Board Plan 'Meritable' -Congress

The boarding plan presented by Dr. D. Ray Lindley, University vice-president, merits consideration but should also be left open to criticism, Student Congress recommended Monday.

In a report to Dr. Lindley, at the request of the vice-president, Corresponding Secretary Pat Baxter wrote: "The Student Association Congress has approved the following recommendation:

"It is the opinion of Student Congress that the current plan under consideration by the Administration, whereby all dormitory students would be charged a minimum board fee, and a system of meal tickets each worth a certain amount of money ($10 or $15), is meritable and should be further studied by the Board of Trustees.

We recommend that the overall $200 boarding fee be available to those students who wish to use it.

We also reserve the right to criticize and make recommendations in the event that prices and quality become undesirable to the students."

The report, formulated by the congress executive committee, was requested by Dr. Lindley when he asked congressmen for student opinion on the plan at the Oct. 26 meeting.

Congress' recommendations were submitted this week and will be considered, along with other student suggestions, at the Board of Trustees meeting today.

Missionary Will Speak Here Monday

Classes will be dismissed at 11 a.m. Monday for an address by Dr. E. Stanley Jones, noted writer and lecturer and one-time missionary to India.

Vice President D. Ray Lindley will preside over the convocation in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

With a background of foreign missionary work, Dr. Jones has written 16 books. His "Christ of the Indian Road" has sold more than a million copies and has been translated into 20 foreign languages.

Dividing his time between India and the United States, Dr. Jones has become a popular lecturer in this country. In India he developed schools and missions and has built a theological seminary.

Dr. Jones comes to TCU through the combined efforts of two national organizations, the United Church Women and the United Christian Youth Movement. He will speak each night (See JONES, p. 2)

Homecoming Work Begins Monday; 12 Clubs to Enter Parade Floats

The theme of "Mardi gras" is in the air. With Homecoming only two weeks away, clubs and classes are buzzing with float plans for the Homecoming Parade.

Craig Resigns; Skiff Post Open

Applications were thrown open for the post of business manager of The Skiff after the resignation of Horace (Chief) Craig Monday.

Craig stated in a letter to the student publications committee that he had too many other duties to handle the job properly.

Application blanks are available in the office of Prof. Warren K. Agee, chairman of the department of journalism.

Applicants must have a grade point average of 1.0 and have access to a car.

The manager will receive $75 per semester plus 15% of all local ads sold. This is usually about $500 a school year, Mr. Agee said.

Students applying will be asked to assist on The Skiff for two weeks. The new manager will be selected Monday, Nov. 23.

"This year's parade looks like the biggest and best TCU has had," said Miss Leona Gillette, Homecoming committee co-chairman. "We chose a Mardi Gras theme because it is colorful and leaves lots of flexibility for ideas."

Twelve clubs have turned in float ideas. They range from clowns and dragons to a jack-in-the-box. All float plans must be turned in today to Miss Gillette or Miss Donna Kastle, cochairman.

Clubs already entered in the parade include Leti, Bryson, Rodeo, Flying Frogs, Socias, Frogettes, Brushes, Vigilantes, BSU, DSF, Chamber of Commerce and the freshman class.

Starting Monday the Stadium will be open for clubs to begin float work early. Congress is furnishing all trucks, trailers and cab drivers.

The Homecoming parade will start at 10 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 21. Floats will assemble at the T&P reservation, move up Main St. to the Courthouse and back down Houston to Lancaster.

Seventeen judges will be posted at a reviewing stand in front of Hotel Texas to select the winners. First, second and third prizes will be $25, $15 and $10, respectively. Floats will be judged on originality, appearance and the Mardi Gras theme.

The Methodist Student Movement won first place in 1951 for its baton twirler. Last year Frogettes took first place, Chamber of Commerce was second and the Baptist Student Union received third place.

Dormitory decorations also will be judged and a plaque awarded. Waits Hall was adjudged "best decorated" last year.

A Homecoming dance will be held in the Field House. The 15-piece TCU Stage Band, directed by Lewis Gillis, will play for dancing from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m.

The Homecoming Queen, who will be crowned at the Rice-TCU game, will be presented at the dance.

Tomorrow is the last day students can have their pictures taken for the Horned Frog, Editor Jimmy Suggs announced.

Orgains' Studio, 705 1/2 Main, is making the pictures. The studio is open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., including Saturdays.

Faculty members' photographs can be made any time before Nov. 20. There is no charge for the faculty, but student cost is $1.

100 Nominees Are Eliminated In First Vote

An elimination election Wednesday left 12 men and 12 women of each class in the running for class favorites and 10 men and 10 women in the race for Mr. and Mrs. TCU. One hundred of the original nominees were eliminated.

Four hundred and ninety-two students polled their votes.

On Nov. 15 another election will be held to decide the five men and five women from each class to be presented at the presentation Ball on Dec. 3. Ballot boxes will be placed in the Student Lounge, the School of Business and Harris Hall.

Candidates left in the favorites race are:

Choral Club Will Present First Concert

The University Choral Club will present its first concert of the season at 8:15 p.m. today in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

This will be the first TCU choral concert for Prof. Ernest Lawrence, director.

The 100-member group will sing secular and sacred music and a group of folk songs.

The program, including works by Mozart, Bach, Brahms, di Lasso and other composers, is divided into four sections.

The sacred selections vary from the traditional Latin anthems to more modern hymns.

Yearbook Clinic Begins at 9 A. M.

Sixteen persons will speak at the second annual Yearbook Convention on the campus today and tomorrow.

The convention, open to all high school and college students, is being sponsored by the University Supply and Equipment Co. in co-operation with the department of journalism.

Registration of approximately 400 students began at 9 a.m. in the Undergraduate Religion Building, where all sessions will be held.

Prof. Warren K. Agee, chairman of the department of journalism will welcome the visiting students, teachers and speakers.

Tonight a reception and entertainment will be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Hotel Texas.

Coeds Receive Merit Awards

Misses Freda Reeves, Brownwood junior, and Lola Delahoy, Omaha, Neb., junior, have received merit awards from the order of the Eastern Star for their efforts as working students at TCU.

Miss Peggy O'Neal, nursing student, has also been named recipient of a special award.

Misses Reeves and Delahoy were presented $400 scholarships at a meeting of the Fort Worth chapter of Eastern Star Tuesday night.

Miss O'Neal received a $450 scholarship to be distributed over a three year period.

Tennis Court Lights Being Considered

A Student Congress proposal for illumination of the tennis courts and softball field is still under consideration, Dr. D. Ray Lindley, University vice-president, reported this week.

President Pat Whelan found that $1,000 appropriated by Congress last year from the student permanent improvement fund to help pay for lights was still in the congress coffers.

"Construction bids were finally turned in last summer," Dr. Thomas F. Richardson said this week. "However they were so high that the University considered them impractical, even with the assistance of the money from Congress. The $1,000 wouldn't have done much more than install the high power lines required."

Forms Required For Korean Vets

Veterans in school on the Korean War GI Bill must report to the dean of students office during the last calendar week in each month to complete certification form, Dr. Thomas F. Richardson announced.

Persons failing to appear at the office, Room 107 of the Administration Building, will not receive their monthly check, Dr. Richardson said.

Dr. Richardson urged all Korean War veterans to come to his office next week.

Vigilantes to Enforce Placement of Posters

A stricter enforcement of quality. Printing will be done on good paper. Administration Building was called for by Student Congress Monday.

Rules adopted by congress last year and given to the Vigilante Club for administration provide that "no posters will be put up anywhere in the Administration Building without special permission of congress."

Vigilantes will take down any signs illegally placed and will leave them at the snack bar in the Student Lounge.

Signs can be put up in the dormitories and buildings other than the Administration Building.

Rules applying to the posters themselves are:

- 1) Maximum size of posters will be 11" by 14".
- 2) Posters should be slipped between the glass doors of the board or given to Dave Allred, Room 7 of the Shamrock (Baracks Z). Any rejected signs will be taken to the snack bar.
- 3) Time of deposit will be not more than one week in advance of posting date.
- 4) All signs will be of good

5) Anyone wishing a sign returned should so indicate on the back of the poster and give the address to which it should be returned.

6) For information call Allred, Ext. 207.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Events of the last two weeks indicate a trend toward even more democracy in this already-democratic University.

Last week Dr. D. Ray Lindley, vice-president of the University, visited Student Congress. He asked for congress' opinion on a proposed change in the plan for boarding in the Cafeteria.

Open Plate

Glass Doors

Vice-President Lindley was seeking student opinion on a matter that could be adopted by the Board of Trustees without student approval. Monday afternoon the vice-president and Amos Melton, director of Information Services, met with student leaders and chatted with them over cups of coffee. Topics of conversation ranged from the qualities of good coffee to the desirability of lights on the tennis courts.

Dr. Lindley says he hopes similar coffee sessions can be held every Monday afternoon.

Apparently the Administration is holding open the plate glass doors of its offices and saying:

"Come on in and we'll talk it over."

Congressional Buck-Passing

Student Congress has passed the buck.

The Administration last week asked congress what it thought about a plan that would require all dormitory students to board in the Cafeteria.

Congress Monday issued a three-point reply:

(1) The plan is meritable and should be further studied by the Board of Trustees.

(2) Students desiring to use the $200 boarding fee should be allowed to do so.

(3) In the event Cafeteria prices and quality should become undesirable to students, congress reserves the right to criticize and make recommendations.

Points One and Three signal the Administration to go ahead with the compulsory boarding plan.

But the major reservation put forth in Point Two is as ambiguous as it would be unfeasible if incorporated into the total plan.

Surely congress does not assume the Administration could require a certain percentage of dormitory students to board, while leaving an optional $200 plan open for "students who wish to use it."

How can congress logically sanction compulsory boarding and at the same time say students who wish to deviate from the system should be permitted to do so?

Dr. D. Ray Lindley has clearly stated over-all conformity would be essential to such a system.

Failing to grasp the significance of its first opportunity this year to express itself on a proposed major change in University policy, congress rather sloppily has succeeded in evading the larger issue and passing the whole business right back to the Administration.

The Skiff thinks this particularly regrettable since the Administration approached congress sincerely seeking a wise judgment.

What Constitutes Action?

Every spring TCU uses a point system originated almost two decades ago to select its 10 most active students.

That point system is unrealistic. It is supposed to single out the 10 persons who have contributed most to the University through extra-curricular activities. In reality the system selects the 10 students who joined the most clubs during the school year.

Points are awarded for membership in organizations registered with a faculty committee on student societies. Club president receives 10 points, other officers eight points and members three points.

Mrs. Artemisla Bryson, chairman of the committee on student societies, says the practice of choosing the 10 most active students began in 1935. Purpose was to discourage students from taking on too many organization duties. Students who earn more than 24 points are asked to resign an office or withdraw from an organization.

But belonging to many clubs does not make a student active. Many clubs, although they are worthy, are not particularly active; some clubs have almost no activities. And some students join clubs, take positions of responsibility and then do nothing.

What happens to students who participate in extra-curricular activities not registered with the committee on student societies? Among them are athletes, persons in Little Theatre productions, debaters and band members. These people are active, but the present point system gives them no credit.

If the 10 most active students are to be picked, an adequate method should be adopted. The Skiff does not propose to outline a new system for naming persons. Perhaps it is a mistake to even attempt to single out students and call them "most active."

But if any prestige is to be preserved for students designated as active students, some revision in the system of selection is necessary. As it is, the term "10 most active" is fallacious.

"Hey, Bud, can you help give me a push?"

Campus Potpourri

Skiff Goals, Other Items

By ELLIS AMBURN

Perhaps it is time for us to state two Skiff objectives which we hope consistently are reflected in every editorial stand this student newspaper takes.

Naturally we strongly are concerned with the welfare of the student, but we equally are concerned with the welfare of the total University community.

We are deeply devoted to TCU and the high principles which have kept the institution alive and flourishing for 81 years. If that were not the case, we wouldn't be here, pounding on this aged Underwood in Splinter Village at 3 o'clock in the morning.

When we advocate free choice over a compulsory plan regarding meals in the Cafeteria, we have in mind not only our rights as maturing individuals, but as well the possibility that such a plan would be more harmful in chasing students away from the University than it would be beneficial in assuring the Cafeteria a predictable volume of trade.

Certainly we were thinking of ourselves when in 1952 we campaigned for a Student Center. But we also were aware that the addition of such a unit likely would improve the total University operation.

The Skiff strives never to be anti-this or anti-that; it simply is pro-TCU.

The current issue of Newsweek Magazine carries some interesting and fairly accurate comments on the collegian of 1953.

One pertinent observation, highly applicable to TCU, has to do with the influence of the Second World War veteran on the college campus.

As Newsweek explains, the veteran, from his maturer viewpoint, considered many traditional student activities silly and infantile. Now he almost has disappeared, and today's freshman, sophomore and junior are reviving some of the rah-rah spirit the vet killed.

But at TCU, the class of '54 still is uncertain as to whether it should yell riff-ram and dance in the Study Lounge or forget it all and go to Jack's.

The veterans were finishing up when we were freshmen. We were exposed to their attitude and some of it rubbed off. Consequently, we have been the guinea pigs of a puzzling period of transition.

In spite of these minor uncertainties, we definitely have been discriminating in matters of greater consequence. Where among us could one find the agnostic of the '20s or the faddish Communist of the '30s? As Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, president of Harvard University, pointed out:

"(We) are perhaps too wise, too close to those recently burned, to give (ourselves) quickly to easy enthusiasms."

It is unfortunate that even as few as four persons interpreted last week's remarks by Xanthias Boom as personal insults. Exactly that number of students approached us personally to register their fervent indignation over the article "Gotterdammerung."

It is far from The Skiff's purpose to damage the reputation of any minority group or in any way to alienate a segment of the campus citizenry.

We felt that the tone of Growald's column clearly indicated the writing was intended as humor, not to be taken seriously and certainly not to be construed as malicious contempt. At any rate perhaps the effigy will even the score.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Monday morning I had a call from one of our good Fort Worth supporters who attended the game in Waco last week and sat near our students.

"I just couldn't believe it at first," he said. "We were embarrassed for TCU and Fort Worth. All around us students were drinking beer and cursing so loudly everybody could hear them. Some of them had on letter sweaters and we were told one of them was a campus leader."

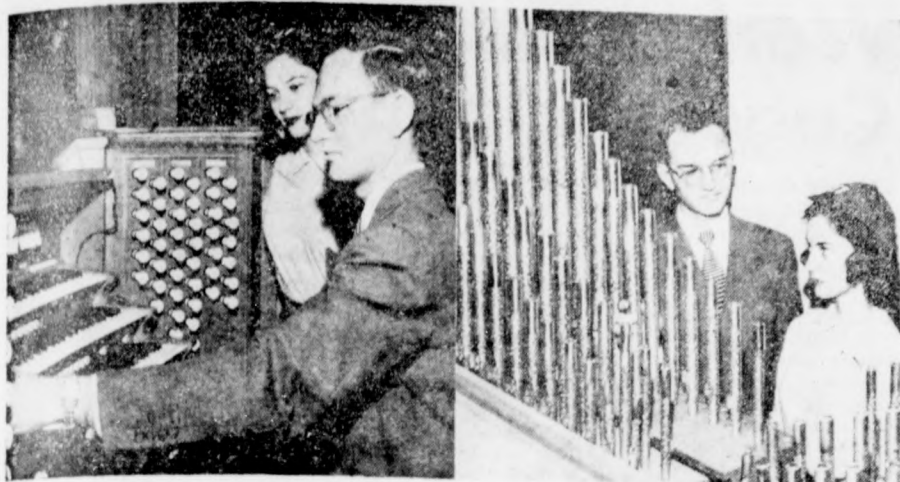

"Actually, it was like taking your wife into a beer joint. I don't guess all TCU students act like that but those that do are certainly poor representatives of the University in public."

Nor is this the first such report. Would it be cricket for the Skiff to comment on this and can anything be done? Surely students that do these things are not thinking. They are hurting the University, the church and themselves badly. Even if they don't care about themselves, would it be possible for them to think of others?

AMOS MELTON

Director of Information Services

(EDITOR'S NOTE: It seems in most sizable groups there exists a selfish minority that frequently succeeds in shedding unfavorable light on the larger whole. It is indeed regrettable that a few persons fail to recognize and assume their moral responsibility as unofficial but influential representatives of the University).

More Complicated Than You'd Think . . .

Big Moller Makes Beautiful Music

Visible Console Is Only Small Part Of Organ; Loft Holds 5000 Pipes

By JIM CROSLIN

On the stage of Ed Landreth Auditorium stands the console of a pipe organ, larger than the average, perhaps, but of a species very common in American churches and college auditoriums.

Occasional visitors to Ed Landreth would not give it a second thought. They've seen dozens of organs and this one looks no different from the rest.

But it is. This organ's pipes and automatic compressors fill the attic of the Fine Arts Building almost as completely as its music fills the auditorium.

And it's little wonder the pipes require the space they do, because there are 5,000 of them.

The organ's longest pipe, which makes its lowest note, is 32 feet long. The smallest pipe, which sounds the highest note, is only 3/8 of an inch long. Between these are thousands of other pipes, representing 11 octaves and an infinite number of note and tone combinations.

"The entire setup cost $65,000," said Emmet Smith, instructor in organ, "and there are $25,000 worth of new pipes yet to be installed.

"It's a Moller organ," Smith continued, "made in Hagerstown, Pa. There are only six like it west of the Mississippi, four of which are in Texas. They are located at the University of Texas, a church in Houston, Broadway Baptist Church in Fort Worth and at TCU."

The pipes themselves are made of an alloy of 2/3 lead and 1/3 tin, can be bent by a fingernail and will "melt" slightly when touched by a finger. Their arrangement in the organ loft gives the effect of an array of stalagmites. They represent a package orchestra, sounding almost everything from trumpet notes to chimes, including strings, woodwinds, French horn and even harp.

But the "backstage" part is rivaled in its complexity by the console itself. From a distance it looks as innocent as a large, upright piano, but close observation reveals a maze of keys, stops and couplers which appears to a layman about as simple as a telephone switchboard.

"There are four keyboards and 337 keys," Smith explained, "32 of which are played with the feet."

There are also 89 stops, 25 couplers and numerous other odds and ends which surround the organist, with all of which he must be familiar if he is to play the music he desires.

Music, of course, is the last thing one would expect to emanate from the rooms above the organ which, at first glance, more closely resemble a boiler room than an organ loft.

But music it is, and very beautiful music, as the thousands of people who have heard it will testify.

Rains to Speak At TCU Monday

Claude Rains, internationally-famous stage and screen star, will visit the campus Monday.

Rains, particularly noted as a Shakespearean and Shavian actor, will present his "Great Words to Great Music" program at 2:30 p.m. Monday in Ed Landreth Auditorium before subscribers to the Fort Worth Lecture Foundation.

The foundation may issue tickets to interested student groups. Dr. T. Smith McCorkle, dean of the School of Fine Arts, said.

Oil Executive Seeks Potential Employees

the purple pulse

The beating of the purple pulse of the student body increased this week after its reading of Dr. D. Ray Lindley's proposal on Cafeteria plans.

The increased beat was caused by the use of one little word, "compulsory."

The question asked those interviewed was, "What do you think of the possibility of a compulsory-boarding plan at TCU?"

Gene Clack, Perryton sophomore, who eats in the Cafeteria all the time with the exception of a few weekends, remarked:

"I like the suggestion of meal tickets fine, because if you miss a meal you're not losing money."

"I believe the Cafeteria would make more money if they served on the meal ticket basis. Students who now eat in the Cafeteria would probably continue, and many that eat elsewhere would probably eat now and then on the campus, if they had tickets. But I am not in favor of required boarding."

Miss Bettie Harbin, Fort Worth junior, answered:

"I disapprove of the plan as proposed by the Administration. I believe it is unfair, as no one wants to eat in the same place all the time."

"The food is good, but as my family lives in Fort Worth, I eat the majority of the weekend meals at home. If I were forced to board I would feel that I should eat as many of my meals as possible on the campus. I think that the $150 or $160 minimum is too much. I do not believe that I spend that amount for food during a semester."

Buddy Tennison, Houston freshman, had this to say:

"I think that it would be good for the Cafeteria to sell meal tickets to the students that wanted to board in the Cafeteria, but I don't think that it should be compulsory for a student to have to eat there. More students may wish to board in the Cafeteria anyway, when the new student union building is completed."

Rocky Del Manaco, West Haven, Conn., junior, commented:

"Somebody is way off. The cartoon in The Skiff showing students with chains on looks very realistic for future TCU dormitory students. Being an out-of-state student I've got to live on the campus, but I don't think I should be compelled to eat in the Cafeteria."

"Living in the dormitories is convenient, but the main reason for living there is it's cheaper. To live off the campus it would cost at least $50 a month. I know for I've tried."

All the students interviewed agreed that the purchasing of meal tickets in small denominations with no minimum amount required is fine, but they don't like being forced to eat in the Cafeteria.

Progress Report To Be Presented To Board Today

A report on Student Center progress and plans for the dedication of the Religion Center will come before the Board of Trustees in its meeting today.

Vice President D. Ray Lindley will present the administration's report to the board. President M. E. Sadler, who is ill, normally presents the report.

Work on the Student Center is progressing according to schedule, E. E. Strahan, construction superintendent, said.

The $1,200,000 Religion Center will probably be dedicated during the state convention of the Disciples of Christ here May 8-13.

Dance Will Be Held Wednesday

A "Steer Stomp" will be held at 8 p. m. Wednesday under sponsorship of the Sociae Club.

The dance will be held either in the Study Lounge or the Field House. A band is being scheduled. Admission will be 75 cents, stag or drag.

Dean Elizabeth Shelburne has granted dormitory women 12 o'clock permission.

Miss Sellers Better

Miss Catherine Sellers, Tyler junior, is reported in good condition at Nan Travis Hospital, Jacksonville, Texas, after an appendectomy.

BY ROSS HOYT

Back in 1896, when the Horned Frogs were mere tadpoles, football season rolled around for the first time in the institution's history. Everyone was excited about "tomorrow's" big game.

Well, the Frogs went out and won their first football game of the season. They crushed a valiant Toby's Business College squad by a rousing 8-6 verdict. They neglected to win another game.

Yes, it seems as though they couldn't fathom the power slants of their arch-rivals, the Houston Heavyweights.

Somehow this all brings back an over-used proverb that my venerable grandpappy used to chant incessantly in my waxy, youthful ears:

"History, my boy, repeats itself."

Grandpappy seems to have been right on the beam, in one instance at least. This year the Frogs beat KU in the season opener, but have seemingly forgotten to repeat their feat.

As they say in College Station, Brooklyn and everywhere else where they never pick up the marbles:

"Wait 'til next year."

From all indications it doesn't seem likely the Frogs will win the conference this year. The pigskin picture isn't too bright. As a matter-of-fact it's downright dull.

Not since 1924 have the Frogs finished on the bottom floor in the SWC. However, the '53 Froggies appear determined to "better" the "record" of 29 years. That year the Frogs dropped five conference games. Now that Baylor is a member the '53 Frogs have an opportunity to drop six.

No end is in sight for the string of defeats being placed around the necks of our Froggies. All they can do now is turn the other cheek, smile and speak.

Sammy "Big Ed" Morrow, who has been one of the brightest of this years few authentic football stars, has very likely seen his last action for the Frogs.

Sam re-injured his right knee early in the Bear clash Saturday and may be out for the remainder of the season.

In this, Sam's first crack at offensive football, he proved to all that he should have been there all along. His first two seasons saw him at defensive halfback, where he was a stand-out first stringer.

Upon glancing through the SWC statistics, which are considered subversive literature as far as most Frogs are concerned, I see Sammy's moniker jumping up everywhere.

He still leads conference punting by six yards. His

Workouts Show Cagers 'Snappy'

The Frog basketball team can feel the pressure of a favorite's role already.

The pressure hovers over the Field House like a fog, but it has not floated inside yet.

Although six Southwest Conference schools are practicing daily now, just for the opportunity of thrashing soundly TCU's basketball forces, Coach Buster Brannon is not too worried.

"You know," he says, "it's a good thing that we are all just good old boys. All this favorite stuff could go right to our heads, but it doesn't. We know only one thing and that's to work hard all the time."

Frog workouts this week

45.5 yards per kick not only tops conference play, but is No. 1 nationally as well.

Although he has carried the ball fewer times than any of the top 10 ball carriers in the league his name is among them. At the bottom of the list, but it's there.

Sam is one Frog we can be darn proud of in 1953.

When last seen the beaten and bewildered Goldlocks were wandering off in a north-westerly direction. Rumors have it that after their bashing at the hands of the bad bold Bruins they have decided to try for a little Cougar meat. "Luck, Froggies, luck."

have been snappy. Spirit is fine, Brannon says.

Quite a battle is being waged for the starting guard positions. At present Sonny Lampkin, Buddy Brumley, Tommy Hill and Vergil Baker, all lettermen, and Bill Estill, a valuable sophomore, are in the contest.

Brannon says he particularly likes the leadership qualities of Henry Ohlen, gigantic center who is this year's captain.

Forward posts are held now by Ray Warren and Charles White. Brannon says he also likes the play and attitude of Ross Hoyt, at forward.

It's 'Go West, Bold Frogs,' As Christians Test Cougars

By JIM STAPLETON

Delving into the football ruins of 1953, TCU's Horned Frog squad is seeking some weapon with which to crush several Washington State Cougars tomorrow.

Thirty-eight Froggies were scheduled to leave by chartered plane at 8:30 a.m. today for Spokane, Wash. As on previous inter-sectional journeys, an afternoon workout is slated after arrival.

The game will be played at Spokane, a neutral site. Washington State College is at Pullman, Wash.

When speaking of the battle, Coach Martin looks off into the sunset and mutters:

"If we could only get one perfect game. We are getting some fine individual performances, but we can't get everyone to play that great game on the same Saturday."

"For instance," Martin continues, nervously running his fingers through his hair. "Hugh Pitts played as good a ball game Saturday as anyone could expect from a kid, and Don Sanford and Ray Hill looked good, too. But you've got to have more than a couple of the fellows playing perfect ball to defeat a good football team."

Washington State has a pretty good team, he adds.

The Christians will have their hands full in this contest. State will not be a pushover, for the Cougars seem to be as unpredictable as TCU.

Coach Al Kircher's boys have won three of seven contests.

They have bested College of Pacific Idaho and Oregon. The four losses came at the hands of Southern California, Iowa, UCLA and Stanford.

Scores range from a 54-12 humiliation of the Crimson

Versatility? Mr. Windegger Has Overdose

Talk about versatility!

Frank Windegger, Wog quarterback, may be excused for a slight smugness on mention of that word. In the Baylor game he completed a pass to himself.

Windegger, no Mercury, jumped three yards after the completion. He had fired a jump pass in the direction of Everett Salley but a Cub Sherman stuck a paw in the path of the ball. Frank grabbed the rebound, prompting one of the season's oddest announcements:

"Windegger passes to Windegger, for a gain of three."

WSA To Take Outing

Members of the Women Sports Association will leave at 1 p.m. tomorrow for a weekend outing at Barnes Place at Eagle Mountain Lake. The group will return late Sunday.

Profile Tests Ready

Freshman test profiles are complete and are now available to counselors, C. J. Firkins, director of the testing bureau, announced.

by Iowa to a 36-12 conquest of Idaho.

Stanford brushed by them Saturday with by a 48-19 count. Pass defense was the State weakness.

The Cougars have shown both a competent running game and an able passing attack. Mainstay of the entire offensive show is captain of the squad, Bob Burkhardt.

Standing 5-11, the 195-pounder plays the man-under position on the T and tailback on the single wing.

Washington State employs an unbalanced line to the right, much like Michigan State.

Several people expect another aerial battle similar to the Penn State throwing contest a couple of weeks back.

This is the first time a Purple team has encountered a Washington group. Frogs have played on the Pacific Coast several times, but the Crimson and Gray has never been on the agenda.

So far in inter-sectional contests Froggies have done right well. On the first football Saturday they defeated Kansas 13-7, then were edged in that memorable Michigan State contest, 26-19 and were nosed out by Tony Rados and a company of Penn State boys, 27-21.

Not too bad a record, one might venture. Tomorrow the Purple men have a chance to make the inter-sectional record .500.

From the TCU point of view, team spirit is surprisingly high. One naturally would expect the men to be "down" after five straight losses and games with Texas, Rice and SMU planned for the remainder of November.

Martin frowns when such an idea is put forth.

"Our men don't get 'down' he asserts. "We play each one of those games as it comes. Just you wait, one of these days..."

Game time is 4 p.m. (CST). The game will be broadcast over WBAP.

'Sharpshooters' Lose to Baylor

The Baylor rifle team out-shot the Horned Frog team Saturday in Waco, 1343-1274.

High scorer for the Horned Frogs was Dewey E. Cozart, Fort Worth freshman, with a mark of 263. Cozart is a member of the Air Force ROTC.

The team will go to Austin Nov. 14 for a match with the Texas Longhorns.

Five New Men to Be In Wog Lineup Nov. 13

Five new faces will appear in the starting lineup when the football Wogs engage the Texas Shorthorns here at 2 p.m. next Friday.

Dave Rutherford will take over the fullback slot, while Jack Webb will handle right halfback duties. Everett Salley and James Cooper will be at right and left ends, respectively. Vernon Hallbeck will start at right guard.

Switches are scheduled, also, with Norman (Animal) Hamilton changing to right tackle and Vernon Uecker moving to left tackle.

Coach Fred Taylor said the men would alternate with the players they have replaced. He explained the changes were not necessarily due to performances in the Baylor game, but were mainly to allow a more even balance in playing time.

With two games remaining the freshmen have compiled a
