Dear Sir:

Thank you, indeed for wading thru my perhaps/^{boring}description of the efforts to establish the history of the meteorite in the possessions of the late Dr. J. E.
Hawkins.

I will certainly contact the two sources you recommended. Thanks.

I never heard of a meteorite being identified in any Indian remains in Texas. You might keep the possibility in mind. Some were found in Ohio mounds years ago. One was found near Winona, Arizona, carefully wrapped. There is also a well known example from Mexico, where the object had been treated as sacred, or at least was in a tomb, the Casas Grandes iron.

Sincerely,
