'TRADITION OF SERVICE' IS WEEK'S THEME

The 40th anniversary of Harris College of Nursing and the 20th anniversary of Starpoint School will be celebrated Nov. 11-15 during TCU/Fort Worth Week. This year's theme of "A Tradition of Service" is exemplified by these two widely acclaimed programs that have gained recognition not only for being outstanding academically but also for providing a variety of services to the North Texas area.

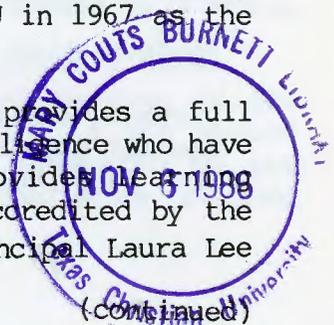

Both of these dimensions will be accentuated during the week, co-sponsored by TCU and the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce to call attention to the partnership of the institution and the city.

Founded in 1946 through a $1 million trust fund provided by the late Dr. Charles H. Harris, well-known Fort Worth surgeon and rancher, Harris College of Nursing has achieved a national reputation for teaching excellence and clinical relevance. It was the first college of nursing in Texas and the second in the South to attain national accreditation. Headed by Dean Patricia Scarse since 1980, it gained national accreditation in 1952 and continues to be fully accredited by the National League of Nursing.

Harris College was led by the late Lucy Harris, who had directed both nursing and the School of Nursing at Harris Memorial Methodist Hospital, from its beginning until her retirement in 1967. When the college opened in 1946, three of its seven faculty members held master's degrees and the other four held bachelor's degrees. Currently more than 45 percent of the 26 full-time faculty members, including the dean, hold Ph. D. degrees. Harris College was a pioneer in the development of baccalaureate education in nursing, particularly in Texas.

Starpoint School was founded as part of the School of Education in 1966 by Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Neeley as a result of a five-year study and research project in training teachers for children with perceptual handicaps often mistaken for retardation. The couple was responsible for Mrs. Marguerite Slater, a widely experienced educator and pioneer in the field, coming to TCU in 1967 as the school's principal.

The only laboratory school of its kind in Texas, Starpoint provides a full academic day for children ages 6 to 9 of average to high intelligence who have difficulty achieving in a regular classroom. It also provides learning opportunities and experience for TCU's teacher trainees. Accredited by the Texas Education Agency as a private school and headed by Principal Laura Lee

Crane, who joined the late Mrs. Slater's faculty in 1968, Starpoint is staffed by professional personnel who act as consultants to numerous school districts and provide community education through workshops and informative programs.

Starpoint Schedules Open House, Lecture

The first public event of the 18th annual TCU/Fort Worth Week will be an open house Nov. 11 at Starpoint School. Visitors will have opportunity to observe the range of school-day activities from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For Starpoint School's anniversary year, a special commemorative Starpoint Christmas ornament has been designed by award-winning sculptor Tom Vanderzyl and cast by Billanti in New York City. These will be available for purchase at the open house.

On Nov. 14, Dr. Larry B. Silver, director of the National Institute of Dyslexia and former deputy director of the National Institute of Mental Health, will give a public lecture. His presentation will begin at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Paschal High School.

A director of TRI-Services National Institute of Dyslexia, Dr. Silver also is a clinical professor of psychiatry at the Georgetown University School of Medicine. His experience includes being vice president of clinical affairs for Devereux Foundation near Philadelphia and as medical director and chief of youth services at Rutgers Medical Health Center. Founding president of the Association of Academic Psychiatry and the New Jersey Council on Child Psychiatry, he is author of more than 80 articles on child abuse, child psychiatry and learning disabilities.

Health Promotion Fair To Be Nov. 14

The Rickel Building will be the site of the Health Promotion Fair sponsored by Harris College Nov. 14 for the public. The 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. event will include presentations and demonstrations related to promoting and maintaining good health by some 20 community health agencies.

Consultants will be present to discuss such topics as safety, Medicare/Social Security, legal concerns and individual or family counseling. Activities will include those related to exercise, nutrition, hobbies/crafts and continuing education. Blood pressure, glaucoma, anemia and stress factors will be among screening services provided. Attention also will be given to health needs of older persons.

By-Invitation Events Set

Three by-invitation events are on the week's schedule. Major donors and special guests are being invited to a Harris College anniversary party on Nov. 12 at Colonial Country Club.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS DUE FOR CYF DAY

Some 2,000 high school students from a four-state area are expected on campus Saturday for the annual Christian Youth Fellowship Day.

Representing Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) in Texas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Oklahoma, they will meet at 11:45 a.m. in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum for a luncheon program. Featured will be the band and cheerleaders along with Super Frog. Students and their sponsors will attend the 2 p.m. game between TCU and Texas Tech University. A dance will begin at 7:30 p.m. at University Christian Church.

The annual observance of CYF Day is "a celebration that offers the opportunity for students to be with acquaintances and to make new friends," according to Jim Atwood, religion-studies admissions counselor. "It also is a time of renewing school-church relations between TCU and the Disciples of Christ."

TCU GETS SHARE OF UPS FOUNDATION GIFT

TCU is among 29 Texas colleges and universities sharing a $52,200 gift from The UPS Foundation Endowment Fund, a gift made to Texas Independent College Fund through Independent College Funds of America (ICFA). TCU will receive $1,800. The local distribution is part of $1,076,400 generated by The UPS Foundation endowment to be donated to 598 ICFA member colleges across the nation, a 6 percent increase over 1985 distribution, said Donald R. McAdams, president of TICF.

The UPS Foundation, supported by grants from United Parcel Service, is the largest contributor to the ICFA national program. This is the second consecutive year that more than $1 million has been generated by the endowment. Nearly $5 million in grant funds has been awarded since the fund was established in 1974, McAdams said.

TUCKER IS SPEAKER FOR NEW GROUPS

Chancellor Bill Tucker was the speaker Oct. 28 for the newly formed TCU Lubbock/South Plains Association, and on Thursday he will speak at the dinner program for the new Amarillo/Panhandle Association.

Headed by Ken Kelley, Class of '76 member, the Amarillo group is composed of some 650 alumni, parents of current students and friends of the University in the Panhandle area. Among these is Dr. Drew Ellis of Perryton, well-known business and civic leader who is an honorary member of the board of trustees.

Other Amarillo/Panhandle officers are Andy Hyltin, who heads the athletic committee, and Rita Reed George, chairperson of the membership committee. Directors, all Amarillo residents, are Don George, Jo Ellen Sigler Harris, Joan Ragsdale Horn, John K. Krister, James Mead, Dr. Randall Samberson, James N. Shelton, J. Malcolm Shelton IV and Dr. Stephen Urban.

Some 380 persons are included in the Lubbock/South Plains organization, which is headed by Lynn Pritchard McClendon of Lubbock, Class of '63 member. Its directors include Lubbock residents Frances Tidwell Ansley, John W. Holt, Dale W. Johnston, Lois Tarbox Johnston, Sally Montgomery Mansir, Delbert McDougal, William R. Moss, Marian Moss, Margaret Hawkins Poteet, William D. Poteet, John E. Punched, Barbara Burkstaller Rudd, Larry Rudd, Bobby Sanders, Liz Creson Sisco, Ted Sisco, Bill Tarbox and Paula Madeley Tarbox. Others are Jess Claiborne, Patrick L. McAdoo of Seagraves and Roy Spradlin of Seminole.

TCU GETS 'ART ATTACK'

Denny Dent, who paints to music, will present his "Art Attack" tomorrow (Wednesday) at TCU. The program will begin at 11:45 a.m. in The Pit under the sponsorship of Programming Council's performing arts committee.

ADDITIONAL LIGHTING TO BE INSTALLED

Contracts are in the process of execution for installation of additional outdoor lighting on campus. According to physical plant director Bob Haubold, 38 new lights will be installed at various locations. To be on 12-foot-high poles, fixtures will closely resemble lights between Sadler Hall and University Drive.

A number of older lights down the center of campus are not located to provide any useful light, and they will be relocated. "It was the feeling of the designer and members of the school staff that the older traditional type lighting fixtures should be used to give a pleasant, quaint appearance on our campus," Bob said.

New lights will be added to provide illumination for the sidewalk in front of Sadler and Reed halls from Ed Landreth to the Bailey Building. Lights will be installed between Foster and Waits halls and between Tom Brown and Pete Wright halls. The work will include some light on the sidewalk south of the Bass Building and on the sidewalk in front of Milton-Daniel dormitory. Also included will be some decorative lighting for the memorial pillars in front of Reed Hall at University Drive.

Some of the installation work will begin fairly soon, with the poles and light fixtures scheduled for delivery in about 12 weeks.

HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONS TO BE SUBJECT OF WORKSHOP

High school and junior college students who are considering a career in medicine or dentistry will be on campus for Premedical/Predental Saturday this weekend. The half-day program will cover such topics as curriculum, women in medicine, high school preparation, trends in medical education and health professions, including nursing and medical technology. Participants are current premedical/predental students, faculty, physicians and medical and dental students.

Sponsored by the premedical/predental honor society Alpha Epsilon Delta, the workshop will begin at 9 a.m. in Lecture Hall 2 of the Richardson Science Building. A noon buffet luncheon is included, and those who attend the program will be invited to the TCU/Texas Tech football game as guests of AED and the Athletics Department.

CADETS TO HONOR AMERICA'S VETERANS

Veterans Day will be marked today (Tuesday) at TCU by a 24-hour candlelight vigil and a formal retreat ceremony at 5 p.m. Members of Air Force ROTC and its auxiliary, Angel Flight, are standing vigil from midnight to midnight beside the flagpole on the lawn in front of Sadler Hall, said Capt. Richard Horton of aerospace studies. The cadets and Angel Flight members will take turns standing watch throughout the 24 hours.

At 5 p.m. Army and Air Force ROTC cadets will stage a joint retreat ceremony, at which the flag is lowered and removed for the night and retreat is sounded on the bugle. Faculty & staff are invited to attend and pay respect to America's war veterans.

TCU SYMPHONY TO PLAY MONDAY

Soprano Sheila Allen and the University Symphony, under the direction of Candler Schaffer, will present a TCU Music Series Concert at 8 p.m. Monday in Ed Landreth Auditorium. The program also will be broadcast live over KTCU-FM 88.7.

The symphony will play the Overture to Verdi's "La Forza del Destino" and Symphony No. 97 in C major by Haydn, one of the 12 works commissioned specifically for London concerts which constituted Haydn's final contribution to the symphonic idiom.

Sheila will join the symphony to sing Ravel's "Sheherazade" and the "Letter Scene" from Tchaikovsky's "Eugene Onegin," one of the most popular of Russian operas.

MIXED MEDIA SHOW OPENS MONDAY

"Dimensionals: Works, Words and Drawings" by Austin artist Hills Snyder will be on exhibition Monday through Nov. 26 in Brown-Lupton Student Center Gallery. The show will feature wood sculptures, drawings and poetry.

Opening reception will be from 4 to 6 p.m. Nov. 11 in the Gallery. Subsequent hours are 11 a.m.-4 p.m. weekdays and 1 to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

NATIONAL AWARD SURPRISES PATTON

When Carol Patton attended the 10th annual National Academic Advising Association meeting Oct. 12-15 in Seattle, she knew she was to receive a certificate of merit for academic advising. What she did not know was that she would be honored as the first recipient of the Service to NACADA Award. Wes Habley, NACADA president, saluted Carol during the annual awards breakfast for her leadership and commitment to academic advising.

Carol, former director of University advisement for freshmen and pre-majors, was selected for special recognition because of outstanding service to NACADA. A charter member, she has presented papers to every national meeting for the last nine years. In addition to serving on the executive committee and several other committees, Carol was vice president for membership. During her term the size of the organization increased by 30 percent.

NOTES ON FOLKS

The striking corrugated cardboard self-portraits created last year by TCU ART STUDENTS of Don Sweetland have taken to the air in downtown Fort Worth this year. Ten of the figures are hanging over the ice rink in Tandy Center Mall through Nov. 20.

JULIAN HABER (adjunct, Miller Clinic) helped co-author three articles appearing in Pediatrics Journal, Vol. 78, #3, of the American Academy of Pediatrics Committee on Children with Disabilities. They were "Screening for Developmental Disabilities," "Role of Pediatrician in Prevocational and Vocational Education of Children and Adolescents with Developmental Disabilities" and "Transition of Severely Disabled Children from Hospital or Chronic Care Facilities to Community."

"The Structure of the Field of English," an essay by JIM CORDER (English), has been accepted for publication in English in Texas.

It's lullaby time at the home of ANANTHA and CHRISTI BABBILI, whose daughter Laura Sudha was born Oct. 23. The granddaughter of PRISCILLA and GARY TATE, she weighed 8 1/2 pounds. The father's report is that "she's beautiful."

At the South Central Modern Language Association meeting in New Orleans Thursday through Saturday, the TCU English department was heavily represented. DAVID VANDERWERKEN delivered a paper on "Another Fix on Hemingway, Sport, and the Twenties," and ANN ASHWORTH spoke on "Coleridge and the Garden of Bright Images: "Christabel" and "King Lear."

"Literacy, Rhetoric, and Education" was WIN HORNER's topic, and JIM BAUMLIN read a paper on "Persuasion, Rogerian Rhetoric, and Imaginative Play." KEITH ODOM discussed "Fantasy Literature, Popular Culture, and the Media." BOB FRYE's subject was "Larry McMurtry, Small Towns, and Three Recent Texas Novels," and CHRIS MARTIN's was "Ossian in Germany: Influence Without Impact."

TCU Ph.D.s on the program included DAVID W. CHAPMAN, now teaching at Texas Tech, "The Truth, the Essay, and Art"; LOU THOMPSON, New Mexico Tech, secretary of the Nineteenth-Century literature section; LINDA WOODSON, University of Texas at San Antonio, chair of the rhetoric section; GLEN E. LICH, Schreiner College, whose paper was "Sealsfield's Myth of Progress in 'The Cabin Book,'" CAMILLE ADKINS, Southeastern Louisiana University, "'As a man is, So he Sees': Blake's Gnosticism"; and CARMEN CRAMER, University of Southwestern Louisiana, "'Richard II': A Woman's Place".

Two TCU graduates also were featured on the program. CLARE COLQUITT, San Diego State University, spoke on "Unpacking Her Treasures: Passionate Containment in Edith Wharton's 'The Letters,'" and DIANE DOWDEY, Texas A&M, discussed "The Use of Topoi: A Case Study in Popular Science Writing on Recombinant DNA" and also chaired a special session on literary form in English non-fiction prose genres.

DAVE CRAVENS' (business) monograph, "Salesforce Deployment," (with R. W. LaForge) recently was published in Advances in Business Marketing, Vol. 1, by JAI Press Inc.
