

Aggie Special Leaves 7:30 a. m.

Trying to convince themselves Memphis isn't such a grand city after all, throngs of T.C.U. reporters are digging into their bags and preparing to board a special train to College Station tomorrow.

Leaving at 7:30 a. m., the special train is scheduled to arrive in Aggieland at 12:15 p. m. Round trip tickets are $35.

President Otto Nielsen announced that all classes will be missed tomorrow.

At the time of the student poll week end—which favored Memphis three to one—it was not known that the band could not be taken to Memphis. At a meeting yesterday between Bill Hooser, student body president, and Administration officials, it was agreed the A. & M. trip would be the logical alternative.

"The Board of Trustees agreed some time ago," President M. E. Sadler said, "to send the band to all out-of-town conference games only. One exception to that ruling has been made already this term (the Oklahoma A. & M. game at Stillwater). We would not feel justified in asking that a second exception be made—at a cost of several thousand dollars."

Breakfast will be served from 6:15 to 7:30 a. m. tomorrow, according to Mrs. Helen Orbeck, dietician. Buses will be available to take students to the Santa Fe station from the campus.

Concessions on the train will be handled by Alpha Phi Omega, states Gene McCluney, Fort Worth senior and president of the organization.

Dormitory girls who are planning to travel by auto to the Frog-Aggie game must have the driver of the car contact Miss Elizabeth Shelburne, dean of women.

The University will not assume responsibility for students journeying in their own cars, says Dean Shelburne.

Quite a welcome has been outlined by the Aggies. A reception for the Horned Frog band by the A. & M. band will be in order, according to a report from the Farmer campus.

T. C. U. cheerleaders have been invited to a lunch tomorrow by Aggie yellers, while Bill Parse, A. & M. Student Senate president, will be host to Hooser.

For early arrivers, the 7th Regimental Ball will be held from 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock tonight in the ballroom of the Student Memorial. Immediately after, a midnight yell practice for the Ags will be held at the Grove.

Another dance—all-college—will be held from 9 p. m. to 12 midnight tomorrow in S.B. Messhall. It is a stag or drag affair, and T. C. U. students need only to have their activity cards for admission.

Facilities will be provided for a noon meal tomorrow at Duncan Hall before the game. Meal tickets can be purchased at the door.

An information booth will be located in the Student Memorial Center for Frog visitors. The A. & M. Student Union building will be open at all times. All lounges in the dormitories also will be open.

The student train will return to Fort Worth immediately after the dance tomorrow night. It is expected to arrive here by 5 a. m. Sunday.

An Aggie welcoming delegation was on the T. C. U. campus Tuesday to outline reception plans. The delegation included Doyle Griffin of Longview, Bill Moss of Bryan, Tom Jewell of Sharon, Pa., and Dan Davis of Lubbock.

Mabel—Stop Him!

Heman, as Mabel, is trying to stop a "poetic sacrifice" by her boy friend, Bill Lewis (right). John West is the bewildered poet in "Three Men On a Horse" which begins Tuesday night in the Theater. (Skiffoto by Bobby Griffin).

Much Balderdash, But . . .

'Three Men' Saved By Good Acting, Directing

BY ROBERT MCGUIRK

Wednesday we watched "Three Men On a Horse" in the Theater, and came away with the impression that playwrights Mabel and Abbott had dredged up much balderdash. Briefly, the plot (?) concerns a Milquetoast who composes jingles and a genius for picking winning numbers. His home life (and the play) is afflicted with a wife and a brother-in-law who flutters a la Greenwich Village. After the opening scene, Erwin finds his way to a bar, meets three lads and a of words like 'hell' and 'damn,' and the age-old leitmotif of sex is developed by parading Mabel's libido around in double entendre innuendoes. In a word, Sophocles and Aeschylus would have spit on such trivia.

Young, petite, fiery director Roberta Baker has dished up, out of the hogwash, malarkey and putrid material she had to work with, an atmosphere of gay and frothy nonsense, an evening of fresh charm. Miss Baker, to wit, has performed a miracle. You will see one of the worst plays ever written but at the same time witness the transformation a brilliant talent for directing can lend to what Shakespeare would have called 'Much Ado About Nothing.'

Fred Hoskins, as the bartender, leads humor to a role that has no humor in it, and makes you wish he had more to do and say. Nancy Heman as Mabel is hilarious. A natural voluptuary, she acts with the aplomb and floozieness of a Maizie and, at future performances, should "bring down the house" with her vulgar and highly refreshing shimmy dance. Even when shading her delivery with Brooklynese, Nancy has beautiful diction; you catch every syllable.

Directory Prospects Are Bright

Prospects of securing a student directory at an early date were boosted at a meeting of congress Monday.

Bill Hooser, Student Association president, instructed Leland L. Coggan, Kirkwood, Mo., sophomore, to investigate the possibility of obtaining advertising sponsors for the project.

Hooser also directed Carl E. Graner Jr. and David E. Trevena, members of the welfare committee, to investigate an alleged irregularity in the Oct. 4 election.

A motion to appoint five members to the Student Union Committee and a rider to restrict a Student Association president's service on the committee to his tenure as president was tabled.

Bill Hamilton, former president of the Student Association, stated that the $25,000 Student Lounge will be opened formally next Saturday.

Treasurer J. Rodney Lee reported that the summer congress left $35 in the treasury and an unpaid internal revenue bill for $10.66.

Coke Bottles Disappearing; Lounge Profits Going, Too

Like the "hidden quart that goes up into the motor and never drains away" Coca Cola bottles are disappearing from vending machines on the campus.

The lounge paid for 145 cases of Coca Cola bottles lost during September, according to Bill Bishop, lounge manager.

"Students are carrying Cokes into their rooms and forgetting to return the empty bottles," Bishop says.

Taken collectively, the four barracks accounted for the greatest number of strayed pop bottles. Thirty-four cases of bottles were missing from a machine located for the use of students there.

Goode Hall was named individually for the loss of 25 cases of bottles. Waits Hall lost 22 cases, Foster Hall 14 and the remainder disappeared from other machines placed on the campus.

The Coca Cola company expects, and allows for, a five percent loss of bottles. All except one machine location exceeded the normal figure.

"We lost $72.50 on those bottles last month," Bishop moans. "If students do not return the empties the lounge profits (which are applied to student lounge improvements) will be reduced that much every month."

T. C. U. to Be Host To YMCA Program

T. C. U. will be host tomorrow to approximately 100 high school juniors and seniors who will meet in a "Youth and Government" program sponsored by the Y. M. C. A.

Students from high schools within a 150-mile radius are expected to attend.

Among those scheduled to take part in an open panel discussion are Dr. Edwin Elliott, area supervisor of the National Labor Relations Board; State Representative Keith Kelley; and Doctors W. J. Hammond and Comer Clay of T. C. U.

The program will begin at 9 a. m. and end at 5:30 p. m.

CAMPUS NEWSBRIEFS

A new assignment was given to Dr. E. M. Sowell, dean of the School of Business, while attending a junior college conference at Texas A. & M. last week.

Dean Sowell was appointed chairman of a committee which will make a study of the first two years' curricula of colleges and universities concerning business administration majors.

The committee will make a survey of courses and determine to what degree they are transferable. A complete report, the dean said, is to be ready by Oct. 1951.

Registrar S. W. Hutton is attending an annual convention of the Texas Association of Collegiate Registrars at the Shamrock Hotel, Houston. The three-day session ends tomorrow.

Miss Ruth Ann McLendon, B. A. '49, has been awarded a $1500 Soroptomist fellowship at Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Medford, Mass. The school is affiliated with Harvard University.

T. C. U. physics faculty members and student assistants will attend a lecture by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, vice-president of the board of trustees at the California Institute of Technology, at 7:45 p. m. tomorrow at the First Congregational Church.

Three faculty members of the speech-drama department are attending the Southwest Theater Conference at the Baylor Theater in Waco this weekend.

Dr. E. L. Pross, chairman of the department; Dr. Walther Volbach, associate professor; and S. Walker James, instructor, left yesterday for the meeting.

Monitors Are Studying Personality Development

Dormitory monitors are studying personality development in classes conducted every Monday at 5:30 p. m. by R. S. Wetherell, dean of men.

Object of the course, says the dean, is to aid the monitors in their own personal development, and make them more useful in helping others to live full lives.

Oct. 30 Is Deadline For Club Pictures

Deadline for having club pictures made for the annual will be Oct. 30, announces Clyde Moore, club editor.

Clubs will be featured in group pictures which may be made either by school or professional photographers. In either case Jimmy Paschal, Horned Frog editor, should be contacted before the picture is made.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENTS

Although last week's opinion poll revealed that a majority of the students favored Memphis over College Station for this year's student body trip, Aggieland was chosen.

Hello Aggies!

So Long Memphis

For the benefit of some few malcontents who are complaining about the selection, we would like to point out that the poll was taken with the understanding that the choice would have to be approved by the Administration.

The trip to Memphis was ruled out for two good reasons. First, the band would be unable to go because of a previous agreement with the Board, which voted last spring to send the band to all conference games. Later the Board ruled that the band might also go to Oklahoma A. & M., provided that this would be the only addition made to the list.

In the second place, the Administration felt that, because of the distance and expense, a large delegation of students probably would not be on hand. And if only a few went, the dismissal of classes could not be justified.

All this last-minute confusion about the student trip points up one thing to us—the spring congress should work on plans for the next fall trip as soon as the Southwest Conference releases its calendar for the following year.

Maybe then, with plans made far in advance, the band, cheerleaders and students could all get together on a trip with comparatively little trouble.

He Wasn't Joking

The time for Horned Frog class pictures has come and gone, and too many have found out—too late—that Editor Jimmy Paschal wasn't joking when he said there would be no extension of the deadline.

Approximately 1500 students—far less than half of T. C. U.'s enrollment—will have class pictures in the 1951 Horned Frog. Though this is a poor percentage, still it is only 400 less than last year's record 1900.

Paschal is to be commended for his steadfast refusal to extend the original deadline. By sticking to his policy, he probably will have his yearbook in the hands of the students by April.

Most of the criticism of the Horned Frog picture set-up this year seems to come from seniors, most of whom can't understand why they were stuck for $2 for both a cap-and-gown picture and a regular shot.

In the past, the seniors' regular pictures were used in the club section of the annual, where group shots will be placed this year. Only the few class and club officers will have individual photos, and they are definitely in the minority.

Seems to us as if they might have had only the cap-and-gown pictures taken of seniors. After officers were chosen, they could have had another shot made.

As it is, those who didn't get elected are "just out a buck."

Letter to the Editor

No Can See

To the Editor:

This letter probably should be written to the powers that be, but I think a direct response to its subject on the part of the students will have a better effect in the long run.

A very peculiar law has existed on this campus for as long as I have been here. This law states that people are not allowed to visit people of the opposite sex in the Infirmary. Now, there were and are, undoubtedly, some good reasons for making this law, but I just fail to see them. I also fail to see that they compensate for the frustration and anxiety they cause many individuals.

I have talked with students of both sexes concerning this peculiar law and have yet to find one who agrees with it. Every one of them has wondered why such a stupid thing exists in the first place, since practically no hospitals have such a ruling. No one has yet stayed in the Infirmary long enough to arouse a protest from anyone interested in their welfare, but that day will come, and it seems to me that a repeal of the law should take place before it happens.

The Student Congress showed last year, through the wage-scale plan, that it is a powerful influence in campus welfare and policy. I strongly suggest to the congress of this year that measures be taken immediately to have this quirk in the rules—that be corrected.

Add this item to the list of things the world would be better off without: The loud-mouthed drunk at a football game.

Unfortunately, it was this wri(?)ter's experience to be seated next to a gentleman given to the drinking of alcoholic beverages at a recent T.C.U. football skirmish. The Frogs were playing Arkansas, or Eufala Normal, I have forgotten which. That is beside the point.

What I am getting at is this—I had a terrible evening. He had a wonderful time. Twenty-four thousand other persons probably had a pleasant evening, but then they weren't sitting next to Ray Milland. I was.

I decided to play it cool and not strike up a conversation with the individual, but the elements were against me. First time the Frogs made a substantial gain through the line, a rather large, meaty paw expressed approval by bashing in the small of my back. "Yeeeeooooow. We got 'em in the can, eh Jack?" He had a voice like a cement mixer.

"How 'bout a quickie, Jack?"

'Fateful' Day November 13; Grades Due

Nov. 13 could be a fateful day for some students on the campus. That is the day mid-semester grades will be due.

Dr. Thomas Richardson, dean of students, explained that students who have been admitted on scholastic probation and those continued on probation from the last semester are facing a critical deadline date.

The Dean emphasized that students who have been deferred from selective service on the basis of being enrolled in the University should make every effort to keep their scholastic status satisfactory.

The deferment regulation states that the student may be deferred for nine months or until he ceases to do satisfactory work.

Dr. Richardson said he would be glad to assist students who need counseling.

Uchida Is Rotary Guest

Sono Uchida, foreign student from Naruomura, Japan, will be a guest of the Fort Worth Rotary Club at its noon meeting today.

Just a short snort before the touchdown, huh?" He went ahead and took his, not waiting for an answer.

A quarter of this passed. I was obliged to lend him my lighter, perhaps a dozen cigarettes, my program (with names and numbers of all the players), and, had I not been saved by an excuse to visit the men's room, the shirt off my back probably would have been next.

We decided I would join his party when I had the correct change for two cokes. (He didn't want to break a dollar.) Ordinarily, I don't join parties of this sort, but he was very insistent. Besides, I had to figure some way to get back my shoulder blade.

The two of us celebrated the Frogs' first touchdown by scuffing up my just-polished Nunn-Bushes, and engaging in a hearty hand-shake, the likes of which I haven't felt since my last fall with Man Mountain Dean.

I decided to get into the conversation in the third period. "Haven't we met under a table somewhere?" I inquired.

His answer could have been "yes," but more than likely it was a belch. At least the people in front of us took it for that and decided to leave early and avoid the rush.

"Hey, dis Bartosh is okay, uh?" he slobbered, as mighty Gilbert beat a path through a posse of would-be tacklers.

"Bartosh!" I corrected. "O-s-h, not o-s-s." It should have been easy for him.

"Anyway ya spell it da kid's got a style," the character screamed, not caring how many writers in the press box quoted him.

Turning down 47 more drinks, I passed the time by reciting some proverbs. "If you drink, don't drive, if you drive, don't drink. . . Fool's names and fool's faces are. . ." Presently, Mr. Bartosh was thrown for a slight loss, trying a small hole over guard. The reaction was equal to that of the first Frisco quake.

"Geez, what a drip that Bartosh is," he bellowed. "I wouldn't put him on my cheese-it team." And there followed two straight shots. "Bartosh," I corrected feebly. "By the way, how is the chandelier business?" I felt mean.

He drowned his sorrows and the right leg of my trousers with his next toast. Feeling bad over the accident, he offered to make it up by giving me a drink.

By now I honestly felt like taking it, but I told him I'd settle for the correct pronunciation of Bartosh. He retaliated with two quick toasts to the Frogs, who, I might add, were on their merry way to winning him a sawbuck on the U-Pic-Em cards.

By now the game was almost over. And to avoid the task of pouring him into a cab, I excused myself simply with a jolly pat on the back. "Well, gotta run. Don't take any wooden bottles."

I left him leading a group of cheers for the Frogs, George Washington, the Preamble, the New Deal and Auld Lang Syne. I never worry about his kind. For him, life is just a bed of roses—four roses.

Crenshaw Is Disappointed

First Lecture of Season Draws Only 30 Students

There's a long face on Dr. Troy C. Crenshaw this week. He's chairman of the lectures and concerts committee, and the first lecture of the season was a big flop so far as attendance was concerned.

Only about 30 students went to hear Dr. Eddy Asirvatham of Madras, India, when he spoke in Ed Landreth Auditorium Oct. 12. There was a total attendance of about 160 persons.

"I think the fact that Asirvatham is not widely known in this area partly accounts for the poor attendance," said Dr. Crenshaw.

And yet 4000 students in Denton went to hear this "unknown" when he spoke there before coming to T. C. U.

Dr. Crenshaw believes that the lecture's being at night accounted for the absence of several students. He also thinks that students generally didn't realize what a good speaker Dr. Asirvatham is.

The next speaker to be presented by the lectures and concerts committee will be Stuart Chase, author and economist. He will speak Dec. 6 in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Coach L. R. "Dutch" Meyer and his under-dog Horned Frogs have their work cut out for them in tomorrow's contest with the revived Texas Aggies.

The Cadets have indicated in their first four games that they are about to relinquish the cellar position which they held so firmly the last two years.

The Frogs first must plot a defense capable of stopping the Aggies on the ground, a feat which even mighty Oklahoma could not accomplish.

Bruising Bob Smith, and the shifty halfbacks, Glenn Lippman and Billy Tidwell, will be ready to go all the way quicker than you can say, "Who flung the overalls in Mrs. Murphy's chowder?"

Defensively the Cadets have the best line in the conference up to now, having allowed only 503 yards rushing. Their sloppy pass defense (629 yards) is the biggest problem in the Aggie camp.

Secondly then, the Frogs' big hope seems to be travel by air farther and faster than the Aggies can go overland.

But the statistics show that T. C. U. is more proficient at running than passing. The Frogs have gained 887 yards rushing to only 409 yards passing.

This all boils down to the fact that it should be a good offensive battle. But which team has the most offense?

The way it looks from here: Texas A. & M. over T. C. U. by 6 points—Playing the favorites this week.

Texas over Arkansas by 20 points—Providing the Longhorns have the urge to make someone suffer for that Oklahoma loss.

S. M. U. over Rice by 7 points—The Ponies may go undefeated until the battle for the skillet.

Baylor over Texas Tech by 13 points—Anything to keep that Raider slate clean.

Oklahoma over Kansas State by 28 points—It's all down hill to the Sugar Bowl now.

Juniors Win, 8-0 Brannon Puzzles For Fourth Straight Picking Cagers

The Juniors gained their fourth straight victory Tuesday by blanking the Seniors, 8-0, while the Sophomores were whitewashing the Freshmen, 19-0, for their first victory.

Scoring for the Juniors came on a 22-yard run by James Wilson and a safety when Bob Montgomery tagged Shorty Sanders behind his goal.

Charlie Webster led the Sophomores to their triumph over the Freshmen by throwing a touchdown pass to Fred Harrington on one occasion and running 2 yards for another TD later in the game.

The other touchdown came on a pass from Norman Bantz to Blair Hankins. Ed Nicholas kicked the only extra point.

With four days of practice completed Coach Byron "Buster" Brannon is still undecided who three of his starters will be for the opening game Dec. 1.

Capt. Harvey Fromme and George McLeod are the only certain starters.

One thing seems certain, though, and that is nothing short of being maimed will keep Johnny Swaim off the starting five. The wiry redhead from Jean, a fine ball handler and passer, may be just what the Frogs need to get the ball in to George McLeod with greater frequency this year.

Bryan Kilpatrick, formerly of Paschal and S. M. U., also has reported for practice and will become eligible at this semester's end.

Allan Brookshire, one of last year's squadmen, will be out as soon as an eye ailment clears up.

The new freshman basketball coach, Bruce Craig, a two-year varsity letterman, has put his 14-man squad through heavy two-hour drills every day this week.

Craig hasn't attempted to select a first string, but probably will decide within the next week or so.

Early T. C. U. Splurge Ruins Late Raider Surge

Shocked into action by a long Raider gain on the first play from scrimmage, T. C. U.'s Frogs poured three first-half touchdowns across the goal line Saturday night to trounce Texas Tech, 19-6.

John Morton finally hit his stride from the right half-back slot to become the game's hero. The former full-back thundered 19 yards for one tally and scored the other two on passes from Gil Bartosh.

Frog partisans gasped for breath when Tech's J. W. Thompson opened the action with his 65-yard scamper to the T. C. U. 15-yard line.

The drive was halted, however, with the aid of a holding penalty against the Red Raiders, who mustered only one sustained scoring spurt during the remainder of the game.

Late in the first quarter Bartosh got the Frogs rolling 63 yards to their first score, capping the charge with a three-yard toss to Morton.

Early in the second quarter Homer Tompkins returned a punt to the T. C. U. 42-yard line. After drawing a 15-yard holding penalty, the Frogs needed only six plays to score their second touchdown. The long gainer of the series was a 30-yard pass from Bartosh to Bill Moorman. With a first down on the nine-yard line, Morton took a short toss from Bartosh and bulled his way into the end zone.

On their next chance at the ball, the Horned Frogs went 73 yards to put the game on ice. Sophomore John Harville started the final spree with a 25-yard gallop.

The rejuvenated Raiders took the second-half kickoff and rolled 69 yards to their lone touchdown. Quarterback Pete Edwards sneaked the ball over from the one.

Tackle L.S.M.F.T. Tomorrow

Cadets Next for Frogs

In spite of L.S.M.F.T. (Lippman, Smith, Molberg, Flowers and Tidwell), the Horned Frogs are expected to pitch a few lucky strikes at the Aggies in Kiddie Korps land tomorrow afternoon.

Coach Harry Stiteler's fired-up crew is fresh from a 52-0 victory over VMI, while Coach Dutch Meyer's lads coasted to a 19-6 triumph over Texas Tech. A. & M. dropped Tech earlier, 34-13.

The Aggies have come up with the surprise team of '50, winning three of four games with the only loss dealt by mighty Oklahoma in the last minute of play.

Among the top ten rushing leaders in the conference are three Aggies. Bob Smith, Glenn Lippman and Billy Tidwell are 1, 5 and 7, respectively. Smith is also the conference scoring leader with 54 points.

Ticket Deadline Set For Baylor Contest

An advance warning for students to get their tickets for the Baylor game prior to Wednesday, Nov. 1, has been issued by Amos Melton, athletic publicity director. The Baylor game will be played Sat., Nov. 4.

Although the Texas game will be played two weeks later, student tickets must be obtained for that contest Nov. 6 through the 10th.

Students must get their tickets before Friday of that week because all student tickets not purchased by then will go on sale to the public.

On the T. C. U. side of the ledger, the home crew has the conference's total offensive leader in Gil Bartosh. The Granger Ghost has 594 total yards—325 rushing and 269 passing.

T. C. U. has shown a good ground defense, at times, holding Arkansas to a mere 40 yards.

Therefore, Meyer has only three things to worry about—setting up a good defense, getting the injured players back in action, and scoring enough points to win.

Point-a-Minute Wogs Blast Aggie Fish, 60-0

T. C. U.'s point-a-minute Wogs recovered six opponents' fumbles intercepted two passes and blocked one kick, all of which proved a tale of woe for the Texas A. & M. freshmen to the tune of 60-0, Wednesday night.

A hard-charging Wog line must be given credit for forcing the Aggies to make more than their share of mistakes. Ronald Dublin played a great defensive game as did Morgan Williams, Danny McKown and Harold Rose.

Summary of scoring: Sammy Morrow intercepted an Aggie pass and two plays later Danny Powell passed 30 yards to Danny Hall-mark for a touchdown. McKown climaxed a 70-yard drive by throwing a fourth-down pass to Glenn Jones for five yards.

"Rusty" McCollum ran two yards for the third touchdown. Al Burgin ran a blocked punt for another. McCollum bucked over from the one following an Aggie fumble for the fifth score.

Dick Black engineered the next touchdown as he sneaked over from the one-yard line after a 59-yard drive.

Another fumble set up another tally with Danny Powell climaxed a 32-yard drive by going over from the one. A 54-yard pass play, McKown to Guy Thompson, gave the Wogs their eighth touchdown.

The final score came with less than a minute to play. Ernest McGee intercepted a pass and ran 12 yards to pay-dirt.

Sammy Noel converted on 6 of 9 attempts.

praised at last, one "leading man" type who does not need a haircut and who possibly even has a few muscles. Philip Minor, another of the horsemen, is from Buenos Aires; he speaks patois with a faint trace of cultured accent. Someday he might follow Sir Cedric Hardwicke into the lead in Antiquone. Bob Cornell, third man on the bob-tailed nag, reminded us of a Dead End kid. He's funny per se. Carolyn Bird plays Audrey, Erwin's wife, a nag who also ran. All she has to do is cry, which she does prettily. G. W. Anderson is Clarence, Erwin's brother-in-law. He emotes with a vengeance, never letting you forget he is supposed to be a no-good, hysterical, pussy-footing skunk. The role of Erwin, the hapless hero — a role which would stigmatize any actor—is adequately portrayed by John West. West has a good deal of self-assurance, even in underwear, and deserves something better.

Director Baker's players are disciplined and poised. They manage to sustain your interest, if not in the play, then in themselves. It is rather sad that Baker and company, as good as they are, have been saddled with a script which long ago should have been filed away in somebody's waste basket.
