now, he pointed out. He will be looking closely at ways in which second-career students differ from recent college graduates in their interests and in their goals.

Endowment officials and a panel of independent judges recommended Howard's proposal from among 200 submitted in competition. Other grantees represent a wide variety of Christian seminaries, denominations, religious orders, vocation agencies, dioceses, synods and other church structures in North America. Grants ranged from $12,000 to $20,000.

Fred Hofheinz, Lilly Endowment religion program director, said the problem of qualified ministers poses a serious challenge to denominational leadership. "Proposals selected for funding offer fresh and promising responses to one of the more important issues facing the churches of North America," he added.

Howard projects a study in six parts:

- Changes that have occurred in the last 25 years in the type of person attracted to the ministry.
- Second-career students.
- Similarities and dissimilarities in male and female seminary students.
- Liberal and conservative students.
- Those who show signs of psychopathology.
- Follow-up reviews of ministers after they have been out of seminary for five, 10 or 15 years to see if such factors as psychological tests or demographics can help seminary professors to discern who might be better ministers.

HARASSMENT'S LEGAL ASPECTS TO BE TOPIC

Legal aspects of sexual harassment will be the topic April 5 for a public event in the Student Center ballroom. Sponsored by the Faculty Senate's Select Committee on Sex Discrimination and Harassment, the program will begin at 3:30 p.m.

Fort Worth attorney B.C. Cornish will meet with the committee in the open session for consideration of laws regarding discrimination and sexist behavior in a university setting. A question-answer session will follow the discussion.

The program will be the fourth in a series sponsored by the Senate's committee to focus attention on women's issues. These are designed to assist the group as it works to define sexual harassment and then to recommend a University policy on the subject.

Refreshments will be served following the program, according to co-chair Neil Daniel.

THEATRE ENDS SEASON WITH 'MISS REARDON'

"And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little" will be Theatre TCU's April 5-10 production in University Theatre, guest-directed by Dr. Mary Anne Mitchell. The comic-sounding title masks a host of troubles.

The Paul Zindel play, a Broadway success starring Julie Harris and Estelle Parsons, is often wildly funny, yet the relationship it describes is a tortured one. Deserted by their family in childhood, the Reardon girls grew up in a household of women dominated by their mother, who has recently died.

Catherine, the Miss Reardon who drinks (played by Lauren Halyard, senior from Richland Hills), is just one of the problem-plagued family. Her sister Anna (Alison Bode of San Antonio) is on the brink of madness. A third sister, Ceil Adams (Melissa Beck of Newnan, GA), is married and supposedly normal, but when she comes back home to press the need for committing Anna to an institution, long-standing resentments burst forth.

The Steins (Karen Kunkle of Adelphi, MD, and Jack Lewis of Houston), a well-meaning but boorish neighbor couple, arrive unexpectedly and impel the action toward its shattering conclusion.

The guest director was assistant professor of theatre at Texas A&M for five years and currently teaches part-time at both TCU, where she earned bachelor's and master's degrees in theatre, and at TWC. Her Ph.D. is from Texas Tech.

A Fort Worth resident who is active on the Dallas theatre scene, Mary Anne is co-artistic director for Deep Ellum Theatre Garage, where she has directed "Fefu and Her Friends" and "Rattle-snake in a Cooler," and also has worked with Exposition Street Theatre and Greenville Avenue Theatre in Dallas. Her acting parts include the title role in "Elizabeth I" at the Deep Ellum, Colonel Reed in "Heroes Left Behind" at Stage West, the nurse in "Romeo and Juliet" at Texas Shakespeare Festival, Joanne in Theatre Arlington's "Ladies at the Alamo" and Sister Woman in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" at Fort Worth Theatre.

"And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," final Theatre TCU production for the 1987-88 season, will begin at 8 p.m. nightly April 5-9 and at 2 p.m. April 10.

GIFTS IN JANUARY TOTAL $356,179

Gifts to TCU in January totaled $356,179, according to Vice Chancellor Paul Hartman's report to the trustee development committee. This figure included:

- $176,918 to the Annual Fund for TCU;
- $73,017 restricted for special purposes;
- $25,783 for endowment;
- $80,000 with lifetime income reserved.

Alumni have continued to increase their giving to the Annual fund. As a consequence, Dr. Hartman noted, these gifts earn matching amounts from the Alumni Trustee Challenge Fund. Through January, $362,291 of the $500,000 available had been earned.

WASHINGTON SYMPOSIA OFFERED

Symposia on "Women as Leaders" and "Crisis and Choice in American Foreign Policy" will be offered in Washington, DC, this summer for college credit. Both are sponsored by The Washington Center, which also offers student housing. Information may be obtained from Gene Alpert at Ext. 7395.

The "Women as Leaders" session May 15-28 will feature such speakers as Joan D. Aikens, chair, Federal Election Committee; Heather Gradison, chair, Interstate Commerce Commission; Democratic representatives Lindy Boggs of Louisiana and Elizabeth Patterson of South Carolina; Althea T.L. Simmons, director and chief lobbyist, Washington bureau, NAACP; and retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Wilma Vaught.

The foreign policy session is Aug. 14-26, and speakers will include William Colby, former director of the CIA; John C. Whitehead, deputy secretary of state; Dr. Lawrence Korb, former assistant secretary of defense now associated with The Brookings Institution; and two associates of the Center for Strategic and International Studies, Dr. Robert Hunter, director of European studies, and Alice Young, coordinator of Soviet studies.

FROGS REACH HIGHEST MARK IN SWC MEET

In setting eight school records, Frog swimmers scored the most points ever by a TCU team in the Southwest Conference meet held in Austin earlier this month. A total of 308 points put TCU competitors in the No. 5 spot in the meet.

Records set included a 200 individual medley by Kevin Irion; 50 freestyle, Doug Ellis; 100 breaststroke, Scott Steele, who missed the NCAA cut by .05; 100 freestyle, Ellis; 200 butterfly, Steve Reed. The 400 medley record was set by Brent Sawyer, Steele, Reed and Ellis, who missed the NCAA cut by only .6. Ellis, Reed, Ken Ralph and Steve Kellam set a record in the 800 freestyle, while the 400 free relay mark was set by Keith Ludwick, Robbie Barron, Ellis and Reed.

TCU qualified for the U.S. National swimming competition in these eight categories as well as Ludwick in the 50 free, Ellis and Reed in the 100 butterfly and Steele in the 200 breaststroke.

Coach Richard Sybesma credits team spirit and togetherness with the results, noting that "this is by far the best the men's team has ever done in SWC competition." He also noted that only senior Scott Tobin will not be returning next year.

FIESLER M.F.A. SHOW OPENS MONDAY

Still life paintings by Fort Worth artist Dolores Fiesler will be on display Monday through April 9 in Moudy Building Exhibition Hall. Ms. Fiesler's Master of Fine Arts thesis exhibition will be open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and from 1 to 4 p.m. April 9.

Current president of the Committee for an Artist's Center, Ms. Fiesler has had paintings in a number of juried exhibitions, including CAC competitions, Texas Fine Arts Association Region XV citation show, Texas Fine Arts Association's "Texas Only" show, D.W. Gallery in Dallas and Art in the Metroplex 1984.

Her painting, she said, is about painting. "I am interested in the balance between realism and abstract in a traditional still life format." Her paintings can be interpreted on several levels. A woman's high-heeled shoe, for example, is a universally recognized article of clothing, "but it can also be a symbol for myself." A graceful coffee pot placed on a table is just that, but if it is placed on a box, then on a table, it can become an icon, she pointed out. "I like to set up dramas as if the still life table is a stage."

BRIEFING, FORUM SET FOR CLARK SOCIETY

The public presentation by Dr. Henry Kissinger on Thursday will be preceded by a briefing session and buffet reception for TCU's Addison and Randolph Clark Society. Coming to campus for their spring event, members of the organization of major donors will gather at 6 p.m. in the Moudy Building.

History professor Frank Reuter, a specialist in diplomatic history of the United States, will discuss Kissinger's background as former secretary of state under two presidents and assistant to the president for National Security Affairs. A question-answer session will follow. Introducing Frank will be Clark Society chairman J. Maurice Price Jr. of Dallas.

Following the buffet reception, Clark Society members will be seated in a special section for the 7:30 p.m. presentation by Kissinger, Nobel Peace Prize recipient who was appointed by President Reagan in 1983 to chair the National Bipartisan Commission on Central America.

The public presentation is the initial event in the Distinguished Speakers Forum sponsored by Texas American Bank in cooperation with TCU and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

CONVENTION CLASSES TO HEAR SCHIEFFER, BOLLER

CBS television newsmen Bob Schieffer and popular presidential author Paul Boller have been added to the faculty for unusual college courses at the Democratic and Republican nominating conventions this summer.

The courses, sponsored by The Washington Center and available here for either undergraduate or Master of Liberal Arts credit, will be held July 10-22 in Atlanta for the Democratic Convention or Aug. 7-19 in New Orleans for the Republican Convention. Schieffer, a TCU graduate, and Paul, emeritus professor of history at TCU and author of "Presidential Anecdotes," "Presidential Campaigns" and the new "Presidential Wives," join a faculty of party and convention officials, office holders and candidates, political consultants, campaign aides, journalists and scholars.

Students will be assigned fieldwork with party and convention officials, public officials, political consultants, media organizations, state delegations and other officially recognized convention participants and will be invited to attend official party and candidate functions.

Application deadline for the convention classes is April 15, and information may be obtained from Gene Alpert, Box 32873 or Ext. 7395.

VALCOUR QUARTET WILL PERFORM MONDAY

The Valcour String Quartet, quartet-in-residence at the University of Arizona, will perform a free concert at 8 p.m. Monday 4 in Ed Landreth Auditorium, the last in TCU's "Celebration of String Quartets" series made possible by a gift from Mrs. Dora Lee Langdon of Granbury.

Program will include Hugo Wolf's Italian Serenade, Bela Bartok's String Quartet No. 2, Op. 17, and Beethoven's String Quartet in E flat major, Op. 74.

The Valcour, founded in 1983, won the 1986 national auditions for the Emerging String Quartet Residency Program at the Arizona university, a program designed to help launch the career of a young string group. Prior to the Arizona residency, the group was for three years quartet-in-residence with the Baton Rouge Symphony Orchestra and served as frequent performers and guest lecturers at Louisiana State University. In 1984 the Valcour was featured by Louisiana Public Broadcasting in a television performance at the Louisiana governor's mansion.

Sara Parkins, first violinist with the group, received her training at Juilliard, the Curtis Institute of Music and the San Francisco Conservatory. A prize-winner in the 1986 Irving Klein String Competition and winner of the Napa Valley String Award, Plymouth Symphony Competition and the Oakway Symphony Young Artists Competition, she joined the Valcour in 1986.

An original and co-founding member of the quartet with Scott Hosfeld, second violinist Marcia Kaufmann is a graduate of Manhattan School of Music, where she received the Helena Rubinstein Award. As a founding member of the Sartory String Quartet, she performed at Alice Tully and Avery Fisher halls. Violist Hosfeld also is a Manhattan School of Music alumnus and, while living in New York, was violist with the Riverside String Quartet, which presented a Carnegie Hall debut recital to critical acclaim.

Heather Hay, cellist, holds degrees from Queen's University in Kingston, Ontario, and the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, where she was an assistant in the chamber music program. Prior to joining the Valcour in 1986, she was principal cellist with the Santa Cruz Symphony and the Saskatoon Symphony.

JUST A FEW REMINDERS...

...Dr. Kitty Dickerson of the University of Missouri, a Visiting Green Professor this week in design and fashion, will speak at 4 p.m. today on "The Difficulty in Managing International Textile and Apparel Trade," Bass Building Room 306.

..."Research That Launched the 'Crafted with Pride in USA' Campaign" will be Dr. Dickerson's topic for a public program tomorrow (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. in Moudy Building 141N.

...TCU Yucatan-Mayan Culture Week officially opens with a fiesta and reception tonight (Tuesday) from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Student Center gallery and lounge. Other events of the week are listed in the Bulletin calendar.

KING GRANT APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE

Applications for the Martin Luther King Jr. Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office and must be completed and returned to that office by April 15.

Students selected must have expressed commitment to a career in service to humanity, broadly defined, and preference will be given to minority applicants. Applicants should have a minimum TCU cumulative grade-point average of 3.0, and financial eligibility must be demonstrated. Applicants must include an essay on career plans plus two letters of recommendation.

Information about the scholarships or about joining other TCU faculty and staff in donating to the King scholarship fund is available from Andy Fort in religion-studies, Ext. 7440, Box 30772.

EXTENDED EDUCATION OFFERS SPRING CLASSES

Record enrollment meant the closing of 28 Extended Education classes this semester. This represented the largest number of classes ever to be filled to capacity, according to Mary Howell, director of community and professional programs.

Despite the large response there are still openings in several classes being offered in April and May. Upcoming classes include "Maintain and Troubleshoot Your Own PC," "Auto Awareness Clinic," "Word Perfect," "Poorman's Desktop Publishing" and "Genealogy on Your Microcomputer."

Many classes are offered to TCU faculty and staff for half price. Additional information may be obtained by calling Extended Education, Ext. 7134.

FEDERAL WORK/STUDY UNAVAILABLE FOR SUMMER

The federal portion of the College Work/Study allocation has been exhausted due to its use during the academic year. As a result, the program will not be available for the summer, announced student employment coordinator Dolores Oelfke. The Student Employment Office will assist departments and offices in finding student employees for the summer. The department or office will have to pay 100 percent of the salary for these students.

Requests for student employees for the summer are now being accepted, she said. New payroll paperwork will be needed for student employees planning to work this summer. Students can pick up the necessary payroll papers in Sadler Hall Room 106.

Additional information is available by contacting Dolores at Ext. 7858.

MAYAN PHOTOS GO ON DISPLAY TODAY

Photographs by Humberto Suaste, newly named New York Times graphic correspondent in Mexico, will be on display through April 16 as part of Yucatan-Mayan Culture Week.

"Life and Faces of Today's Mayas" is the theme of the showing, opening with a reception from 4 to 6 p.m. today (Tuesday) in the Brown-Lupton Student Center Gallery. Subsequent hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and 1 to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Suaste, born in Champoton, Campeche, Mexico, studied photography in the United States in the late 1970s. An award winner in international photography contests, he has taught photography at the Institute for Cultural Advancement in San Luis Potosi and at Metropolitan University in Mexico City.

He has been particularly active in photography exhibitions at the University of Yucatan. Suaste's works were shown at a New York gallery from October through December 1987. In 1986 Suaste photographed a set of postcards entitled "Images of Yucatan." His images were included in "Windows on Latin America," published last year by the North-South Center at the University of Miami, and he has had 15 photo essays published in the magazine Yucatan: History and Economy.

KELLY HONORED BY HONORS REGION

Jim Kelly, who directed TCU's Honors Program for six and a half years before his retirement from the program last December, was honored recently for his service to the Great Plains Region of the National Collegiate Honors Council.

Jim, who served as president of the seven-state region in 1983-84 and hosted the 1984 regional conference, was presented a framed commendation for his service and support by the current president, Dr. William Whipple, director of the Honors Program at the University of Arkansas, during the 1988 conference in Overland Park, KS.

David Hedgepeth, chair of the TCU Honors Program Student Cabinet, and assistant to the director Sally Bohon presented a workshop for the conference entitled "Pinnacles and Pratfalls: The Art of Collaborative Planning," which detailed University-wide planning strategies of the Fall Honors Retreat and Honors Week. David was awarded a $100 travel grant by the program committee.

EGG HUNT SET FOR MARCH 30

Residents of Colby Hall will join with Panhellenic to sponsor an Easter egg hunt tomorrow (Wednesday). Planned for children though fifth grade age, the event will include prizes for eggs found and a visit from the Easter bunny.

The children are to meet in the Colby Hall lobby at 5 p.m., and activities will begin at 5:15 p.m. in the area behind the residence hall. Participants are asked to bring their own baskets.

LIBRARY TO HOST CD-ROM TELECONFERENCE

On April 27 Mary Couts Burnett Library will host a TAGER/AHE CD-ROM teleconference sponsored by the Association of College and Research Libraries and the Community College Association for Instruction and Technology. Librarian Fred Heath says the library will pay the $5 fee for all TCU registrants.

The 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. program, originating from the studios of Oakton Community College in Des Plaines, IL, will feature vendor presentations of representative CD-ROM products which currently provide public access catalogs, reference and collection development tools, library and financial services, cataloging support and major online databases.

Registration is limited to 30 staff members from the library and Instructional Services plus 10 spaces for other TCU and off-campus personnel. Persons interested in the teleconference should call the library administrative office at Ext. 7106 by Thursday.

AIR FORCE RECRUITER TO VISIT CAMPUS

An Air Force specialty van will be parked outside the Student Center Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to acquaint interested students with various career opportunities available in the Air Force.

The van has a mini-theater for viewing a short film on several Air Force technical specialties. A recruiter will be available to answer questions, discuss qualifications and present information on specific programs and the curriculum at the Air Force Officer Training School and at Air Force ROTC.

TRUSTEES OK INCREASE FOR ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

Though it plans to hold enrollment at the current level despite another upsurge in applicants, TCU will spend about 10 percent more to enhance its academic program next year. The budget was approved by the board of trustees, which met campus today Friday. The operating budget of almost $82 million maintains non-academic services at "an acceptable level," while major increases will be made to the instructional program and services that directly support it.

Chancellor Bill Tucker pointed out that while reaching a student body of about 7,000--the size at which enrollment is now controlled--TCU also has attracted more-qualified student applicants. "We have earned our growing reputation," he said. "Even so, improvement in academic programs and support must be our paramount concern if we are to climb above our current level of quality and vitality."

Among additions next year will be five new faculty positions and increases of 22 percent or more for library acquisitions, for faculty research grants and stipends for doctoral students. The budget for instructional and research equipment will be almost doubled. And an academic services center offering students professional help in writing skills and academic counseling will be in full operation.

To help pay for the improvements, student charges will rise by about 7 1/2 percent, with undergraduate tuition at $195 a semester hour compared to $180 this year. Estimated annual cost of a full-time student living on campus next year is about $9,750 plus personal expenses and travel costs.

"Our increases have been on the low side the last few years compared to that of other independent institutions," Tucker said. "We are probably at mid-range compared to other schools this year." Tuition and student fees account for less than 60 percent of the educational and general expenses at TCU; the remainder comes primarily from endowment income and annual gifts.

Budget to Grow by 6 Percent

The budget was a central item at the board meeting. It is 6 percent above that approved a year ago. The 10 percent increase in expenditures for academic programs means a smaller increase for physical plant and other operations.

The board took other action during its annual spring meeting.

--Five new trustees were named to the 50-member governing body: Dr. James I. Cash, a professor at Harvard Business School and former TCU basketball star; Clark A. Johnson of Fort Worth, president and chief executive officer of Pier 1 Imports; Dee Potter (Mrs. Edward W. III) Rose, a Dallas civic leader and TCU graduate; Ann (Mrs. Jon Rex) Jones, an active churchwoman and community leader in Albany, TX; and Dr. Martha Hackley Salmon, former president of the TCU Alumni Association who is with the College Board in Austin.

- The board re-elected Bayard H. Friedman of Fort Worth as its chairman and Vernon S. Smith of Dallas as its vice chairman.
- Meeting not far from where the new Tandy Hall is being added to M.J. Neeley School of Business, trustees were told that its construction is scheduled for completion in mid-July; renovation of the Neeley School's current quarters in Dan Rogers Hall is set to begin June 13. Construction of Moncrief Hall, which will house 224 students, is also on schedule and should be ready for occupancy this fall.
- Trustees learned that more than 2,250 alumni had increased their gifts to The Annual Fund as a response to a challenge made by 17 alumni members of the board last fall. The alumni trustees pledged to give up to $500,000 to student financial aid and scholarship programs by matching increases in gifts from other alumni. Through the end of February, other alumni had "earned" almost $400,000 of the challenge fund.

Chancellor Tucker's report to the board was almost identical to the report he made earlier this month to the Faculty Assembly. "I wanted to make sure that everybody had the same understanding of my perspective of the TCU agenda," he said.

Concerning salaries of faculty and staff, he repeated to the trustees that "we must guard against falling below the standard we set for ourselves and achieved." The approved budget provides funds for performance or merit-based increases averaging 5 percent for all continuing personnel.

Promotions for 17, Tenure for 16

The board approved faculty for the promotions, tenure and emeritus status as recommended.

Promoted to the rank of professor were Don Coerver of history, Andrew Miracle of sociology/anthropology and Lawrence Peters of management.

New associate professors are Claudia Camp of religion-studies, Lee Daniel of Spanish, Andy Fort of religion-studies, Richard Galvin of philosophy, Kyle Hoagland of biology, Fred Oberkircher III of design and fashion, Jim Riddlesperger of political science, Bill Moncrief of marketing, Cherie Lohr of education, Anantha Babbili of journalism, Bob Blanton of music, Jennifer Watson of communication pathology, Harriet Risk Woldt of music and Rhonda Keen Payne of nursing.

Tenure was granted to Hoagland, Nowell Donovan of geology, Daniel, Galvin, Riddlesperger and Eugene Boring, Camp, Fort of religion-studies; also to Moncrief, Peters, Lohr and Kathleen Martin of education; Babbili, journalism; Sheila Allen and Blanton of music, Watson and Keen-Payne.

Granted emeritus status were Arthur Berliner of social work, Maurice Boyd of history, Walter Naff of Brite, Walton Rothrock of French, Fernando Schaffenburg of ballet, McKie Trotter of art and John Wortham of economics.

NOTES ON FOLKS

Vice Chancellor Emeritus JAMES NEWCOMER has been elected to membership in the Institute Grand-Ducal of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, an organization made up of scholars in the arts and sciences.

TCU music preparatory trumpet student ROY HARGROVE, a student of KERRY HUGHES, was featured artist at Caravan of Dreams March 17-20, backed by a New York rhythm section. The performances, featuring Roy's original compositions, were to be recorded each night for a live album release on the Caravan label. The 18-year-old Dallas youth will be in New York April 20 to record his first solo album for Blue Note, the prestigious jazz label. In May he will perform at jazz festivals in Holland and in Tokyo. Kerry was commissioned as Roy's coach by trumpet virtuoso Wynton Marsalis.

The Winter 1988 issue of Encounter: Creative Theological Scholarship published an article by NADIA LAHUTSKY (religion-studies) entitled "'So God Created Man in His Own Image, In the Image of God He Created Him: Male and Female He Created Them'--Shaker Reflections on the Nature of God."

EUGENE BORING, Bradford Professor of Religion-Studies, is just back from Memphis, TN, where he was the first of the Lindenwood Lyceum speakers. His topic, "The Book of Revelation," was an exploration of the content and intent of the Book of Revelation as a witness to our time, but not about it. He used lecture, discussion and insights to overcome popular misunderstanding and hesitations concerning the book.

JOHN BREYER (geology) and former graduate students MITCH ANDERSON, TOM BULLING and BILL SMITH presented three talks at the recent annual meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists in Houston. The talks were entitled "Depositional Sequences and Hydrocarbon Exploration in the Wilcox Group in South Texas," "Exploring for Subtle Traps with High Resolution Paleogeographic Maps" and "Sequence Stratigraphy and Hydrocarbon Exploration: The Updip Wilcox Trend in South Texas."

On March 5 DON FRISCHMANN, ARTURO FLORES and PEGGY WATSON (modern languages) hosted the 1988 National Spanish Exam. Attending the event, which was preceded by a continental breakfast, were 75 of Fort Worth's top high school Spanish students and their teachers. The exam is a yearly project of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese.

On several recent Saturdays MICHAEL WINESANKER (emeritus, music) served as adjudicator for the Fort Worth Piano Teachers Forum Sonata Festival and the Texas Federation of Music Clubs Junior Festival. Piano students from elementary to advanced levels each played two specific pieces and were later given ratings and written critiques in the sessions held on campus. Among some 200 students heard in audition were a number of TCU faculty children.

CYNTHIA FOLIO (music) presented a Sunday Afternoon Musical Preview March 6 under the sponsorship of the International Friends of the Van Cliburn Competition. In late February Cynthia gave a flute clinic at Memorial High School in McAllen, where she rehearsed the flute section from the concert band.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

TOMMY THOMASON (journalism) is participating in a series of workshops for first-through-third grade ESL teachers in the Dallas Independent School District. He is leading workshop sessions on "The Writing Process" for the class, which continues for 12 weeks.

JIM BAUMLIN (English) presented a paper at the John Donne Society Conference in Gulfport, MS, in February entitled "Donne's Poetics of Absence: Epistolography and the Theology of Language." An expanded version of the paper will be published in the summer issue of the John Donne Journal.

ANDY MIRACLE (sociology) has been invited to serve as the external examiner on a Ph.D. dissertation committee for the department of sociology at University of Waterloo. The dissertation is in the area of sport sociology. Andy will be flying to Ontario soon to attend the defense.

"A Care Package for Undergraduate Mathematics Students," an article by BOB DORAN (math), will be published in the spring issue of the journal Mathematics in College. The article describes some of the classroom techniques and teaching methods Bob has found to be helpful in encouraging students to learn math.

MARK THISTLETHWAITE (art history) presented a lecture on "Critical Situations: Art Writing in a Post-Modern Age" at the University of Nebraska-Omaha. He will return there in mid-May to take part in an interdisciplinary program organized by the University of Nebraska and funded by the Getty Trust to develop methodologies appropriate for discipline-based art education. Mark will be responsible for the art criticism component.
