The rejoinder of Amon G. Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and the Record-Telegram, to the governor's demand for his resignation as a member of the board of directors of the Texas Technological College, seemed, like the canes the governor referred to at the luncheon mentioned by her, to have been loaded. At any rate, it was a mighty kick-back Carter registered. Amon G. Carter came up from the ranks, is now one of the greatest publishers in the South and is worthy of every consideration. It is strange the angles a political fight will develop and the fictitious issues which become involved. The row between Carter and the governor came about through Carter's lusty cheering for A. & M. College and an occasional "whoop—e—e for Dan Moody!" Oh, that we could fight out political questions on their merits and eliminate degrading personalities and non essentials.
