NEW COURSE GIVES INSIDE VIEW OF CRIME

Accompanying police on weekend rounds, hearing a victim recount a recent crime and watching the court system dispense justice are not standard homework for most students, but they are part of a new journalism course that prepares students to be aware, compassionate and informed crime reporters.

Evolved from last November's symposium on victims and the media, Specialized Reporting and Writing: Crime Reporting is a practical, how-to orientation that combines extensive field work with an academic emphasis on criminal justice. Taught by Tommy Thomason, the course is without precedent.

"We began with the premise that the police beat is an important beat, one that a great many young journalists have to cover," Tommy said. "We talked to police officers and crime victims and lawyers and journalists themselves. We asked them what police reporters do well and what they do poorly. We looked at what reporters need to know about the criminal justice system to cover it effectively."

Critical to the course's success is the cooperation of the Fort Worth Police Department, which has arranged for students to ride with police on various night shifts and has supplied numerous guest lecturers. "We readily recognize the very heavy responsibility of the press in our society," said Chief of Police Thomas Windham. "Educating young journalists to the reality of police work can only have a positive effect on both the police and the press."

Lee Ann Breland, a senior journalism major, rode with officers from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. on Oct. 2-3. She described the nights cruising East Rosedale as eye-opening.

"You don't think about major crimes happening in Fort Worth," she said. "You don't realize how much goes on until it's thrown in your face." On patrol she witnessed arrests and bookings and had a surprisingly normal conversation with a pair of drug dealers. While the learning experience was often sobering and unforgettable, Lee Ann was enthusiastic and positive about the experience. More upsetting to her was a meeting with crime victims, which inspired her to write a column in the Oct. 7 issue of the Daily Skiff about empathy and the harshness of victims' plight.

Class members also will get a view of prison life at Huntsville and will attend criminal trials. Guest speakers from the FWPD, local media and victim advocacy groups will lecture throughout the semester, and Edna Buchanan, long-time crime reporter for The Miami Herald and winner of the 1986 Pulitzer Prize for general reporting, will hold a daylong seminar Nov. 19.

SESSIONS SET ON INVESTMENT PROGRAMS

Tax-deferred investment opportunities are more attractive since the Tax Reform Act of 1986 eliminated a number of tax deductions. The University's benefits program offers several tax-deferred programs that can lower the tax burden while helping employees save more of what they earn.

Representatives of four investment companies will be on campus this month for both group and individual counseling sessions. Individual appointments must be scheduled through the Personnel Office, Ext. 7792 or 5018.

General sessions will be held at 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. for each of the four companies. The schedules are as follows:

- Fidelity on Oct. 13 (today) in Student Center 202;
- VALIC on Oct. 20, Student Center 204;
- Travelers on Oct. 22, Student Center 204;
- Kemper on Oct. 29, Student Center 203.

ADMISSIONS OFFICE HOSTS COLLEGE BOARD

Seventy high school counselors were guests on campus Oct. 6 for the annual workshop of the Southwest Regional College Board.

Dr. Martha Salmon of Austin, former TCU Alumni Association president and director of admissions and guidance services for College Board, conducted the morning workshop on topics related to her office, including the College Level Exam Program, Advanced Placement and College Scholarship Service. The afternoon session on financial aid was conducted by Dave Bauske, College Board director of financial aid services.

The Office of Admissions hosted the group at lunch. Speaker was Chris Ellertson, associate director of admissions.

79 PERCENT ADMITTED TO MEDICAL, DENTAL SCHOOLS

As of Sept. 1, 79 percent of 1987 graduates who applied to medical or dental schools had been accepted; the percent of 1986 graduates admitted increased from 81 percent a year ago to 90 percent, according to Manny Reinecke, chairman of the health professions advisory committee.

The 79 percent acceptance rate is fairly typical for TCU students within the first year of graduation. The percentage usually increases as students reapply the following year. In the last 10 years, final admissions rates have varied from 82 percent to 100 percent. Among 1987 graduates who applied to medical schools, 28 of 36 were accepted, and five of the six applicants to dental school were admitted.

OCT. 20 SESSION WILL BE ON VIOLENCE

Violence in love relationships with particular focus on abuse in college relationships will be the topic of a meeting at 3:30 p.m. Oct. 20 in Student Center Room 207. Sponsors are the Faculty Senate's new Select Committee on Sex Discrimination and Harassment, co-chaired by Neil Daniel and Rhonda Keen Payne, and the Women's Haven of Tarrant County. The program on violence against women is the first in a series of open meetings sponsored by the Faculty Senate committee, a series designed to raise awareness of women's issues on campus.

"Violent behavior, including physical abuse, is a fact of life to which college students are not immune," said Neil. To help raise awareness of potential violence and of ways to seek help, the program will feature Liz Young, professional services manager at Women's Haven, and dean of students Libby Proffer. Ms. Young will present information on abuse of women in society at large, and Libby will discuss abusive relationships on the college campus.

VIDEOCONFERENCE TO BE FOR OCT. 15

A live videoconference on "The Great International Celebration of Satellites in Space" will be presented Thursday from the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, DC. Sponsored by the Society of Satellite Professionals, the event will feature highlights from the two-day celebration of the first 30 years of satellites in space.

Faculty and staff members as well as interested students can view the 6-8 p.m. presentation in the TAGER-TV building, located west of the Bass Building on Bowie Street.

In addition to the presentation of Orbit Awards to pioneers in communication satellites, the conference also will note three decades of extraordinary achievements and will look ahead to future developments. Highlights from the plenary session will feature Dr. Tadahiro Sekimoto, president of NEC Tokyo; Dr. Joseph Charyk, former president and chairman of the board of COMSAT; Gioia Marconi Braga, daughter of Guglielmo Marconi; and Sid Topol, chairman of the board of Scientific Atlanta. A special feature will be a taped interview with Arthur C. Clarke, father of the geosynchronous satellite.

Additional information is available from Deana Muirheid, Ext. 7632.

RARE VIOL PERFORMANCE SET MONDAY

Early English consort music for viol (viola da gamba) will be performed at 8 p.m. Oct. 12 in Robert Carr Chapel as part of the TCU Music Series. According to Harriet Risk Woldt, who organized the concert, the evening of viol music will be a first in the Fort Worth area.

Consort music was the predecessor of the string quartet, and it was patterned after the Italian madrigal popular in late Renaissance. On the program will be works by Morley, Jenkins, Byrd, Purcell and Dowland. Harriet will be joined by Sheila Madden of TCU, Wayne Moss of Dallas and Beth Abbate of Fort Worth on the viol; Tamara Crout of Euless, soprano; and Judith Solomon of TCU, harpsichord.

SERVICES HELD FOR GOLDBECK

Funeral services were conducted Oct. 5 at Westminster Presbyterian Church for emeritus professor Ben Goldbeck, who died Oct. 1 at his home following a lengthy illness. Burial with military honors was in Laurel Land Memorial Park.

Holder of bachelor's and master's degrees in mathematics from TCU, Ben was a member of the math department faculty for more than 25 years prior to his retirement in 1980. He directed the National Science Foundation summer institutes for high school science and math teachers held on campus. He and his doctoral students were widely recognized for developing and extending the algebraic concept of a near-ring. A part-time faculty member following retirement, he held a doctorate in mathematics and physics from the University of Oklahoma.

Ben, a Fort Worth native, served as consultant for the Fort Worth school district and for other schools, including those in Burleson, Hill County and Texarkana. He developed and directed in-service workshops in a number of these areas.

The former Army captain was named a life member of the 36th Infantry Division Association and the Retired Officers Association. His other interests included golf and oil paintings, for which he received several blue ribbons. He was a former member of the Pro-Am Art Association. Ben also was active in the Society of Sigma Xi, American Mathematical Society, Mathematical Association of America and the honor societies of Pi Mu Epsilon and Sigma Pi Sigma. He taught an adult class at Westminster Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include his wife, Helen; two daughters, Priscilla Goldbeck of Fort Worth and Janne Goldbeck Lowry of Pocatello, Idaho. The family suggests memorials to the organ fund at Westminster Presbyterian Church or St. Joseph Community Hospice.

JUST A REMINDER...

...Mary "Tipper" Gore, co-founder of Parents' Music Resource Center and wife of presidential candidate Sen. Albert Gore, will speak on "Explicit Lyrics in Rock 'n' Roll Music" tonight (Tuesday) at 7:30 in Ed Landreth Auditorium. Tickets are $1 with TCU ID.

...fall registration is still open for the Employee Fitness Program, known as "The Fitness Frogs." Sponsored by the physical education and recreational sports departments, the program is open to faculty and staff members as well as their spouses. For more information on the five classes, contact Karen Kenney at Ext. 7665 or Kim Kells, Ext. 6864.

...the new Fort Worth telephone directories are too large to forget, but the PBX office still has an overabundance of books that have not been picked up by departments. Any department that does not have new phone books--or anyone needing additional copies--may get them in the PBX office, first floor, northeast corner of Pete Wright Hall.

WEEKEND EVENTS HONOR '38 NATIONAL GRID CHAMPIONS

Some 40 members of TCU's storied national champions football team of 1938 are due back on campus this weekend for two days of fun and reminiscing. Led by All-Americans Davey O'Brien, Ki Aldrich and I.B. Hale and coached by the legendary Dutch Meyer, TCU stormed through the regular season undefeated. Champions of the Southwest Conference, the Frogs were invited to the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans, where they defeated Carnegie Tech 15-7. The Purples finished the most illustrious chapter in TCU's long gridiron history with a perfect 11-0 record and the unanimous acclaim of national champions.

Development officer Hal Roach and athletic director Frank Windegger are hosts for the 1938 gridgers at an Athletic Director's/ADVANCE reception on Friday evening at Colonial Country Club. The next day alumni director DeVonna Tinney will orchestrate a campus tour for the team members and their wives before the TCU vs. North Texas football game, where they will be honored at halftime.

So complete was TCU's dominance of its opponents in 1938 that the Horned Frogs scored 269 points while allowing just 60. Only one team scored more than seven points against them. TCU held three teams scoreless that year and never trailed an opponent during the regular season. In addition to the all-American honors bestowed on O'Brien, Aldrich and Hale, other Frogs who also earned all-Southwest Conference laurels were Forrest Kline, Don Looney and Connie Sparks.

The greatest honors went to O'Brien. "Lil' Davey" became the first Southwest Conference player ever to win the coveted Heisman Trophy. And he became the only man in history to win the Walter Camp, Maxwell and Heisman awards in the same season.

Accomplishments of that team and its individuals have stood the test of time, too, as O'Brien, Aldrich and Meyer were subsequently enshrined in the National Football Foundation's illustrious Hall of Fame.

Absent from the festivities will be the brightest stars of that team. Death has already claimed O'Brien, Aldrich, Hale, Meyer and several other members of TCU's most decorated gridunit.

ALUMNI SHOW ON VIEW

Three Fort Worth artists who formerly submitted their works here for grades have brought them back to campus strictly for show. The Alumni Show, featuring sculpture by Andrew John Cecil and Anthony Wright and paintings by Lelia Koeppel, will be on view in Brown-Lupton Gallery through Oct. 24. Hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays, 1-4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

TCU IN THE NEWS

"His office gone to the squirrels, all in the name of friendship" was the headline for the feature story on BUCK BENEZE (student life) that appeared in the Star-Telegram's Southwest EXTRA Sept. 16-17. The associate dean has quite a following...of birds and squirrels that come to his office window for food.

Junior TIM SHAFFER was pictured in the Sept. 16 Star-Telegram as he practiced a rifle routine in preparation for the first home football game. He is a member of the band's color guard.

"Missing but not forgotten" was the headline for the lengthy story, complemented by a large color photo of the AIR FORCE CADETS and the POW flag, that appeared in the Sept. 19 Star-Telegram about the local observance of National POW/MIA Recognition Day.

The scuba diving class headed by DON REECE was the center of attraction for Page 1 of the Star-Telegram's local section Sept. 29. Color photos depicted ELIZABETH YOUNG, DANA BEAIRD and Don in a class session.

KXAS-TV, Channel 5, taped developmental psychologist BARRY PERLMUTTER (family studies) as he viewed and commented on a new children's television program, "Captain Power," which allows children to "play along" with a special toy weapon. Barry's comments were aired on the 10 p.m. news Sept. 21. Also interviewed for a Channel 5 special on the professional football strike, Barry said that children will not let the strike lessen their admiration for football heroes.

An hour-long interview with DON JACKSON (political science) on KLIF's The David Gold Show dealt with the Senate hearings for potential Supreme Court Justice Robert Bork. KRLD and KPLX also interviewed Don on the subject.

"Award-winning Western novelist takes the helm at TCU Press" was the Dallas Morning News headline for the Sept. 27 feature on Press director JUDY ALTER. The feature appeared in the paper's Metro West section.

Journalism graduate JAY CRUM, publisher of American Airlines in-flight magazine, was the subject of a Faces feature that appeared Sept. 27 in the Dallas Morning News. The Class of '58 member formerly worked with Newsweek and CBS before returning to Texas. He has been publisher of American Way since 1986.

Cultural literacy was the theme of an essay by GREGG FRANZWA (philosophy) that appeared in the Sept. 28 Dallas Times-Herald. The Sept. 11 Texas Observer included his essay on the Constitution.

LISA FUSILLO (ballet), who is spending the fall semester in Taiwan on a Fulbright Scholarship, and Doris Rudko of the Juilliard School were featured in an article in Taiwan's China News Sept. 22.

MORE TCU IN THE NEWS

Alumnus PAM GUELKER ANGLIN, former assistant controller and director of managerial finance, was the subject of a Sept. 27 feature story in the Corsicana Daily Sun. The Van Alstyne native currently is an accounting instructor at Navarro College.

Starpoint School principal LAURA LEE CRANE was among persons quoted in the Star-Telegram's Oct. 2 story about tentative plans to start a school for learning-disabled adolescents in Tarrant County. Some 20 parents, educators and physicians met on campus recently with Charles Drake, founder of the successful Landmark Schools for Dyslexics. Laura Lee noted that the interest is in "the strategies that he used for the fund-raising and the scholarships."

Brite students CHARLOTTE SMITH, RON ALLTON and DICK HUBBARD were featured in both photograph and copy in the Star-Telegram EXTRA's feature on over-40 students enrolled in the graduate seminary. The story appeared Oct. 7-8.

CONTEMPORARY OPERAS TO BE SUNG

Even opera-shy folks shouldn't be afraid of TCU Opera Workshop's performances at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in Ed Landreth Auditorium. The opera scenes are from 20th Century British and American operas, all sung in English, all written in English. Some even had their premiere performances on television and Broadway.

Opera Workshop director Arden Hopkin describes the evening's entertainment as a menu, opening with an aperitif, "The Old Maid and the Thief" by Giancarlo Menotti. For the meat and potatoes main course, student singers will perform a scene from the first act of Douglas Moore's "The Ballad of Baby Doe," a Colorado mining saga, as well as an excerpt from Samuel Barber's "Vanessa," the tale of a sordid love triangle between a mother, her niece and the son of her ex-lover.

Continuing the entree performances will be segments of "Susannah," a 1955 opera based on a Biblical story of Daniel and Susannah and written by University of Houston artist-in-residence Carlyle Floyd, and Benjamin Britten's "Billy Budd," a morality play set on a British frigate. For dessert will be a sextet from Kurt Weill's "Street Scene," an opera that premiered on Broadway in 1936.

Arden will be stage director for the performances, assisted by graduate students Randy Gremillion and Ray Herman.

NOTES ON FOLKS

CHRISTINA MURPHY (English) has had a short story, "Toreador," accepted for publication in Modern Short Stories. Another short story, "Blue Car," appeared in the summer issue of The Crescent Review.

Included in the listing of National Merit Semifinalists listed in the Dallas Morning News Sept. 17 were the names of two TCU-related persons, both students at Paschal. They are Layne Kasper, son of JANET KASPER (football office), and Rebekah Miracle, daughter of ANDY MIRACLE (sociology).

PATTY BROWN (design and fashion), MARY ANNE GORMAN (nutrition and dietetics) and MARGARET McWHORTER (design and fashion) have had their abstract entitled "Apparel Analysis vs. Clothing Construction: Trends in Teaching Ready-to-Wear Product Knowledge" accepted for presentation at the Central Region Meeting of the Association of College Professors of Textiles and Clothing in Detroit this fall.

DENISE ZANECCHIA (nursing) led a round table discussion group in August for the Texas Nurses Against Cancer Nurse Oncology Education Program, as part of the educational program for the northern Texas region. Denise and CAROLYN CAGLE (nursing) had their study, "Late Timing Parenthood Couples: An Analysis of Social Assessment Indicators," included in Extending Nursing Science and Practice Through Research and Theory Formulation, recently published by the Atlanta Southern Council on Collegiate Education for Nursing 1987.

AL MLADENKA and KEN BUS (international student affairs) attended a meeting of the Association of Metroplex International Educators at University of Dallas Sept. 10, when Al made a presentation on orientation for new international students.

EMMET SMITH (music) played the opening concert for University Christian Church's new concert series. He performed an organ recital Sept. 15.

WINIFRED HORNER (English) presented a paper on "The Sincerity Condition of Speech Act Theory and Aristotle's Ethos" at the University of Tours in France in July and served as assistant director for a workshop for new writing program administrators at Utah State University.

Win also has received a National Endowment for the Humanities grant to work on materials from nineteenth century courses in logic, rhetoric and English literature at the Scottish universities. She is scheduled to give a lecture at the University of Edinburgh in February. Her book on classical rhetoric in conjunction with composition is scheduled for publication in January, and she is under contract to write a book for Southern Illinois University Press entitled "Nineteenth Century Rhetoric: The Scottish Influence."

Psychologist RICHARD FENKER was in Varna, Bulgaria, during September to present a paper entitled "Managing Peak Performance States for Rhythmic Gymnasts: A Cognitive Mapping Approach" at the First International Scientific Conference on Rhythmic Gymnastics. The study was co-authored by CINDY COX (psychology). Richard also served as sport psychologist for the U.S. National Rhythmic Gymnastics team, which was competing in the world championships at Varna.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

LEE DANIEL (modern languages) has been informed that his article, "Sor Juana's Pentad of Carlosian Loas," will be published in a forthcoming issue of Discurso Literario.

RALPH BEHNKE (speech communication) has been named to head the Texas Speech Communication Association's program titled "Current Perspective on Communication in Health Care Settings."

Two artists with TCU backgrounds are involved in cultural activities in Taipei. TERESA TANG (M.F.A. '87 in ballet) is teaching at the National Academy of Arts, and ROB SMITH, graduate student in art, has taken time off from his ceramics studies to dance with Cloud Gate Taipei Contemporary Dance Theatre.

Oct. 23 is publication date for "Hollywood Anecdotes" (William Morrow), a book of essays and stories about American movies, especially in the Golden Age, by PAUL BOLLER (emeritus, history) and SMU film historian Ronald L. Davis. The essays deal with movie history, film genre, Hollywood stars and the contribution of producers, directors, writers, editors and musicians to the making of American movies. Other essays are on censorship, sexual images, theaters and audiences and on movies during the Age of Reagan (the 1980s). The stories accompanying the essays illustrate, point up and add to the themes presented by Paul and Davis in their essays. In a pre-publication review, Booklist calls the book "a valuable overview of the movie industry" which is "well-documented and appealing."

CARLA DUMESNIL (design and fashion) and Don Herrin of the University of Utah have received notice that their article, "Meaning for American Housing: Materialism and Family Interaction," has been accepted for presentation for the annual meeting of the American Association of Housing Educators in November in Newport, RI.

Physicist C.A. QUARLES presented two papers at the International Conference on the Physics of Electron and Atomic Collisions at Brighton, UK, in July. The first paper was with Dr. Gregory Westbrook entitled "K shell Ionization by Electron Bombardment"; the second was with Ph.D. candidate HALIM LEHTIHET entitled "Two Photon Coincidence Processes in the Electron Bombardment of Thin Film Targets." C.A. has been elected to a four-year term on the executive committee of the Texas section of the American Physical Society.

DONNA HALL (speech communication) recently presented a paper entitled "Interpersonal Messages Reflected in Music" at the Texas Speech Communication Association Convention in Houston.

SYDNEY PAYNE WILSON (music) gave a workshop and miniconcert on folk harp music at the Trinity River Folk Music Festival at Camp Carter Oct. 3. Several of her students played in a master class in harp given that day by concert harpist Emily Mitchell, who recently performed with the Fort Worth Chamber Orchestra.

Sympathy is expressed to ANDY FORT (religion-studies), whose mother, Mrs. Valentine Edgar Fort, died Sept. 20.

MORE NOTES ON FOLKS

Alumnus/trustee A.M. PATE Jr. and his wife, Joyce, will serve as honorary chairmen for An Artists' Christmas, the annual exhibition and auction benefiting youth served by the First Texas Council of Camp Fire. Beginning with a Nov. 8 black-tie preview party, activities will continue through Dec. 4.

On Sept. 28 FRED ERISMAN (English) presented an invited paper, "Realism and Human Values in Children's Literature," to the 8th Biennial Congress of the International Research Society for Children's Literature in Cologne, West Germany. Theme of the weeklong meeting was "Books for Children/Books for Adults: The Relationship Between Them." More than 50 scholars from around the world addressed specific aspects of the theme, and six general papers, including Fred's, supplied a conceptual focus. The other five scholars giving general papers were from England, France, Germany and the Soviet Union.

The HORNED FROG MARCHING BAND has performed before thousands of area high school band members and parents this month. In addition to half-time shows at TCU games, the band presented exhibition performances at the Fort Worth City Marching Band Contest Oct. 5 and the University Interscholastic League Contest in Arlington today (Tuesday). These are two of a number of recruiting performances by the band each year.
