CONSTRUCTION DAY CLASS EXERCISES

A CONSTRUCTION DAY FOR THE SUPPORTERS OF T. C. U.

HELD ON THE NEW CAMPUS

Flowers Were Planted to Commemorate at the Day.

The celebration of the construction day of T. C. U. was celebrated last Saturday on the campus of the new buildings. Immediately after the burning of the building in Waco, a movement was begun to reconstruct the building. And it is the outward expression of the student body and faculty of this movement that has made the day set apart as a permanent holiday.

The exercises were opened by E. E. Farris, professor of the Senior class, in the following words:

It is a pleasant task, as class professor, to introduce the exercises of the morning with a brief word on behalf of the faculty. The Senior class has thought to found a new and worthy custom in thus doing what can be done toward repairing the damage that the fire had wrought. Today is the first celebration. The last will be many years distant.

There is a law of compensation that pervades our while life and governs the world. Emerson says that even the corpse lends a silent dignity to the house in which it lies. For everything we lose we gain something. The fire cost us much, and the wreck it wrought is and will ever be deplorable. But we have made also some compensating gains. Our loyalty leaped into flame, and our devotion burned all the brighter when the great need of it arose. We have lost our old home, but our present site is even more magnificent. The old building is gone, but these will be finer and larger and better. The old things are passed away, the future looks most promising.

Some one has said that anyone can be loved, for all that is required is a certain blindness on the part of the lover. But to love, really and loyally that requires a great soul. This class today, and these other classes who are so heartily co-operating, are proving their greatness by their devotion; they are giving expression to the desire they feel that the place shall be beautiful and attractive and adorned. It takes an unselfish spirit to plant for others to enjoy, but such is the spirit of this class.

The years will lengthen into a mighty span, but with each succeeding ceremony we shall honor that constructive college spirit which is today in evidence when these faithful students strive to deserve the commendation: "Ye have done what ye could." Most heartily do I commend this enterprise, and may heaven richly bless your work!

Mr. Abernathy, class president, represented the Seniors as follows:

The most critical year in the life of our school days is nearly ended; from out of the inconveniences of temporary quarters our faces are turned in anticipation toward the joys of the year to come. Our days of indoor soirees, stuffy rooms, and a concrete campus are nearly over, and the prospect of magnificent buildings, open air and Forrest Park draws us with irresistible force toward the future. With our sympathies in accord with such a bright future we have come to know it is our purpose to make this plant today these flowers. As you see, it is our purpose to make this day an annual constructive holiday; if under the auspices of the class of '11 such a holiday is perpetuated—a holiday which in years to come, with circumstances less cumbersome, will result in broader things than planting of two small beds—then will this class have just cause to be proud. However this is in no wise intended to be the work of any one class; as you see all have been asked to cooperate in this undertaking. Wiser heads than any of our class were of the opinion that the management of the day would be expedited if some one class was held responsible, and in that connection the seniors were appointed. In the years to come, when you in turn are seniors, we would ask you to bear the responsibility of March 22 conscientiously, and our earnest wish is that the contribution offered under your direction, for the beautifying of our new college hill will far exceed the rather unpretentious beginning we have before us today.

To some there has arisen the question of the propriety of a holiday on the anniversary of so stupendous a loss as ours of last March. Our object is not to celebrate the loss, but to commemorate the occasion. Those of us who saw the great fire will never forget it nor the multitude of little details connected with it, but it will only be four or five years at the most, until all who were there will have left old T. C. U. In the life of a school four or five years is a very short period. A new set of students will be here entirely, and it is for them that we are ambitious to leave a sign post to point back to the bright light in the heavens on March 22, 1910.

However there wells in the breasts of us who spent the larger part of our college career in the building that burned, certain emotions that the future student—having never seen North Waco Hill—will not know. To us those old charred walls were at one time home; we lived there; we worked together there; we soireed there; we fought Baylor there! Among them were spent the larger number of our happiest days—the days of the under classman, breathing the spirit of class rushes and restlessness, dodging the eye of the matron and night watchman; fearing the penalty of rebuke and restrictions. Is it not natural that we should feel a peculiar kind of sorrow upon the anniversary of the day that

POLY GIVES US TWO MORE GAMES

POLY AGAIN WAS LAID IN THE DUST BY T. C. U.

T. C. U. WINS WITH EASE

Two Games Were Easily Taken in Succession.

T. C. U. determined that the score with Polytechnic should be more decided than in the previous series. After making seven runs in three innings T. C. U. seemed to loosen up and Poly scored two in the last of the third. Everybody seemed to hit the ball and try to see how many scores they could get to their credit. Cooper and Bettison finished with four each. Cooper knocked a clear home run and Daniels bunted and made it clear around on wild throws. The game was one sided from the beginning. T. C. U. scored an earned run in both the first and second innings. In the third, bunting put Poly in the air, and with a three-bagger by Dodd five runs were made. Renshaw replaced Williams in the fourth, but fared no better. With the bases full Renshaw threw Bettison's bunt wild and three men counted. T. C. U. scored in every inning except the fifth and seventh. Dodd, Graves and Sorey were the pinch hitters.

Poly scored two runs in the third on a base on balls and hits by Shackelford and White. Another run was made in the fourth on an error by Haislip and a two-base hit by Whitley. Poly scored three in the eighth with three hits and a wild throw by Haislip.

AT FOREST PARK.

The beautiful first day of April was appropriately celebrated by T. C. U. at Forest Park, adjoining our new site. To the T. C. U. students who had been so long confined by brick walls, cement curbs, and even nailed-down screens, the verdant beauties of the freshly-blown spring were newly loved and inspiring.

They wandered unrestrained over the soft grass, across the pretty streams and under the shade of the trees, with no noise to disturb them, but the singing of the birds, and the also pleasant sound of the concreting on the University building not far away.

At 12:30 the Freshmen and Juniors chose the greenest spot available and arranged their lunch in the midst thereof. On the other side of the tree the Seniors and Sophomores spread their repast, while the Academies closed the breach at one end by laying their lunch cloth between. Such a bounteous dinner! We tried to enjoy it enough to make us forget that there were such things as molasses and cold toast, unstringed beans and oleomargarine—and for the time being succeeded.

The afternoon was spent in gathering botanical specimens, "seeing the animals," enjoying the swings, etc., and it was not until 4 o'clock that Dean Parks and Mrs. McKinney gathered the crowd together and started them on the long walk back to the car for Weatherford street.

WANTED—MEN FOR SUMMER PROHIBITION WORK.

In Minnesota legislative campaign. For the early summer and fall there will be needed a large number of capable college men in prohibition campaign work. Minnesota has used college men for eight years with large success both to the men and to the cause. Good salary and expenses and magnificent opportunity to learn practical politics at first hand under able leadership. Members of student leagues only need apply.

In the amendment campaign in Iowa. During the coming summer opportunity for practical prohibition service will be afforded properly qualified college men in the non-partisan prohibition amendment campaign in Iowa. First class salaries and expenses paid. Many of the men needed have already been secured. Others should apply quick. Applications will not be received except from members of student leagues.

In New York. For the summer the New York prohibition committee wants forty college men. Only strong all-around and aggressive students can be used. Excellent salary and expenses paid. Preliminary training afforded at headquarters. Men assigned to definite counties for summer work. Personal interviews, some speaking, etc. Applicants should have studied the question thoroughly as members of College Prohibition Leagues.

For application blank on which to apply for work in any of these fields, address the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association, 151 Washington street, Chicago, Ill. The association acts as a free employment agency for all members of student leagues desiring to be of practical service in any line of anti-liquor activity. On account of the standard of preparation and study of the question required it cannot undertake to secure positions for any who have not been members of the

MUSIC STUDENTS GIVE A RECITAL

THE STUDENTS MUSICAL RECITAL WAS EXCELLENT.

AFFAIR WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The Faculty Are to Be Congratulated for It.

One of the most interesting events on the college calendar was the recital by the pupils of the various teachers of the Conservatory. The numbers were well prepared and of a very high grade, and the large audience was more than delighted with the program.

The performers with whom we were already familiar through last year's programs have made a very noticeable improvement, and the new talent give promise of great things. We are sorry that illness prevented the appearance of Misses Riter and Shirley.

The T. C. U. is justly proud of her music faculty, and the Skiff cannot endorse their work too highly. We feel that in Director Johnson and his associates we have men who will create a musical atmosphere and produce pupils who will force the recognition of T. C. U. as the musical center of the State. The program follows:

- Sonata (Allegretto)..... Beethoven
- Miss Katherine Riter.
- Sonata (Allegro)..... Haydn
- Au Matin..... Godard
- Miss Harriet Shirley.
- (a) Tis June..... L. Ronald
- (b) The Dove..... L. Ronald
- Miss Lois Wilkes.
- Prelude..... Rachmaninoff
- Miss Jane Barnard.
- Obstination..... De Fontainailles
- Mr. Allan Sears.
- (a) Sonata..... Dussek
- (b) Minuetto..... Thomas
- Miss Mildred Wright.
- (a) Star of My Heart..... Giordani
- (b) Haytime..... Liza Lehmann
- Miss Grace Hackney.
- (a) Concert Etude..... Wollenhaupt
- (b) Butterfly..... Grieg
- Miss Gladys Read.
- How a Fir Is Spring..... Becker
- Miss Naomi Lockhart.
- Two Songs Without Words..... Mendelssohn
- Miss Mary Rockett.
- (a) Pastoral..... Veracini
- (b) Kathleen..... Huhn
- Miss Louise Anderson.
- (a) Chaconne..... Durand
- (b) Pizzicati..... Delibes
- Miss Lorena Lamar.
- (a) The Night Has a Thousand Eyes..... Hawley
- (b) Interludes..... Mellor
- Mr. Earl X. Gough.
- (a) Impromptu—Es Dur..... Schubert
- (b) Rondo Capriccioso..... Mendelssohn

It is the purpose of the Skiff to represent the University; not the students alone, even though it is known as a students' paper. It is our purpose to represent the faculty as well, not because they elect the editor, but because they have a right to a representation in the columns of the students' paper. And it is not with disrespect to the faculty that the sentiment of the students be revealed to the faculty or to the public, concerning the interest of the faculty in the students. It is always with great care that a satirical article concerning the faculty be admitted into the Skiff. In fact, it will be exceedingly seldom that such one will occur, and that no personal remarks of this nature will ever be used.

Stop a minute and see what your plans will lead to. See what you are doing with your time, and what, in fact, you are in the University for. Is it because your parents or friends have made you to believe that it is best for you to be here without letting you see what you are to do? Do you realize that a struggle of three years for credits will make an improvement worth the trouble? Consult with yourself and see if it is not true that the man that has the making behind his diploma does not need the "sheep skin," and the "make-shift of a man" that cannot back up his degree with practical intellect and ability gets no results from the possession of the diploma.

The baseball team is showing up nicely now. The old players, Dodd and Query, are in their places again. The results for the season are four won and two lost. Next Friday and Saturday will tie up the score with Austin College, and the other two games will be to our credit. The mention of the winning of the game is not a prophesy, but an assertion of the fact that the T. C. U. team is a better playing bunch than the Austin College set, and the home games will be in our favor. Build up for the Friday and Saturday games. Everybody is expected to show himself on the grandstand when the game is called.

The Spring term has just opened. No other time is better to reconsecrate yourself to the best that you know to be in you. It is common with humanity to let the old wagon "run down," the paint wear off, the spokes crack, and the horrid rattle of creaking emptiness begin to assert itself. Then it is that the tires must be set, and the general overhauling must be done in order that the former usefulness be reached. The best thing to do, as is well known, is to keep up repairs and keep control of yourself, but if that is not done, then the general working over is compulsory.

Master the subjects that you undertake to carry. The satisfaction of having prepared every recitation is worth all of the effort that is expended in the preparation, besides the results of the training in thoroughness.

Stay with the classics. While the scientific research and the mathematical problems are holding you to perfect exactness, there is a necessity for the beautiful in the poetry of the ancients. Keep your head level, and indulge occasionally in the nectar with the gods.

Scholarship is the atmosphere most needed in our school. It is true that the courses are high, an drules stringent, but the real hunger for this facts for the benefit to be received therefrom is too far removed from the center of attraction. Too often the students are seen counting credits to see if they can be able to manage, by some scheme, to complete their course in three years rather than four. The degree is the ideal rather than the man that is to wear the degree.

Resolve to do better work this term than before, and make up for the negligence in the past. The average person can, by making a special effort, accomplish great things in a short time, that under ordinary circumstances would require twice the time.

Watch "the only man that ever beat Morton" get shown up in the contest with Austin College this week. The Collegians never win their games away from home. They show up well in the first of the season at home and then lose out in the end. We will start them on their homeward journey.

CONSTRUCTION DAY CLASS EXERCISES

brought that life to an end? If you have a tear for a T. C. U. going up in flames, as many had one year ago tonight, I would not have you check it. Flowers are so broad in their symbolism that these we have planted in gladness can serve a double purpose. If you will let them enrich the memories of a day that lies now far behind us.

But to only us few who were there will they have such a somber meaning. Those who are here this year for the first time feel no grief but gladness at the sight of these beds we have planted. To them the holiday is an occasion of pleasure and not of painful remembrances. This is our deepest purpose in perpetuating the day—to offer a pleasant reminder to students who did not see the fire that it occurred on March 22, 1910, and to add to the appearance of our new home by a day of planning and working on our campus. We will have many visitors here during commencement time and during the summer and if from them these flowers bring glances and comments of approval, we shall feel that our task is rewarded. If the new student next fall looks at them and draws a comforting breath at the sight of a bright spot on this unplanted upland, they will have served in the fullest sense the purpose of us who have planted them.

And now in behalf of the class I represent I wish to express our sincere appreciation to the other classes who have so ably co-operated with us in this work. We thank you for your generous whole-souled assistance. And you Sophomores, we charge with half interest in our bed—in June we will place the whole thing in your hands. Care for it carefully; next year when there is created from confusion and chaos, a new freshman class, pass down to them half of the burden we lay upon you. To the Juniors and Freshmen who are responsible for the other bed, we give our best wishes. May sun never wither for drouth kill the flowers which to-day you have planted. May the numerals 12 and 14 grow and flourish, green and refreshing the object of admiration to all who see; in beauty and fragrance surpassed not even by the flowers of the Enchanted Isles, equalled only by the bed which contains our 13 and our 11.

Mr. Roy Tomlinson as a representative of the Junior class, expressed the wishes of the class in the following:

We have met here today not in celebration of that destructive, and to me sad fire, of one year ago; but we are here under cheerful circumstances, as a result of that catastrophe, to enjoy the excellent conditions in a new home. The planting of these flowers and the incidents of this day's outing marks an event of commemoration as well as of happiness. We, of the Junior and Freshman classes rejoice that we are partakers of the occasion. And we hope to continue each year hereafter the commemoration of March 22nd. We rejoice that you as Seniors have taken the initiative in making this event possible. Although you will not probably as students enjoy the hospitality of these new and spacious buildings; yet you with your noble spirit and loyalty have unselfishly planned this day. We are indeed grateful to you. We believe that you are establishing a worthy precedent. May the flowers here planted spring forth in beauty and freshness! May they be an emblem of your loyalty and in days to come, a pleasant remembrance of your class!

After all, my friends, it is the spirit of an institution that makes it great. It is the spirit and the loyalty of men that makes them great. You ask me why America is great and I answer, because of the American spirit. You ask me why England, Germany, and France are great and I answer because of the spirit of their countrymen. You can trace the history of the North and the South through times of war and peace only to find that the true American spirit has attributed to the greatness of these two sections. You can trace the history of the United States and even of the world through the dark uncertain ages of the past and always and everywhere you will find that the charge of the occasion for the loyal hospitality extended us and for the measure of happiness that you have gained for us by the initiation of this day of commemoration. May this occasion—may the planting of these seed, ever spring forth and pleasantly bloom, as it were, on the walls of your memory to quicken the thoughts of this day. May the remembrance linger with you so long as the "Curtains of Day" are yet lifted to brighten your path through life.

The Individual, Original and Unique in MILLINERY

Here you find hats with character. They have that mysterious quality a painter calls atmosphere. They belong each to its certain type of woman, and just as truly will they confer distinction on their wearers and be unique in any gathering of hats.

It matters little that their styles may be called this, that and the other, that they are large or small, high crowned or low. All that you will see when you come.

We want you to come expecting something different, expecting unique originality and exquisite charm, prepared for novelty and beauty, and you'll not be disappointed.

passes were issued and a wild throw by Bettison let White score. In the eighth an error by Graves and wild throws by Morton and Bettison let two runs cross the plate.

Lamonica opened the game with a two-bagger; was sacrificed to second by Sorey, and scored on Cooper's grounder through short. In the fourth Daniels walked, Morton was hit; Lamonica hit a liner to Chambers, who dropped it, allowing Daniels and Morton to score. Lamonica went to second and scored on Sorey's single. A double by Sorey, Cooper's sacrifice and wild pitch added another run in the seventh. In the eighth Daniels was safe on Shackelford's error and scored on hits by Morton and Lamonica.

UNCHANGED.

"Do you act toward your wife as you did before you married her?"
"Exactly; I remember just how I acted when I fell in love with her; I used to stand and lean over the fence in front of the house and gaze at her shadow on the window shade, afraid to go in. And I act just the same way now when I get home late."—Ex.

The Royal samples have at last come. Let Dabbs take your measure for a spring suit.

DURING THE RECITATION PERIOD

Now I sit me down to sleep,
I hope that I may slumber deep.
Should the hour be o'er before I wake
I pray some friend my arm to shake.
—Horne.

M. Born samples at Freeman's are proving to give satisfaction.

Reporter—Here, you are sitting on my jokes!
Editor—That's alright; they haven't points enough to hurt.—Ex.

Give your suit o'fed to the University boys—none better. New samples have come.
